BUSINESS MEN OF MILWAUKEE VOTE FOR BEER

Follow the Lead of Chicago A. of C.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., March 18.—[Special.]—The board of directors of the Milwaukee Association of Commerce today placed itself firmly on record in favor of the return of beer. A resolution was adopted unanimously petitioning the National Chamber of Commerce to recommend that congress at once legalize the manufacture and sale of malt beverages of 3½ per cent alcohol content by weight. The Milwaukee association followed the lead of the Chicago Association of Commerce, a step which Harry B. Hall, president of the organization, said he understood was being taken by commercial organizations of many cities.

The amendment of the Volstead act was recommended on the grounds that it would open the way to an immediate return of prosperity and that it would lead to the overthrow of professional criminalism which, it says, has developed since the passage of the prohibition act. The crime of kidnaping for ransom it attributed to the prohibition laws.

"The shocking crimes of kidnaping which have increased alarmingly and which have disgraced our civilization have emphasized the impotence of our police in dealing with existing conditions. Such crimes are being committed by organized criminals financed by the proceeds of the sales of intoxicants and will continue as long as these laws remain unchanged and such revenue remains available to organized criminals," the resolution said.

Cites Loss to Milwaukee.

The resolution which was adopted at a special meeting of the board was the product of the joint labors of the industrial committee, the committee on national affairs and the committee on business stimulation of which Edward E. Gillen, Max W. Babb, and Morton R. Hunter are chairmen, respectively. It presents a striking picture of the economic importance of the brewing industry to Milwaukee before the Volstead act was adopted.

"In the last year before prohibition nine Milwaukee breweries bought from farmers of Wisconsin and elsewhere 10,000,000 bushels of barley, 5,000,000 pounds of hops and thousands of bushels of rice, corn, and other grains," the resolution states. "These breweries used 120,000 tons of coal in that year. They paid 12 per cent of the total city water tax. One brewery alone, in 1910 to 1919, bought revenue stamps from the federal government at a cost of $14,891,841.

Nine Millions Years in Wages.

"The Milwaukee breweries employed 5,000 men and women and paid $9,000,000 per year in wages. The annual revenue brought into Milwaukee from other cities and states by the sale of beer was $12,000,000 to $15,000,000 per year. The brewing industry was Milwaukee's fourth most important industry."

"The people of Wisconsin in referendum protested against the Volstead act by a vote of 176,000; the state legislature has frequently registered a similar sentiment; the Wisconsin delegation in congress has taken a like position, and the Association of Commerce now adds the voice of Wisconsin industry to the general complaint against the act," the resolution declares.

"An amendment to the Volstead act authorizing manufacture and sale of beer not intoxicating in fact," it continues, "will bring about the immediate partial and perhaps complete restoration of an industry which some years ago ranked as one of the greatest in the country. The work of rehabilitating the breweries will place in circulation many millions of dollars, and their operation will put new life into scores of industries affiliated with or affected by the brewing industry."

"Prohibition a Failure."

"The record of 13 years of attempts at enforcement of the prohibition act is sufficient evidence that it cannot be enforced in its present terms and that it should be modified to conform to the will of the majority of the people of the United States and to restore their respect and regard for all law.

"It is our belief that while all the ills now encountered because of the unworkable eighteenth amendment may not be cured with the modification of the present law, such action may well be considered as the first step in a movement to bring about a much needed improvement."

A special meeting was called to consider the resolution so it might be presented to the national chamber by April 6, the final date on which it could be received and acted upon at the annual meeting to be held in San Francisco May 17 to 21.

PROTEST SENT MAYOR ON PLAN FOR SUN BATHING

Copies of a resolution adopted at a massmeeting of Rogers Park citizens protesting against a measure pending in the city council which would authorize members of a nudist cult to construct an enclosure on the Touhy avenue beach for sun bathing were sent yesterday to Mayor Cermak and Ald. George A. Williston [49th]. The resolution was adopted Thursday night at a meeting called by the 49th Ward Republican Civic league in the Rogers Park hotel.

"The invasion of Rogers Park by disciples of a nudist cult would destroy the wholesome residential atmosphere that has surrounded our homes here and hold this splendid community up to scorn and ridicule by clean people of the city," the resolution states.

"Permitting men and women to divest themselves of their clothes and indulge themselves in moronic exhibitions transcends the limits of morality and seriously endangers standards of decency that we have cherished in this part of Chicago."

RAILWAY PUSHES ELECTRIFYING OF WASHINGTON LINE

New York, March 18.—[Special.]—Indicating that the Pennsylvania railroad was prepared to push electrification of its main line between here and Washington as fast as circumstances permitted, J. V. B. Duer, electrical engineer of the road, told the New York Railroad club tonight that ten electric passenger and two freight locomotives are already on test.

The passenger engines have been used between Trenton, N. J., and Wilmington, Del., for more than a year, he said, but seven of them recently were transferred to service between the Sunnyside yards on Long Island and Manhattan transfer.

"These locomotives," said Mr. Duer, "have now operated a sufficient length of time to determine that they are of the general type which we require." He said the company had already placed orders for 150 of these engines at a cost of $24,000,000.

CHICAGO TEACHER WINS $36,175 ON A RACE TICKET

One Chicago school teacher, out of many thousands, had cause for rejoicing last night. She is Miss Helen M. Hanch, of 3618 Lexington street, assigned to the Howland school.

The reason for her rejoicing is that she was named as winner of $36,175 in the Grand National Sweepstakes, run yesterday at Aintree, England. She held a ticket on Shaun Goilin, 1930 winner, which finished third.

News of Miss Hanch's good fortune came over the cables. Whether she received official notification was not known. She was not at home last night, friends said.

W. Park Autos Eat $24,900 Taxes a Year

Motor service for five of the seven west park commissioners and 12 executives is costing taxpayers at the rate of $24,900 a year, it was revealed yesterday through an examination of the board's records. The cost of automobile service was called to public attention by one of the 1,000 employes of the west park system who have not been paid since July 1.

The facts were admitted to be correct by President W. R. James. The practice of paying $24,900 a year for automobiles was inherited from previous boards, Mr. James said. The west parks, it was recalled, have defaulted on $565,220 in bond and interest payments since Nov. 1.

Five Have Big Cars.

The expensive machines are assigned, according to Mr. James, to himself as president, and to Commissioners John A. Pelka, Philip E. Gilbert, Edward F. Moore, and Waldecar J. Roehler. Commissioners Theodore W. Bunte and Eden T. Brekke have no public owned sedans assigned to them.

These machines are maintained at public expense and are driven by chauffeurs whose salaries likewise are paid out of taxes. In addition, automobiles are provided the secretary of the board, the superintendent of the parks and the captain of police. Nine lesser officials are on the rolls, according to Mr. James, for car maintenance at $75 a month each.

Chauffeurs for the five commissioners are paid at the rate of $160 a month, a total of $800 a month, Mr. James said. No figures were available on the cost of gasoline, tires or repairs since the cars are maintained through the park's own garages. But figured on the board's allowance of $75 a month each on the privately owned and for the most part smaller machines, this item would be $375 a month, or a total monthly expense of $1,175 for motor service to five commissioners.

Another $225 a Month.

On the same basis, maintenance for the three large cars assigned to the secretary, superintendent, and captain of police would cost taxpayers an additional $225 a month.

At $75 a month, maintenance of cars for the nine lesser officials cost the public another $675 a month. Thus, according to Mr. James' figures and the maintenance rates established by the board for some of its employes, it was computed that the public pays at the rate of $2,075 a month for motor service to commissioners and executives of the west parks.

SHOWERS DUE FOR TOMORROW'S DEBUT OF SPRING

The vernal equinox, marking the official opening of spring, will occur tomorrow at 1:54 p. m., central standard time. Usually the time of the equinox is between the 21st and 23d of March, but the interposition of the 29th day in February pushes it forward this year. It will come later each March until 1936, the next leap year.

Spring will enter under conditions not far from normal, so far as temperatures are concerned. The official forecast is for generally fair weather today and probably showers tomorrow. The mercury is expected to rise somewhat from that of yesterday, when the maximum was 36. There were flurries of snow during the day.

Policeman Finds Burglar He Seized Is His Brother

Rock Island, Ill., March 18.—[Special.]—Receiving a call from a local grocery store that a burglar had been caught in the place and the grocer was detaining him at the point of a gun, Policeman Henry Harder hurried to make the arrest last night. Harder seized the man in the dim light and subdued him when he offered resistance. A moment later he recognized the prisoner as his brother, Warren, 25. The policeman took him to the station and locked him up on a charge of burglary.

THE WEATHER

SATURDAY, MARCH 19, 1932.

Sunrise, 5:53; sunset, 6:01. Moon rises at 2:45 p. m. today. Saturn is a morning star. Venus is an evening star.

Chicago and vicinity—Generally fair Saturday, probably showers by Sunday; not quite so cold Saturday afternoon and on Sunday; moderate westerly winds Saturday.

Illinois — Generally fair Saturday; Sunday unsettled, probably showers in central and north portions; slightly warmer Sunday, and in north portion Saturday.

POWERS TELLS ALL TO DOCTOR BEFORE DEATH

Walks Unaided to the Gallows.

Moundsville, W. Va., March 18.—(AP)—With an unconcerned smile flickering across his pudgy face, Harry F. Powers, the mountain "Bluebeard," who slew two women and three children, died on the gallows tonight.

The trap was sprung at 9 p. m., and Powers was pronounced dead by four physicians at 9:11.

Powers was hanged for the slaying of Mrs. Dorothy Pressler Lemke, Northboro, Mass., divorcée, but a few minutes after he had plunged to his death, Dr. H. H. Haynes, Clarksburg physician, announced that Powers had confessed that he also killed Mrs. Asta Buick Eicher and her three children of Park Ridge, Ill.

Bodies Found in Ditch.

The bodies of all five victims were found in a ditch near Powers' queerly-built "chamber of horrors" garage on his wife's deserted farm in Sylvan Quiet Dell.

In a statement which he signed Powers admitted he buried his victims where they were found.

In a letter to Warden Scroggins, opened after Powers' death, the killer denied his guilt. He reiterated that he had not been given a fair trial in Clarksburg and protested that "capital punishment will not reduce murders."

The Lothario of the hills, who lured women with promises of love and happiness, was on the verge of a nervous collapse an hour before he went to his death, but he quickly regained his composure and his death escort found him sitting quietly in his cell.

Walks Alone to Gallows.

Powers walked with a firm step, unassisted, to the gallows. There with the blue curtain shielding him from the gaze of those who had come to see him die, he shook hands and bade farewell to the officials and their aids gathered about the noose.

Shortly before the hands of the prison clock reached 9, the curtain was drawn aside. There was a grimace on his flabby face as his large shifty eyes roved to Sheriff W. B. Grimm of Harrison county.

Quizically he gazed at Warden A. C. Scroggins. He was pale, but still apparently unmoved.

Dressed in a dark blue striped suit, with a white shirt and a white four-in-hand tie, Powers looked much as he did the day he was arrested in Clarksburg and smiled at police officers who accused him of the slayings.

Powers did not wear the heavy spectacles he donned when he went to Clarksburg to live as an obscure salesman.

Has Nothing to Say.

Warden Scroggins asked Powers if he had anything to say.

"No," replied the doomed man and then he shook his head emphatically in the negative.

Meanwhile the final preparations for death were being quietly pressed.

The prison chaplain, E. M. Giesey, who remained with Powers through most of his last hours, began his prayer.

The death cap was adjusted and it was 9 o'clock.

Deputy C. E. Brill, captain of the guards, pressed a button that flashed the death signal to attendants stationed at three electric switches. Each pressed a button, none knowing which sprung the trap. Powers plunged to his death.

Dr. Haynes and Sheriff Grimm, announcing that Powers had confessed all five slayings, did not make the slayer's statement public.

Lynching Attempt Fails.

Feeling ran high in Clarksburg after the finding of the bodies and Powers was removed to the old stone jail in that city. In September a large crowd gathered late at night about the prison and demanded Powers be delivered for lynching. He was hustled off to the state prison here.

Powers' body was not claimed by his widow, and will be buried in a few days in the prison potters field, in dismal Toms Run valley.

RETURN LEADS TO ARREST.

His return to Park Ridge, Ill., after he had murdered Mrs. Asta Buick Eicher and her three children, in an attempt to realize on Mrs. Eicher's property, started Harry Powers down the trail to the gallows.

Police in the Chicago suburb were warned by suspicious neighbors of Powers' actions. He eluded them and fled back to Clarksburg, but his arrest there and confession of five murders followed shortly. The death sen-

'Red' Johnson to Face Lindy in New Quiz

New York, March 19 [Saturday].—[Special.]—Henry Johnson, a suitor of Betty Gow, nursemaid to the kidnaped Lindbergh baby, was taken to Hopewell, N. J., last night for a personal interview with Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Johnson, a former deckhand on Thomas W. Lamont's yacht, Reynard, has been held in custody since a few days after the 20 month old baby was stolen from its crib in the Lindbergh home on Sourland mountain two weeks ago last Tuesday.

While continuing to investigate Johnson's story of his movements on the night of the kidnaping and immediately afterward, detectives have asserted repeatedly that they have found no evidence to link him with the abduction of the missing child.

Explains Johnson Quiz.

It had been understood that Johnson was eliminated from the case several days ago, but when Col. Schwarzkopf was asked for an explanation of the prisoner's summons to Hopewell he replied:

"Johnson never has been completely absolved in the Lindbergh case."

The explanation previously offered for continuing to hold the sailor friend of the baby's nurse had been that he entered the United States illegally from Sweden and that he was being held for deportation by immigration officials. Thus far, however, the New Jersey authorities have taken no steps toward turning over their prisoner to the federal agents, and it was understood that they were awaiting reports from abroad on requests for information on his past life.

The first intimation that Col. Lindbergh had any interest in Johnson came late at night when Col. Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey state police, telephoned to Newark police headquarters and said that the famous aviator wanted to question Johnson himself.

New Theory Advanced.

The theory that the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby may have concealed his identity by substituting him for another was being investigated by detectives of Newark, N. J.

It was possible, they believed, that the 20 month old infant, who has been the object of a nation-wide search since March 1, when he was stolen from his parents' country home in Hopewell, N. J., may have been turned over to a family known to have a baby about the same age.

Check Passport Records.

To avoid the suspicion of neighbors, it was pointed out, a substitution would have to be made and it would be necessary for the custodians of the stolen child to send their own baby away. Detectives of Newark were in Washington checking passport records in an effort to trace babies that have been sent to foreign ports recently without their parents.

The statement of a prisoner held in Pocatello, Idaho, that he had driven the kidnapers' car and knew where the baby was hidden, proved to have been based on imagination, and the prisoner, Ignace Blaustein of Brooklyn, finally repudiated it himself, although not soon enough to prevent two Newark detectives from being sent nearly all the way across the continent to question him.

Servants Are Located.

The only positive development of the day—and that promised to end in negative results—was the locating of Mrs. C. Leandro Lightfoot's two servants, whose disappearance from her Franklin Park home near New Brunswick, N. J., on the day after the kidnaping aroused her suspicions.

She had told the police that she knew them as Paul and Kate Thornburg, but the servants, when found at their new place of employment in Ardmore, Pa., said their name was Engstenburg, and declared they never had used any other. They voluntarily went to the Hopewell headquarters of the state police investigating the kidnaping to clear themselves of suspicion.

HOUSE BOOSTS INCOME LEVY TO KILL SALES TAX

Both Parties Defy Leaders in Vote.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 18.—[Special.]—Bent on "soaking the rich" income taxpayers with the object of averting imposition of a sales tax, a bipartisan majority of the house ran rough shod over the Democratic and Republican leadership today, forcing drastic amendments to the billion dollar increase tax bill.

REP. PHILIP D. SWING.

By a vote of 153 yeas to 87 nays, the surtaxes on incomes above one hundred thousand dollars were raised from the 40 per cent maximum proposed by the ways and means committee to the war time rates, with a 65 per cent maximum. The present maximum is 20 per cent.

By a vote of 121 yeas to 81 nays, the normal tax on incomes in excess of eight thousand dollars was raised from the 6 per cent provided by the bill reported by the committee, to 7 per cent. The present rate is 5 per cent.

G. O. P. Split on Sales Tax.

With both parties split wide open on the proposals for balancing the budget the Republican members caucused tonight on petition of the sales tax opponents but without any result other than the accentuation of the division in the ranks of the G. O. P. More than 175 of the 214 Republicans attended the meeting.

No vote was taken in the caucus and the greater part of the session was devoted to criticism and defense of the sales tax. Representative John C. Schafer of Wisconsin advocated the Cullen beer amendment, which its authors estimate would yield 350 millions of dollars. Michigan members urged a tax on imported refined sugar.

Republican Leader Bertrand Snell of New York said after the caucus that a majority of the Republicans are still in favor of the sales tax but that it cannot be passed unless about 60 Democrats can be lined up for it.

Party Leaders Helpless.

The restoration of the war time surtax rates was provided in an amendment offered by Representative Philip D. Swing [Rep., Cal.], a candidate for the senate, as a substitute for an amendment offered by Representative Harry C. Canfield [Dem., Ind.], which proposed to raise the maximum to 50 per cent. The increase in the normal income tax was an amendment sponsored by Representative F. H. La Guardia [Rep., N. Y.], leader on the Republican side of the fight against the manufacturers' sale tax.

In vain did Democratic Leader Henry T. Rainey of Illinois and Republican Leader Bertrand H. Snell of New York endeavor to hold their respective forces in line against this onslaught on the committee bill, which they realized was a preliminary attack on the backbone of the measure—the sales tax designed to yield 600 millions of the billion additional revenue needed to balance the budget. They found themselves whistling down the whirlwind and the protestations were drowned in the outburst of cheers with which the successful soak the rich move was accompanied.

Expect 150 Million for Tax.

It was the first time within the memory of house members that both the Republican and Democratic leadership ever was repudiated at the same time. Although there was no record vote an overwhelming majority of the Democrats voted for the amendments while the Republicans appeared to be about evenly divided. On the amendment boosting the surtaxes less than a dozen Democrats, mainly Tammany members, supported Mr. Rainey and Representative Charles R. Crisp [Dem., Ga.], acting chairman of the committee.

In vain did the Republican and Democratic leaders argue that the restoration of the war time surtaxes would drive the rich to investment in tax exempt securities and thereby dry up completely this source of revenue. The supporters of the amendment estimated that the increase in surtax rates would raise an additional 130 million of dollars and the boost in normal tax rates another 20 million, a total of 150 millions more from income taxes than the committee bill provides for.

It is the purpose of these foes of the sales tax to force through a restoration likewise of the war time federal inheritance, or estate, taxes. With the increased income taxes yielding one-fourth of the amount expected from the sales tax, as they calculate, and the increased estate rates relied on for another sizable contribution, the opposition leaders will seek to emasculate the sales tax. Their object is to compel the exemption of so many additional manufactured articles that the tax will become a selective sales or luxury tax.

Theories Go in Crisis.

With the Democratic house repudiating the Democratic leadership on the first real test to which it has been subjected, the party leaders tried to minimize the disaster. Speaker Garner, whose presidential boom may suffer considerably from such buffeting as his leadership received today, contended that the important thing is to balance the budget and that it matters little what sort of taxes are voted to accomplish that purpose.

"I stated at the outset of this congress," he said, "that the most important thing that could be done to restore confidence in all branches of our activities as a people and thereby relieve the burden of depression was to balance the budget. I am still of the same opinion.

"There comes a time in the nation's financial life when the question of preference as to methods of raising necessary revenue becomes inconsequential and insignificant in the face of the need of actually and quickly providing the means of maintaing the government's financial integrity. It is such a situation that confronts us today, and with that situation all economic theories must yield to the necessity of the nation."

With the wrecking of the committee bill in prospect, some Republican and Democratic leaders were discussing the advisability of recommitting the measure to the committee for reconstruction. Acting Chairman Crisp, however, would not agree to such procedure.

How Income Tax Increases.

The Swing amendment does not change the increased surtaxes proposed by the committee on incomes up to 100 thousand. On incomes between 100 and 150 thousand the Swing amendment makes the surtax 40 per cent. Then the surtax goes up 2 per cent on each additional 50 thousand up to 300 thousand. On incomes between 300 and 400 thousand the rate is 48 per cent; between 400 and 500 thousand, 50 per cent; between 500 and 750 thousand, 52 per cent; between 750 thousand and one million, 54 per cent; between 1 and 1½ millions, 56 per cent; between 1½ and 2 millions, 58 per cent; between 2 and 3 millions, 60 per cent; between 3 and 4 millions, 62 per cent; between 4 and 5 millions, 64 per cent, and over 5 millions, 65 per cent.

When the enthusiasm over the passage of the Swing amendment had died down Representative C. A. Fuller [Dem., Ark.] proposed an amendment calling for a tax of $1 on every thousand dollars worth of capital stock in a corporation.

Representative Crisp, opposing the tax, said it was unfair to coroporations, some 52 per cent of which had been so broke last year that they had paid no income tax. It was overwhelmingly defeated.

Capital Tax Rejected.

Next Representative B. B. Harlan [Dem., O.] introduced an amendment raising the tax on the net income of corporations from the 13 per cent recommended by the committee to 15 per cent. Opposition to this proposition centered about the danger of such a tax forcing corporations, in which many participate, back into partnerships with a resultant concentration of profits. The amendment was lost.

Representative L. T. McFadden [Rep., Pa.] presented with no more success an amendment asking for a 2 per cent tax on the accumulated surplus of corporations.

Representative B. M. Chiperfield [Rep., Ill.] in opposing this proposal warned his colleagues to "proceed with caution" in their zeal to tax wealth.

"You talk about the conscription of wealth," he chided, "but we can only put the labor of this country to work through the wealth of the United States. And if you confiscate the source of employment you cause greater unemployment."

Earlier in the day the committee rejected the proposed tax on copper sales upon a showing that it would necessitate 40 or more changes in tariff provisions and also rejected the proposed increased tax on medicinal liquor.

PARIS, March 18.—(AP)—A Havas [French News Agency] dispatch from Berne tonight said the Swiss federal council had decided to expel three Italians charged with "working for a foreign state in Swiss territory.

Assembly Election a Setup for 90 Primary Nominees

BY PARKE BROWN.

What politicians call the "setup system" in the election of Illinois state representatives is just as prevalent this year as it has been in primaries and elections of recent years.

There will be ninety members of the house who win in their party primaries on April 12 who will be practically certain of their election in November. Independents seldom come through at election time. The same number of nominees in 1930 were sure of victory. In that year the situation brought protests from the Legislative Voters' league and other organizations.

Only 21 Real Contests.

There will be contests for house seats next fall in only twenty-one of the fifty-one districts this year. Seven of them are in Cook county and fourteen are downstate. In 1930 there were sixteen contests downstate and only five in Cook.

The "setup system" is created by the law which empowers the party senatorial committees in each district to determine how many nominees the parties shall choose for the lower house at Springfield. They may fix the number as high as three or may limit it to one.

A "setup" results when one party nominates one and the other nominates only two. The result is that the total number of nominees for the three seats from the district is exactly three—all winners in the natural course of events.

Officials Reveal Situation.

The situation became known yesterday when Secretary of State Stratton announced the figures filed with him for downstate districts and County Clerk Sweitzer gave out the figures for Cook county.

One other interesting fact from those figures is that the Republicans this year will seek 92 of the 153 of the house seats and the Democrats will try for 84. The present division of the house is 81 Republicans and 72 Democrats. A majority is 77, and the Democrats—who have been predicting such a landslide—would have to put over all except seven of their entries to obtain control of the chamber.

Situation in Suburbs.

The Cook county fights this year come in the outlying districts as usual. They are the 6th, 7th, 11th, 13th, 23d, 25th, and 31st. In the river ward districts bipartisan arrangements always are more frequent than in the residential sections.

The 6th is now represented by two Republicans and one Democrat—Ralph W. Church, Arthur E. Fisher, and Joseph H. Donahue. Church has dropped out in order to run for congress. The Democrats this year have determined to try for two seats instead of the one they sought the last time and the Republicans will nominate two. This district includes Rogers Park and Evanston.

The 7th is the "outer belt," which extends almost around the landward borders of Chicago. It now is represented by two Republicans and one Democrat. They are Mrs. Anna Wilmarth Ickes, Frank E. Foster, and Emmett McGrath. The Republicans again have chosen to nominate two and the Democrats also will nominate two instead of one, as in former primaries.

Other Fights in City.

In the Eleventh or Englewood district each party nominated two in 1930 and the Democrats won two seats. The same scrap is on again this year. In the Thirteenth the Democrats have raised their bid to two seats this year. In the 23d they have done the same. In the 25th it is the 1930 fight of two and two over again. And there is another two and two fight to be staged in the 31st or Lake View district, where the Democrats surprised people by winning two seats the last time.

One downstate district presents a unique contest, since it is the only one in which either party is going after all three of the seats. That is the 10th, consisting of Winnebago and Ogle counties—centering around Rockford—where the Republicans now hold all three places with Leroy M. Green, David Hunter Jr., and Carl O. Nyman. In face of this apparent strength the Democrats have decided to try for only one seat instead of going after two, as they did two years ago.

No Contest in the Eighth.

The Republicans tried for a clean sweep in the 8th, the Lake county district, in 1930, but they elected only two, Richard J. Lyons and William M. Carroll, so this year they have cut down their effort to two. And the Democrats will put up only one, so that there in no November fight in sight there.

In the 22d or Danville district there is a scrap in sight because the Republicans, although winning only one place two years ago, are trying for two now while the Democrats are going after the same number.

The Democratic bid in the Decatur-Lincoln district, the 28th, has been raised to two this year, and this is said to be due to opposition to the activities of Howard L. Doyle in the campaign of Michael L. Igoe for the governorship.

This year's two and two fights in the 32d and 34th districts are repetitions of those of two years ago. And there are two to two fights in all districts from the 44th to the 51st, inclusive.

FARMERS LISTEN TO HORNER LINK DRY LAW, TAXES

La Salle County Hears Relief Theories.

Ottawa, Ill., March 18.—[Special.]—La Salle county turned out a record crowd tonight to greet Judge Henry Horner and other candidates for the Democratic nomination for state offices as they pulled into this city on the home stretch of their two week swing around the downstate campaign circuit. The caravan, reinforced by the presence of Judge Otto Kerner, candidate for attorney general, arrived here shortly after 6 o'clock this evening to find the town ablaze with Horner signs and alive with Horner sentiment.

A delegation of Democratic leaders met the candidates at Princeton, the scene of the afternoon rally, and rode with the caravan into Ottawa. A reception was held and dinner in honor of Judge Horner and his associates at a local hotel, after which the party proceeded to an overflow meeting at the La Salle county courthouse.

Appeals to Farmers.

Horner struck a popular note with his hearers at the outset, when he took up the plight of the Illinois farmer and told what he proposed to do as governor to assist them. He pointed to the disastrous record of the federal farm board as an example of the futility of dealing with such fundamentals as agricultural by theoretical nostrums and stated his view that the state government can do much to relieve the worst of the farmers' burdens.

"The farmers of Illinois," he said, "have been given such a potent measure of federal relief that in many cases they have been relieved of their farms. Those that have managed to keep going are still struggling under many terrific handicaps, not the least of which is an exorbitant state tax.

"The first practical thing that an alert, competent state administration can do for this class of our citizens is to reduce this tax burden not by fanciful juggling of the taxing machinery, but by striking directly at the root of the matter and reducing the whole level of taxes through a drastic reduction in the cost of operating the state government.

"As governor of Illinois I shall see to it that this is done quickly, thoroughly, and impartially."

Attacks Dry Law.

Horner blamed federal prohibition as one of the factors that have helped keep the country's agriculture in its depression.

"Abolish the Volstead act and restore the control of liquor to the states," he said, "and immediately an immense market will be created for grain in the manufacture, under proper legal supervision, of those malt drinks such as beer that prohibition was enacted to prohibit, but which, in fact, are now being illegally and clandestinely manufactured and sold throughout the nation, and at outrageously high prices."

Horner and the other candidates will wind up their downstate campaign tomorrow with an afternoon rally at Aurora, after which the party will return to Chicago after having covered some 37 counties in its 1,800 mile tour.

See Huge Downstate Vote.

All were impressed by the unexpectedly warm reception given them all through the state and freely prophesied a surprisingly large downstate primary vote for the Horner ticket.

"I have met the people of downstate Illinois," said Judge Horner, "and they have met me. I think that I can say, without exaggerating that we took to each other. I feel that the distrusts and animosities that have been artificially engendered between downstate and Chicago and northern Illinois are fading away, and a new trust and confidence created which will bear substantial fruit at the primary."

Rivals Hold Rallies.

Rock Island, Ill., March 18.—[Special.]—Fervor of election campaigns of years ago were recalled here tonight when both Republicans and Democrats held rallies simultaneously, Michael L. Igoe and his companions at the Harper house and Omer N. Custer and his accompanying slate at the Masonic temple.

Mr. Igoe continued his barrage on Cook county tax dodgers and especially attacked the "loop millionaires." He insisted there is ten billion dollars in real estate and 20 billion in personal property unassessed in Cook county. Appearing with Igoe were Scott W. Lucas of Havana, candidate for United States senator, and Truman Snell, candidate for attorney general.

Mr. Custer spoke at the Elks' temple in Moline preceding his rally here. He again declared his belief that a governor has little or nothing to do with the repeal or modification of the dry law. Candidates accompanying Custer and who spoke briefly were C. Wayland Brooks, Chicago, for state treasurer, and Senator Harry G. Wright, for state auditor.

MALONE ASSAILS FOES AS 'TAX SPENDERS' IN SPRINGFIELD RALLY

Springfield, Ill., March 18.—[Special.]—William H. Malone, taxpayers' candidate for governor on the Republican ticket, carried his campaign to the state capital tonight. He spoke at the Elks' club here.

Labelling his four leading opponents as "tax spenders' candidates" Malone declared that the most important issue in the coming primaries is that of taxpayers vs. taxspenders."

"I happen to be the only candidate representing the taxpayers, the only candidate without a political machine. The fact that I have no political machine is the best evidence I can present that I am serving the taxpayers," Malone declared.

ELECT CHICAGOAN GOVERNOR TO END TAX WOE: CERMAK

Warns Women Schools May Close.

Election of a Chicago man as governor was urged yesterday by Mayor Cermak as a way to end the penalizing of Chicago taxpayers for the benefit of the downstaters. The mayor addressed nearly 100 representatives of the major organizations of women in Chicago and Cook county, at a luncheon in the rooms of the Home Arts guild at 62 East Lake street.

Discussing the financial situation of the city and county, Mayor Cermak expressed the opinion that the schools probably would have to be closed. He asserted further that the only effect of nonpayment of taxes by citizens was to increase the ultimate assessment, since the expenses of government must be met, and the taxpayers eventually will provide the funds.

Owe Teachers 30 Millions.

"You have heard a good deal about the possibility of our schools closing," he said. "I am afraid that will actually happen. I see no other alternative. We owe the teachers now approximately thirty million dollars. I would like you to realize that the school board, which governs the school system, is something quite outside the province of mayor of Chicago. The schools are a separate corporation.

9 Holdover Members.

"Nine of the eleven board members are holdovers from the previous administration, and it will be 1933 before this administration will have control there. In 1927, when the previous administration came in, the school expense was $97,000,000 annually. It increased in the next three years to $143,000,000 a year. What good does it do if in the city hall we save $10,000,000 a year when the school board wastes twice as much?

"I am convinced, by the economies we have effected during the time I have been in office, that the cost of government could be cut 60 per cent and just as good service given the public. When I came into office I found that my predecessor had already expended six months' income for the year and I had to make what was left last nine months. Yet I managed to salvage out of that sum $7,000,000. And in the two months of this present year I have already saved $2,900,000 from our operating expenses, yet I maintain we gave to the people of Chicago just as good service as they got before.

"Crime has decreased so much that for 1932 we have scheduled more conventions than any two cities in the country.

"We hope to be able to get our taxing bodies together — the city, county, school board, the parks and so forth, and to come to some agreement that will save Chicago from the morass of official extravagance. When that time comes there will be many homes built, which, in my opinion, will do more than anything else to relieve unemployment."

SHOTGUN ROBBERS GET $173.

Three bandits, carrying sawed-off shotguns, lined up William H. Gausselin, the manager, and three customers, G. L. Dugan, Ray Carrolls, Milford Pfaelzer, and D. G. Marley, in the Mutual Sausage company offices at 3247 West 47th street yesterday and took $173 from their victims' pockets.

PROMISE OFFICE REPAIRS TO AID IN GETTING JOBS

The first tabulation of pledges in the Chicago campaign for the reëmployment of men and money, being conducted in conjunction with similar efforts all over the country by the American Legion, showed a number of promises yesterday from businesses to make immediate expenditures for renovation of their quarters.

The part of the program calling for the hiring of additional men, either on a temporary or permanent basis, has been less successful to date, except in connection with building repairs. Officials of the drive, in which the routine is being handled by the American Legion, announced that similar drives will be started in Evanston, Oak Park and Cicero.

Midwestern headquarters for the national drive by the Legion were opened yesterday in the Stevens hotel. Mark T. McKee, national director, will divide his time hereafter between New York and Chicago.

MANUFACTURERS URGED TO FIGHT SALES TAX PLAN

The Illinois Manufacturers' association yesterday sent a bulletin to its members, urging that they take action to oppose the adoption by congress of the proposed 2¼ per cent sales tax.

The association charges that if once imposed, the tax will become a "permanent and ever-growing form of taxation," and that the provision that the tax be automatically repealed on June 30, 1934, will not prevent its perpetuation.

"The adoption of the tax is contrary to the first and most fundamental rule of government finance," the bulletin states.

BIDS OPENED ON MARSEILLES DAM; LOW IS $497,175

Bids were opened yesterday in the office of Col. Daniel I. Sultan, United States district engineer, for construction of the Marseilles dam, one of the final projects in the Illinois deep waterway system.

The low bid, submitted jointly by Stevens Brothers and the Miller-Hutchinson company of New Orleans, was $497,175. They offered to complete the work in 180 days, which would finish the dam a few days after Oct. 15, set as the deadline for completion of the waterway. The Tully-Costello company, whose bid of $534,837 was fifth low on the list of 29 proposals, offered to finish the work in 198 days.

The Chicago office transmitted its recommendation to Washington yesterday on the award of the contract for dredging 2,000,000 cubic yards of rock and earth from the Marseilles pool. The low bidder on this project required a year to finish the contract, but the war department engineers said that while a 9-foot channel would not be available by fall, navigation in the section will probably be open to barges drawing 5 feet or less.

Two contracts, on which bids will be received March 25, will finish the waterway project. They are for dredging of the Dresden island pool and for construction of a retaining wall at Joliet.

RECORDER AND CORONER RACES PICK UP STEAM

Interest Turns to Other Offices on Ballot.

With the candidate headliners such as those for the state's attorneyship having had the public eye since the opening of the campaign, attention has begun to turn now to those aspirants for local offices which will appear lower down on the primary ballots of April 12.

While those offices sometimes are referred to as "minor" places, candidates for them insist that they are of major importance. They include the office of coroner, county recorder, and the clerkships of three courts, those of the Appellate, Circuit, and Superior courts. This year there also is one vacancy on the county board, created by the resignation of A. J. Cermak since his election as mayor.

Heat in G. O. P. Contests.

Little has been heard yet by the public of the contests for these honors in either party. This is ascribed partly to the outlook for victory for the regular organization candidates on the Democratic side, but among the Republicans some of the battles have begun to show heat.

What the politicians call the biggest two of these jobs—large from the standpoint of patronage as well as of public importance—are held by Democrats. Recorder Clayton F. Smith has absolutely no opposition and therefore is as good as renominated now. And the Democrats think Coroner Frank J. Walsh, elected by the county board to the vacancy, also is certain of renomination, although there are five running against him, one of them, Steven J. Conway, being classified as an Igoe man.

Two Slates in Field.

An incumbent is considered to have an advantage in a race, but, nevertheless, the Republicans are putting on real contests for their party nominations to these places. The Republican lines are broken up, but for these positions as well as most of the rest on the local ticket the contests appear to be chiefly between two slates, one of which is the "harmony ticket" sponsored originally by George F. Harding and now being managed by Robert E. Crowe, and the other is a complete local slate put up by the Deneen group.

There is another almost complete slate backed by the "New Republican party" under the leadership of William C. Scherwat, but the old timers do not count its entries as likely winners.

Hoff and Passmore in Race.

For the Republican nomination for recorder the race appears to be between Harry E. Hoff, Deneen, and John H. Passmore, "harmony." Hoff is a son-in-law of the late Joseph F. Haas, who was recorder for twelve years, during which Hoff served as chief deputy in active charge of the office.

Passmore is a lawyer, but is remembered politically chiefly because he was clerk of the Criminal court for two terms, from 1922 to 1930. But before that he had been in the city law department under a former Republican mayor from 1915 to 1917, and had served as a member of the city council for one term.

Many in Coroner Race.

The Republican race for the post of coroner is said to lie between Dr. Joseph C. Ross, alderman of the 40th ward, who was entered on the "harmony" ticket, and several opponents. Dr. Ross is supported by medical men, including officers of the Chicago Medical society and the Illinois State Medisal society.

But his principal opponent, Dr. Edmund G. Brust, is the chief surgeon of Westlake hospital and holds a major's commission in the army medical service. He now is in his second term as president of the village board of Melrose Park.

Other active candidates for the coroner's office are Dr. William D. McNally, an attaché for twelve years of the office he seeks, serving during that time as toxicologist and physician, and Dr. Benjamin Franklin Croutch, examining physician for the department of the interior, who served in the medical corps during the war, chiefly at the Marine hospital. George R. Katzmann is the NRP entry. Others are Morgan L. Trainor, Albert E. Manley, and Frank George Zelezinski.

Interest in Clerk Races.

There is particular interest in the race for clerk of the Circuit court because of a quick turn that has taken place there. The present clerk, Thomas O. Wallace, former battling alderman and veteran Brundage leader, has twice been elected to the office. He was one of those originally sponsored by the "harmony" movement, but suddenly the "harmony" headquarters announced it had transferred its support to Donald V. Steger, the Deneen entry, a lawyer and formerly an executive of the Steger Piano company. Other entries here are Fred B. Heiser, David M. Walsh and Frank E. Palace.

The Republican contest for the Superior court clerkship has narrowed down more than any other in this group. Jacob D. Allen, executive manager of several Deneen campaigns, here becomes a candidate for public office for the first time. He heads two companies of his own engaged in organization and financing. He has lectured at several universities.

One of the original entrants for this office, Edward Price, has withdrawn and is now an active worker for Allen. That leaves Allen with only one important opponent and that is Ald. William H. Feigenbutz of the 45th ward, throughout his political life a humble follower of the old city hall machine

Two Important Entries.

There are only two entries considered important in the Appellate court clerkship contest. One of them is John T. Dempsey, committeeman from the Thirty-eighth ward, who was one of the fighting supporters of Judge John H. Lyle in the last Republican mayoralty primary and is now the "harmony" candidate for this office. The other is Paul F. Koenig, the Deneen candidate, a lawyer and a veteran of the world war. Other candidates are Stanley M. Herold, George C. Perfater and Joseph S. Kobrzynski.

Apparently there is only one organization candidate for the Cermak vacancy on the county board. That is Wilbur Calhoun Smith, son-in-law of Edward R. Litsinger.

Women Hear Candidates for State's Attorney

Banks, Taxes, Crime Discussed.

For the first time in the primary campaign, seven candidates for state's attorney sat elbow to elbow at a luncheon table in the Woman's City club yesterday and listened to each other present their pleas for nomination. They talked almost two hours, and although none was permitted to engage in personalities, veiled challenges and answers were given frequently.

The speakers were State Senator Thomas J. Courtney, Democratic organization choice; State's Attorney Swanson; Louis P. O'Connell, independent Democrat; Judge Michael Feinberg, Harding-Crowe Republican; Barratt O'Hara, independent Democrat; Municipal Judge Matthew D. Hartigan, independent Democrat; and Municipal Judge John H. Lyle, independent Republican.

Senator Courtney said that the chief reason he is being supported by the Democratic organization is his independent record in the state senate. "I have cast my vote on more than 2,000 roll calls in Springfield," he declared, "and I have no apologies to make for any of those votes. All I am in politics for is my good name, and if elected state's attorney I will make an honest endeavor to enforce the laws. I see an opportunity to put 'backbone' in that office."

Swanson Stands on Record.

Prosecutor Swanson is running on his record, he told the women, and cited outstanding achievements of his administration.

He spoke first of his labors in reducing the number of pending cases on the Criminal court docket during his three years in office then turned to the bail bond situation, terming professional bondsmen "one of the greatest aids to the criminal."

The prosecutor said he had reduced their harmful activities considerably. He told of his success in trapping and imprisoning bombers and spoke of the criticism leveled at him for flying to New Jersey at the request of Gov. Moore to confer on the Lindbergh kidnaping. "I'd go to the ends of the earth if I could help on that case," he told the women amid applause.

On the subject of banks, the prosecutor proposes "to follow the letter of the law, and do my duty despite clamor." Five dishonest bankers are already in the penitentiary, he asserted, and about fifty others are awaiting trial.

"Taxes Paramount Issue."

O'Connell, a former assistant state's attorney, described the collection of taxes and the taxation problem as the paramount issue in the campaign. He started one sentence with the words, "I charge Judge Swanson——" but was quickly stopped by Mrs. Laura Lunde, chairman of the meeting, who reminded him that nothing of a personal nature was permitted in the discussions.

Judge Feinberg, in a speech much like his campaign addresses, referred to State's Attorney Swanson's mention of the banking situation. After the first of the Cook county banks to close had shut its door two years ago, he said, the state's attorney "should have had the breadth of vision to nip dishonest bank operations in the bud."

Mr. O Hara talked almost exclusively of his opposition to capital punishment and named Clarence Darrow as his sponsor. He reminded the women that state suffrage had been obtained for them while he was lieutenant governor.

Judge Hartigan said his experience in every branch of the Municipal court has given him a training for the prosecutorship.

Lyle on Gangster Cases.

Of the three Republicans in the race, Judge Lyle described one as the Deneen candidate [Swanson], another as the Crowe candidate [Feinberg], and referred to himself as the only one without a political boss. He dwelt much on his former activities in holding "public enemies" in high bonds and said that when he went to the Felony court, Capone, "Bugs" Moran, and other hoodlums left town, to return only after he had been transferred to another branch.

"One of the first things I'd do as state's attorney would be to secure the return to bank depositors of most of that $48,000 paid to Crowe's law firm for receivership duties," said Lyle.

Prize for Hoarding Goes to Easton (Pa.) Buyer

Easton, Pa., March 18.—(AP)—Money a century old came to light today when a man made a purchase at a local store, proffering silver coins apparently unused for many years. He gave the dealer half dollars dated 1832, 1836, 1854, 1858, 1872, 1875, 1876, 1877 and two Columbian half dollars of 1893 coinage.

PRIMARY CAMPAIGN NOTES

Following an afternoon meeting at which the organization was perfected, the first regular session of the Illinois Young People's Democratic league, was held last night at the Hotel Sherman. A banquet in the evening, attened by 150 ward leaders and organization members, was addressed by Thomas Courtney, candidate for state's attorney; Robert M. Sweitzer, county clerk, and Frank B. Zintak, candidate for reëlection as Superior court clerk. The organization is sponsoring the regular slate.

County Commissioner William Busse has been chosen chairman of the Deneen organization's campaign committee. Arthur F. Volz of Arlington Heights is chairman of the country towns organization.

Attorney Max Prvyborski, chairman of the Lake county Republicon central committee, has taken charge of the governorship campaign of Attorney General Carlstrom in his county.

Bruce A. Campbell, Democratic candidate for governor, returns to Chicago today after his third week of downstate campaigning.

The Norwegian-American Republican club has announced its indorsement of State's Attorney Swanson, John E. Northup for attorney general; Jacob D. Allen for Superior court clerk, and Harry E. Hoff for county recorder.

More than 350,000 suspect notices were put in the mails at noon yesterday, requiring the recipients to appear at their polling places between 6 p. m. and 9 p. m. tonight to defend their registered places of residence or have their names stricken from the voting lists. Completion of official figures for Tuesday's intermediate registration showed that 352,211 names were added to the poll books, raising the total registered vote to 1,764,346. The largest gain was in the second ward where 22,594 registered.

J. H. Jacobson, one of the sixteen Republican candidates for two nominations for the legislature in the 25th district, says: "The first step for the Republican party to get back to the people is to repeal the Illinois search and seizure act as directed by referendum; the second is to trim the activities and expenses of government."

William S. Finucane, Republican committeeman of the 11th ward, affiliated with the Harding-Emmerson-Custer group, has just been appointed secretary of the state industrial commission. He used to be on the city board of local improvements.

Edwin B. Bederman, Republican state representative from the 25th district, has been indorsed by the Illinois State Teachers' federation.

Tyrrell A. Richardson, Republican candidate for congressman at large in the April primaries has hung out the slogan: "Let the Liberty bell ring again; repeal the 18th amendment."

Mrs. Gertrude H. Campbell, Republican candidate for nomination for the legislature in the 5th [Hyde Park] district, where 19 candidates are contesting, favors the repeal of the Illinois search and seizure act in accordance with the popular referendum of 1930. Miss Josephine Perry, who is seeking reëlection to the house, was one of the five Cook county house members who voted against repeal of the search and seizure act.

G. O. P. GROUP ASKS HOOVER TO QUIT RACE

President Hoover was asked to withdraw as a candidate for reëlection in an open letter sent to him yesterday by the 37th ward Progressive Republican organization, of which Henry W. Pfaff is president. The organization, which is supporting John R. McCabe, former city clerk, for ward committeeman, with the backing of Robert E. Crowe, former state's attorney, said in its letter to Mr. Hoover:

"While it would not be proper to charge up all the ills of the country to the present administration at Washington, yet the great majority of our people here are eagerly waiting for a change in conditions, which fact leads us to believe that if you are the Republican candidate at the next November election, Illinois will go overwhelmingly Democratic.

"May we not suggest that, in the interest of our country and our people and for the good of the Republican party, you withdraw as a candidate for the presidency of the United States, and that you refuse to allow your name to be presented at the coming Republican convention.

May Reopen Small Parks of Lincoln Park System

Plans are under way for the reopening of the six small parks in the Lincoln park system, it was announced yesterday by Supt. H. Otto Weege following a conference with the playground and recreation executives of the system. The small parks have been closed since Feb. 1. "I shall recommend to the commissioners," said Mr. Weege, "that the small parks be opened as soon as possible on a skeleton scale. With utmost economy we can open the field houses and gymnasiums and at least give children a place to play for about $10,000 a month."

9 OF 10 DAKOTA DELEGATES GO TO ROOSEVELT

Hoover Gets Majority of G. O. P. Group.

[Copyright: 1932: By the Associated Press.]

Fargo, N. D., March 18.—(AP)—Late returns from the state primary election tonight strengthened the prospect that Gov. F. D. Roosevelt of New York would control nine of North Dakota's ten delegates to the Democratic national convention.

On the basis of unofficial returns from all but 121 of the 2,235 precincts in Tuesday's balloting, election of eight delegates pledged to support the New Yorker at Chicago in June was assured. A ninth was virtually certain of victory.

The tenth seat was won by George T. Murray, Berthold, N. D., farmer and brother of the Oklahoma governor, W. H. [Alfalfa Bill] Murray. He is pledged to support the Oklahoman, whose state campaign he managed and whom he met recently for the first time in 34 years.

In the contest for the eleven North Dakota votes at the Republican national convention President Hoover was assured of eight pledged to him on returns from all but 93 precincts. A ninth Hoover delegate was maintaining a lead.

One delegate without definite instructions except to support a "Progressive" and not vote for Hoover was elected. Another candidate of the same Republican faction—the Nonpartisan league—held the eleventh position by a fair margin, but election was not certain.

Nearly 80,000 votes were cast in the contest between Roosevelt and Murray in the Democratic presidential preference race, more than six times the highest previous Democratic vote in a presidential primary. Roosevelt won by more than 17,000.

Former Senator J. I. France defeated "Gen." Jacob S. Coxey, mayor of Massillon, O., for the Republican preference.

DE VALERA GIVEN GENTLE WARNING BY GREAT BRITAIN

Plan to Abolish the Oath Creates "Concern."

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 18.—Great Britain tonight issued a warning in connection with threats of Eamon de Valera, new Irish Free State president, to abolish the oath of allegience to the king and to withhold land annuities payable to Great Britain. The warning was contained in a speech by Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, in which he indicated that such proposals would cause the government "the gravest concern."

The British government has received no official communication from the Irish government concerning De Valera's reported intentions, the chancellor declared, and until official confirmation has been received, he assumes the reports are incorrect.

"Would Revive Bitterness."

"But lest there be any doubt as to the attitude of the British government," Chamberlain said, "I would say that in its view, any suggestion that obligations or agreements solemnly entered into by the two countries could be repudiated or varied by either side as though they concerned that side alone, would cause the government the gravest concern, and, if seriously pursued, would undoubtedly revive the bitterness and differences which it was hoped had been removed forever."

The oath of allegience to the British king is provided for in the treaty which established the Irish Free State 10 years ago. The land annuities, which amount to about $15,000,000, are collected under treaty from Free State farmers in repayment of loans which enable them to buy out their landlords. De Valera has contended that the oath was not mandatory and that the annuities were not legally or morally payable to Great Britain.

Gives Warning on Finances.

The British chancellor in his speech also had a word of warning for over optimistic suggestions as to Britain's financial position. He deprecated suggestions from "quarters whose motives are not above suspicion" that the danger has passed and that the need for economy is over and all that remained is to decide how the surplus revenue is to be divided.

No government could hope to repair the damages of years in a few months, he declared, and "it has always been considered unwise to divide the skin of the bear before the animal is killed."

There has been a change for the better since the national government took office, "which has been described as miraculous," he said. But that position, he continued, can only be maintained "if we maintain the course that brought about the determination to pay our way and balance the budget."

Suspend Safety Act.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, March 18. — President Eamon de Valera's executive council tonight suspended the order of the late Cosgrave government making the public safety bill operative. This act established military tribunals with extraordinary powers to maintain law and order. These tribunals will now be dissolved and the ban against the Irish Republican ary [Saor Eire] and the communist [Cumman na Mban] and other societies declared unlawful by the Cosgrave government will be removed. This is the second executive act of De Valera's government, the first being the release of all political prisoners sentenced by the tribunal.

POLITICAL STAG PARTY IN LOOP HALTED BY COPS

Police broke up a stag party on the twenty-fifth floor of the Steuben club, Randolph and Wells streets, last night, dispersed 1,500 men in the hall, and turned away another 500 who sought vainly to crowd in. The affair, operated by the Barton Social club, was said to have been promoted for the benefit of an independent candidate for Circuit judge.

In a room adjoining the hall detectives seized six slot machines and three roulette wheels. They arrested Edward A. Hock, 41 years old, of 3011 Montrose avenue, as the alleged owner of the gambling paraphernalia, and Harry Schapira, 21, of 2232 State street, as operator of the stag. The raid was made before the stag got far under way.

"MILLION DOLLAR FENCE" REWARDS PAL WITH BULLET

Uses Gun to Settle Old Prison Deal.

John Sovetsky, known by police as the "million dollar fence," and George McDonald, a former associate, met last night on a business matter nearly seven years old. Sovetsky ended the discussion by drawing a revolver and shooting McDonald in the hip.

The business matter dates back to 1925 when McDonald was tried at Green Bay, Wis., for burglary, and sentenced to ten years at Waupun prison. Sovetsky was saved from facing Wisconsin justice in that case by Len Small, then governor, and now a candidate for the same office. At that time Gov. Small turned down the pleas of Wisconsin authorities for Sovetsky's extradition.

Loot Is Identified.

Wisconsin asked Sovetsky's extradition after the identification of a quantity of clothing in the fence's depot at 35th street and Wentworth avenue as having been stolen from Wisconsin stores. Small refused to honor the Wisconsin requisition on the ground there was no proof Sovetsky had been in Wisconsin.

Although Sovetsky escaped trial through Small's decision, McDonald did not. He served over six years of the ten year sentence, and was discharged from Waupun last November. Since then he has occasionally visited Sovetsky in the latter's store, known as the Highway Clothing company, at 6234 South Western avenue.

McDonald said the purpose of these visits, including the one last night, was to collect $3,100 which he spent for attorneys at his trial, and which, he asserted, Sovetsky had pledged to repay. Sovetsky's wife, Martha; his daughter, Lillian, and his son, Duney, and two patrons were in the store when the old business matter was discussed last night.

Both Are Arrested.

Accounts of the shooting conflict, Sovetsky said McDonald drew a gun, and that he fired in self-defense. McDonald declared Sovetsky fired upon him without provocation. He denied he was armed. Police could find only Sovetsky's weapon. They arrested both men.

"I took a rap for Sovetsky," said McDonald at the Chicago Lawn station. "Before I went to prison, I myself sold $100,000 worth of stolen stuff to Sovetsky. When I went to trial in Wisconsin and took his rap, he promised to make good my expenses. He hasn't done so, and I'm trying to collect. I spent $3,100, and he owes it to me."

Sovetsky refused to discuss McDonald's charges except to accuse the ex-convict of trying a "shake down."

Twice Sovetsky has been convicted in the Criminal courts of receiving stolen property, and both times he won reversals in the state Supreme court. His last reversal was in April, 1931. In March of that year, he was arrested by police in a raid on a basement at 931 Vernon Park place where $11,000 worth of stolen suits were found.

CURTIS WILL AID IN LAKE COUNTY, IND., G. O. P. RALLIES TODAY

Vice President Charles Curtis is scheduled to arrive in Gary at noon today and pass the remainder of the day assisting the Republican organization in Lake county with rallies.

During the afternoon the Vice President will be a guest at a reception to be held in the Hotel Gary. In the evening a dinner will be held at the community auditorium at Crown Point, and it is expected that 1,000 persons will attend. The price of the dinner tickets is 50 cents each.

Following this dinner the Vice President will deliver a speech. Among those who will be with him during the day are Gov. Harry Leslie of Indiana and Ivan Morgan, the Indiana state G. O. P. chairman. Mr. Curtis will return to Washington tomorrow.

MERCHANTS LOSE $25,000 IN CHECK FRAUD; 1 ARREST

Joseph Fortish, 29 years old, 3735 Douglas boulevard, under arrest at the detective bureau, was identified yesterday as one of two men who revived an old form of confidence game and through it obtained $25,000 in merchandise in the last eight months.

The swindlers' scheme was to order goods of various kinds and send a truckman for them at about 7 o'clock in the morning. The truckman would tender what appeared to be a valid certified check in payment and leave with the merchandise. The firm victimized would discover later that the check and the certification were forgeries.

Among the losers were the Hammond Clock company, 2911 North Western avenue; the Mills Novelty company, 4110 Fullerton avenue, and F. Jacobson & Son, shirt merchants in the Merchandise Mart.

FEDESTRIAN HIT BY AUTO IS DEAD; TOLL IS NOW 234

One automobile death yesterday, in addition to the one in a quarry pond [details elsewhere] increased the 1932 Cook county toll to 234. The victim:

Alfred Ford, 76 years old, 1709 North Richmond street. Died at the Keystone hospital from hurts sustained last Monday when he was struck by the automobile of William Freitag, 2158 North Kilbourn avenue, at the center drive in Humboldt park.

Alb rt Moline, 52 years old, 9552 Yale avenue, a tailor, was probably fatally injured last night when he was struck by a Yellow cab at Clinton street and Jackson boulevard. Herbert L. Holmgren, 5443 West Ohio street, driver of the cab, took him to the county hospital.

CICERO POLICE PROTECT BEER? CHIEF SHOCKED

Orders Strict Inquiry on Discovery.

Police Chief Martin Wojciechowski of Cicero announced yesterday that he planned to make a thorough investigation of his force to determine why a truckload of beer happened to be parked between police squad cars in a garage in Cicero on Thursday night. Prohibition agents under Eliot Ness found the beer in a raid.

ELIOT NESS.

"If necessary I'll call in every policeman on the force to find out how that beer got there," asserted Chief Wojciechowski to the prohibition authorities.

Garage Owners Held.

Paul and Ed Backofen, owners of the garage, which is located at 5025 West 25th street, half a block from the Cicero police station, were arraigned before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker yesterday afternoon. They were released in bonds of $1,000 each and the commissioner set March 25 for another hearing.

Besides fourteen barrels of beer on the truck, the raiding party found six gallons of alcohol at the rear of the garage. Paul Backofen told Commissioner Walker that the alcohol belonged to his brother. "That's a lot of alcohol for one man," said the commissioner. "That's nothing for my brother," asserted Paul. "He drinks half a gallon a day."

Alcohol Also in City Car.

A gallon can of alcohol, "fit for beverage purposes," according to prohibition agents, was also discovered in a car belonging to the Cicero water department.

The raid was staged, Ness reported, just five minutes after the policemen had gone to the police station after flanking the beer truck with their cars. The truck was stored under the name of the Motor Transport company. It bore the name, "Excelsior Paper company." Both names were fictitious.

SWANSON TELLS HOW CHICAGO SMASHED GANGS

Speaks Before Wisconsin Prosecutors.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., March 18.—[Special.]—Gangsters no longer parade the streets of Chicago because a campaign to smash crime has sent many of them to jail or prison, curtailed their revenues and destroyed their morale, John A. Swanson, Cook county's state's attorney, declared at a convention of Wisconsin district attorneys here tonight.

STATE'S ATTORNEY JOHN A. SWANSON.

Mr. Swanson had been scheduled to speak on "politics and crime," but he made no connection between the two subjects in his talk, devoting himself to Chicago's accomplishments in its drive against gangsters.

Outlines War on Crime.

Chicago crime became famous because its criminals adopted unique methods and because Chicago newspaper men have the ability to describe crimes and criminals with a vividness usually held only by the novelist, the state's attorney said. He added that Chicago has had no more crime than any other metropolitan city.

Mr. Swanson outlined the campaign against gangsters that enlisted the aid of the federal government.

"Let me say to you one of the most striking blows to gangsters is to cut down on their revenues," he said. "Destroy their revenues and you destroy the gangs."

Praises Help of Press.

The prosecutor explained that a drive on slot machines may seem unimportant, but when they are operated by organized gangs, these and other sources of revenue for the gang must be eliminated.

Chicago newspapers gave considerable aid in the drive on the gangsters, the speaker said, when they spoke sarcastically about them.

Various statements now are being made in the political campaigns waged in Cook county with the results that defendants claim they cannot get a fair trial and in many cases the judges agree with them, Mr. Swanson declared. He said that this temporarily delays disposal of cases.

"I am not apologizing for our great city," he said. "In spite of its detractors it houses the finest citizens on earth."

He invited the district attorneys to attend the Chicago World's Fair to see for themselves what Chicago has accomplished.

DELICATESSEN OWNER IS ROBBED.

Two youthful bandits, armed with pistols, entered the delicatessen of Samuel Arron and wife, Sophia, at 2808 Roosevelt road, late Thursday night, and robbed them of $161 and nine cartons of cigarets.

JURY GETS NEW EARFUL OF CODE LOVE LETTERS

S. S., It Seems, Means "Sweet Sugar."

A crowd of amateur cryptographers jammed Judge H. S. Pomeroy's courtroom yesterday to hear more of the love letters in cipher written by Warren T. Davies, president of the Davies Laundry company, to another man's wife. Davies is being sued for $75,000 by Robert Stevens, a Decatur, Ill., farmer, for alienation of his wife's affections.

W. T. DAVIES.

As the letters were read to the jury the listeners tried to determine what the numerous initials in the missives meant. They decided that D. D., the term which Davies used in referring to himself, might mean "darling daddy" or "duckums Davy"; that S. S. meant "sweet sugar" or "snookie snookums"; that B. G. meant "baby girl." Other initials baffled the hearers.

Mr. Davies himself was approached on the subject. In answer to a query as to the meaning of the initials, he turned a sad, reproachful gaze upon he inquirer. Mr. Davies is not enjoying the trial.

"Just a Country Girl."

Ruth, the former wife of Steven, who is the woman whose affections are deemed worth $75,000 to her first husband, was described yesterday by Steven as "just a simple, wholesome country girl till she was taken up by Davies' fast crowd and had her head turned."

After she divorced the Decatur farmer to marry the rich city man, Davies, Ruth later divorced Davies and married William Repson, a Reno, Nev., business man. It was revealed yesterday that Ruth has now divorced Repson. Whether she has married again since then could not be learned.

Why Jurors Are Puzzled.

One of the letters read to the jury yesterday was as follows:

"Hello, Ruth, my d rling B. G. Got one of those B. E.'s from my B. G. Unpacked your box of things myself and tried to imagine my S. S. was in the pink negligee. I could have kissed the W. U. messenger boy when he brought your D. D. a message from his B. G. You have told me how much your W. E.'s meant to you, but your B. E.'s mean as much to me.

"I am hungry for your arms, my wonderful B. G. I want to be with you and give you a lot of 2's. Bet you can't guess what I mean.

"Your loving Warren."

Another letter read:

"Your D. D. has certainly been lonesome for his B. G. today and he keeps trying to imagine what it will be like three weeks from today when we will be together. Do you remember our last Sunday together? I will never forget it, either.

And More of the Same.

"While I enjoy sending W. E.'s to my B. G., it sure is going to be wonderful when I can meet my B. G. in Chi. Take good care of yourself, darling, and don't let your D. D. in F. hurt you. How I'd like to give my B. G. a lot of sweet 2's right now."

The defense placed several witnesses on the stand yesterday. One of them was Mrs. Irma Owens, formerly of Decatur, who testified that the then Mrs. Steven was unhappy in her married life before she met Davies. She declared that Mrs. Steven was cold to her husband.

A RICH BOOTLEGGER WILL BROADCAST INS AND OUTS OF RACKET

Cleveland, O., March 18.—[Special.]—A Cleveland bootlegger who has made a fortune since the advent of prohibition, is going to be interviewed publicly in a broadcast tomorrow night on the ins and outs of his racket.

"He's going to explain the difference between cut and uncut liquor; all about running booze in from foreign shores; the hazards of hi-jacking and something of muscle men," Fred Borgerhoff of WGAR, who is going to do the questioning, revealed tonight.

And Borgerhoff threw a little tip to police and federal officers that any time spent haunting the studio to learn the name of this prospcrous and prominent defier of the law will be wasted.

His identity will not be known even at the radio station, for he and Borgerhoff have arranged a rendezvous apart and will transmit their talk from a remote location.

NO DIVORCE ON DRINKING CHARGE IF BOTH IMBIBE

A wife who drinks cannot secure a divorce on charges of drunkenness, Circuit Judge Craig A. Hood ruled yesterday. The judge dismissed a charge of habitual drunkenness in the divorce bill of Mrs. Constance Weber, 30 years old, 1055 Granville avenue, against Henry F. Weber, 6101 Sheridan road, an official of the Link Belt company.

Mrs. Weber also accused her husband of cruelty and adultery, naming Miss Mildred Debell, 5200 Sheridan road. At the hearing Thursday Mrs. Weber declared she was warned of trouble with a dark haired girl by a friend whose claim to psychic powers was substantiated, she said, when a queen of spades was turned up as Mrs. Weber's fortune was being told. In a cross bill Weber charged his wife with drunkenness.

"The only charge you will have to prove is adultery," the judge told Mrs. Weber. "I am dismissing the drunkenness and cruelty charges. It seems the drunkenness was equally divided. Weber showed no extreme cruelty, although sometimes he was so aggravated that he struck his wife."

The judge continued the case until April 6 so that the Webers might adjust property rights after witnesses testified to seeing Weber in the company of Miss Debell. The judge suggested that the Webers adjust their dispute and become reconciled.

When you count your money in advance

Don't forget the dentist. Particularly if you have not been protecting your teeth against pyorrhea

So much for rent, for food, for clothes, for recreation. Perhaps you had better count out something for the dentist, too. Your teeth are in perfect condition, you say. That's fine, if you're sure. Perhaps you had better see your dentist twice a year anyway. Then you will be sure.

Do you know that half the adult teeth lost are due to pyorrhea? Do you know that pyorrhea may be undermining your teeth for five or ten years, even longer, and you may not realize it? Do you know that four out of five people past the age of forty are finally forced to realize the presence of pyorrhea—when it starts to take their teeth? All facts, nevertheless.

Why not face this pyorrhea business frankly? There is no use in putting off the dentist until you think you need him. Visit him twice a year and make a point of it. That is prevention—and sensible prevention, too. There is no use in making believe that white, shining, "clean" teeth are either safe or sound. Nobody believes that any more. The gums must be considered as well. Forhan's Toothpaste is the double-duty toothpaste that does both halves of the job. Originated by Dr. R. J. Forhan, for 26 years a pyorrhea specialist. Save pain, expense and humiliation. Start the whole family today with the big brown tube of Forhan's. All druggists.

LOESCH FIGHTS FOR WILKERSON; RAPS RICHBERG

Reveal Record of Lawyer Opposing Judge.

Frank J. Loesch, 80 years old, president of the Chicago Crime commission, who was appointed by President Hoover to the national law enforcement commission, was preparing a message to the United States senate yesterday on the subject of underworld and gangster opposition to the promotion of Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

In his support of Judge Wilkerson Mr. Loesch is pitted against Attorney Donald R. Richberg, who berated THE TRIBUNE for voicing approval of Judge Wilkerson. Yesterday Mr. Loesch said he is proud to be linked with THE TRIBUNE in upholding the jurist who demoralized Chicago gangsters by sentencing of Al Capone, Terry Druggan, and others to prison.

Borah Asks for Statement.

Mr. Loesch said he was called upon by Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho] to furnish the basis of his statement that the underworld is working against the confirmation of Judge Wilkerson. A senate committee is considering President Hoover's appointment of Judge Wilkerson to the higher court.

Attorney Charles P. Megan, president of the Chicago Bar association, which sent a committee to Washington to bespeak the good character and judicial fitness of Judge Wilkerson and to praise the judge's record, said the bar association, too, is preparing other data for the committee. This, however, will concern only Judge Wilkerson's appointment of former Attorney General Edward J. Brundage as receiver for a railroad, Mr. Megan said.

The point at issue in which Mr. Loesch and Mr. Richberg have divergent views will be dismissed without comment by the bar association, Mr. Megan stated. Mr. Loesch said he will cover this subject fully, having the archives of the crime commission and of the Wickersham commission at his hand.

Cite Records of Unions.

Crime commission officials say there are plenty of data at hand showing how the criminal element which dominated some labor unions before prohibition became the nucleus of the great crime oligarchy built by Capone, public enemy No. 1, who is in jail awaiting the carrying out of Judge Wilkerson's sentence of 11 years in prison. In these records there are many mentions of the names of "Big Tim" Murphy, Freddy [Frenchy] Mader, "Dapper Dan" McCarthy and others from the days when they controlled the Building Trades council, the commission officials stated, to the present control of numerous unions by Capone or his aids who are still out of jail.

Mr. Loesch and his assistants pointed to George [Red] Barker, "Three Finger Jack" White, present day allies of Capone, ranged with Attorney Richberg on the side of the Wilkerson opposition.

The Employers' association files showing the depredations of Capone gangsters will also furnish material with which to confute Attorney Richberg, it was pointed out at the crime commission offices. Richberg's counter attack on THE TRIBUNE for its commendation of Judge Wilkerson is just plain laughable, Mr. Loesch said.

Attorney Richberg's fight on Judge Wilkerson caused the spotlight to be turned on Richberg's history yesterday. At the city hall it was said Richberg is best remembered as the attorney who made a fortune out of the public treasury by litigation against the gas company. He was employed by the city council committee on gas under the administration of previous mayors. The records show this litigation lasted ten years and the city was eventually the loser. The cost to the city was more than $280,000, of which Richberg drew $121,000 in fees and his expert assistant drew approximately $350,000.

The city council passed an ordinance in 1911 fixing the price of gas at 75 cents per thousand cubic feet for the first year, 70 cents the second and third years, and 68 cents for the fourth and fifth years. The rate at the time was 80 cents. The company refused to comply with the ordinance and obtained an injunction. Richberg was employed by the aldermen.

From then on there was turmoil over Richberg's job. His fees kept mounting. Many efforts were made to dislodge him from the pay roll but he had his aldermanic backers. On numerous occasions, when the litigation was in progress, Richberg would threaten to quit. The aldermen were advised by him that the chances of the recovery of $10,000,000 collected by the company were good and a new appropriation would be voted for Richberg.

City's Case Is Lost.

Instead of remaining at 80 cents the gas rate went to 90 cents. After ten years the Illinois Supreme court decided against the city and Richberg's connection with the city terminated. Concerning Attorney Richberg's handling of the lawsuit, the then corporation counsel, Samuel Ettelson, said:

"Gas litigation since 1912 has cost the city $680,000. Mr. Richberg has drawn $121,000 in fees and his appointee, E. W. Bemis, approximately $350,000. The results are nil. The whole thing has been a huge farce."

Richberg first came into view in 1911 when he appeared before a senate committee in Washington where he spoke on the subject of corporations violating interstate commerce laws. Later he became an assistant state's attorney and from 1917 to 1927 he was the city's lawyer in the unsuccessful effort to cut the rate charged for gas and to recover $10,000,000 for the gas consumers. In 1915 he ran for judge of the Circuit court and was defeated.

Represented Shopmen's Union.

In 1922 he represented the railroad shopmen's union in an effort to have Judge Wilkerson's injunction set aside.

Concerning Richberg, the American Vigilant Intelligence Federation says:

"Richberg is a contributor to the radical weekly, 'The New Republic,' 'The Outlook,' and is the author of several books. According to the Daily Worker, official organ of the Workers [communist] party of America, of Dec. 7, 1927, Richberg was counsel for the communistic brotherhood of sleeping car porters. This report states in part: 'Threat of a strike would bring the emergency in which the federal rail board could act beyond its present limitations, believe the union officials and counsel, Donald Richberg and Henry Hunt.'

"From this it is apparent that Richberg and Hunt, an old American civil liberties union attorney, were aiding the Pullman porters, then led by the colored communist, A. Philip Randolph, editor of the 'Messenger.' Richberg was also one of the speakers at the annual meeting of the American Association of Labor Legislation held in St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 28-30, 1926. This organization is socialistic in character, having for its objective the sponsoring of socialistic legislation to place government control in the hands of the workers. Richberg is a thorough going pacifist."

PRUSSIA'S RAIDS AGAINST HITLER MAY FIZZLE OUT

Germans Doubt Revolt Plot Was Found.

BERLIN, March 18.—(AP)—People were beginning to doubt tonight that yesterday's dramatic raids on 170 National Socialist [Fascist] meeting places in Prussia and elsewhere would result in the sensational revelations which some had expected.

Adolf Hitler himself said he had been expecting something like this for a long time and it was hardly likely that any really important party documents would be left around where a surprise raid would seize them.

Nazi Bring Suit.

Gen. Wilhelm Groener, the minister of the interior, issued a guarded statement tonight to the effect that reports about Hitler's mobilization plans were old news to him but that he would examine all the seized documents nevertheless.

Some of the administration newspapers expressed doubt of the tactical value of the raids. The Boersen Courier said it had been handled wrong. Meanwhile the Nazi headquarters started court proceedings to test the legality of the raids.

Hitler's formal protest against the raids was made to Gen. Groener tonight by Hermann Goering, a member of the reichstag. The Nazi leader protested on the ground that the raids were intended to spike the Nazi guns in the coming campaign for the election of members to the Prussian diet.

Examine Tons of Documents.

Gen. Groener informed him that he did not share in the alarm felt elsewhere about the affair, Goering said, and would carefully investigate all the evidence before him.

Meanwhile, police investigators were going over tons of documents seized in the raids.

The police will make no charges against persons found to be involved in the alleged plot until all the seized documents have been examined.

SANITARY BOARD HOPES TO RESUME $10,000,000 WORK

Resumption of work on at least some of the sanitary district's projects appeared likely yesterday when President Thomas J. Bowler announced that two large contractors had agreed to accept tax anticipation warrants for money due. He said that if similar negotiations with six other contractors are successful there will be work for more than 500 men on the $10,000,000 worth of work now in process of construction.

The Ryan company and the W. J. Newman company have agreed to take the total of $396,000 in warrants, according to Bowler. The understanding is that work will be resumed on those contracts as soon as the deal is completed, he said. District work has been at a standstill since Dec. 1.

August Koch, West Parks Florist, Is Dinner Guest

August Koch, chief florist of the west parks system, was given a testimonial dinner last night in the Midwest Athletic club on the 20th anniversary of his employment by the park system. He was presented with an engraved gold plate. Mr. Koch has developed widely recognized hybrid water lilies and new strains of chrysanthemum in the park system.

SARGENT GROUP READY TO PROVE ECONOMY NEED

Gets Figures on Taxes Asked and Received.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Apparently the committee on public expenditures is preparing to prove to those tax spending officials who will recognize facts that the cost of local government must be cut to the ability of the public to pay.

This committee, headed by Fred W. Sargent, president of the North Western railroad, has asked for and received from County Auditor Lee J. Howard the tax extensions and collections of the last two years. The data covers an elaborate table.

What Schools Asked For.

It shows that the schools asked for $85,844,989 from the 1928 taxes and then $75,367,775 from the 1929 taxes. The tabulation shows that only $45,786,462 of the 1928 taxes were collected and only $50,666,797 of the 1929 taxes were collected.

In the board's $90,180,263 budget for 1932, it is attempting to get more than $80,000,000 out of the property owners. The board was informed by civic leaders before this budget was passed that the board could not reasonably expect more than $55,000,000 in taxes, but that did not deter the trustees.

The Howard tabulation shows that the city levied $63,875,608 on the 1928 taxes and then hopped up to $73,520,527 on the 1929 taxes. While official figures from the county clerk have not yet been reckoned on the 1930 taxes, the city's demand will be approximately $92,449,524.

Tell Demands of County.

The county government in the 1928 taxes asked $19,963,315 and then actually slid down to $19,825,175 in the 1929 taxes. For 1930, however, the taxes now in collection, the county will demand about $21,217,921.

The south park system, another spender, asked $9,768,136 in taxes from the 1928 levy, then $11,025,235 on the 1929 taxes, and is now asking about $13,602,054 on the 1930 taxes.

The collections for the school board were about the same percentage as for the other tax spending bodies. Accountants have been busy for more than a week correlating and analyzing the material collected, and next week the Sargent committee is expected to make some pertinent observations.

A. of C. Indorses Drive.

The executive committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce voted its indorsement yesterday of the drive to curb governmental expenses. Later President Rossetter of the association said:

"The resumption of prosperity in Chicago must depend in great measure on the fashion in which our local governments balance their budgets and restore credit. No matter what the upward trend in national economic affairs may be, Chicago is going to be affected by any continuation of our municipal financial difficulties.

Must Adopt Precautions.

"In voting to back Mr. Sargent and those other constructively minded citizens who are tackling the big job of bringing government back to a normal spending basis, we do so feeling that the resumption of the tax payments as well as the reduction in taxes, the elimination of the present growing gap between the public and its elected officials and the stabilization of property values are all dependent primarily upon the adoption of precautions that will henceforth prevent our tax spenders from framing budgets in excess of prospective tax collections."

The nature of these precautions to stop the local governments from appropriating more than they can get in, are to be worked out by the Sargent committee. The announcement of its program is awaiting the collection of detailed information on what the governments have spent and propose to spend.

SEXTON VIEWS HOUSE BILL AS TAX OBSTACLE

City Controller Szymczak was advised yesterday by Corporation Counsel Sexton that it is the latter's belief that House Bill No. 278, pending before the special session of the legislature, is just another obstacle in the way of prompt collection of taxes and would be of little or no benefit to Chicago.

The bill provides for an informal hearing before the county court on the certifications of money needed by the various municipalities after the levies have been filed with the county clerk. Citizens could appear before the court to object to the levies. If objections were upheld the municipalities would be given an opportunity to revise the levies.

Mr. Sexton pointed out that the proceeding would delay the sale of tax anticipation warrants by the municipalities until the county court proceedings were completed.

Rothschild Store to Take School Warrants on Debt

The Maurice L. Rothschild store announced yesterday that it will accept school tax warrants from school employés in payment of their past due accounts. Because the store is already holding a large amount of school board script, as well as unpaid tax warrants of other local governments, the school tax warrants can be accepted only when they do not exceed the amount of the account due. For the same reasons, store executives said, the warrants cannot be accepted in payment for cash purchases or as a basis for new charge accounts.

Girl Tries Kerosene on Kitchen Fire; Burns Fatal

Miss Anna Hritz, 21 years old, was fatally burned yesterday when she attempted to force a fire in the kitchen stove at her home, 3398 Rhode Island street, Gary, with kerosene. Her clothing was ignited by the flames. Members of the family heard her screams and put out the fire, but she died two hours later at the Mercy hospital in Gary. Her sister, Helen, 17 years old, suffered burns on the face and arms when she went to the assistance of Miss Hritz.

HEAD OF TAXPAYERS' GROUP REPLIES TO CHARGE BY CERMAK

John M. Pratt, executive director of the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers, yesterday replied to the charge of Mayor Cermak that 50 per cent of the directors of an organization that is advising people not to pay their real estate taxes have not themselves paid any personal property taxes.

In a letter to the mayor, Mr. Pratt pointed out that the executive committee of his organization pays close to $2,000,000 a year in real estate taxes.

"Their personal property bills won't amount to more than $15,000 when they get them," said Mr. Pratt. "Whether they pay such little bills or not amounts to nothing. When a proper assessment, according to law, is made, the members of the executive committee will pay their bills promptly and their payments will amount to something."

The mayor's charge was made at a recent meeting of the city council finance committee.

MARY MOONEY PLEADS FOR SON AT MASSMEETING

Mary Mooney, 84 years old, mother of Thomas Mooney, California labor leader, serving a term of life imprisonment for the preparedness parade bombing in San Francisco on June 22, 1916, protested the innocence of her son before 4,000 persons in a mass-meeting at the Coliseum last night. She asked their support in the fight for his release.

There was no disturbance at the meeting. Special details of police were ordered to preserve quiet by Commissioner Allman. Two communist parades preceded the meeting, one starting from 33d street and Wabash avenue and the other from Canal street and Roosevelt road. Police were posted along the line of march.

The meeting was also addressed by Mrs. Viola Montgomery, mother of one of the nine Negroes under sentence of death at Scottsboro, Ala., for the rape of a white girl. Resolutions demanding the freedom of Mooney and the nine Negroes were telegraphed to the governors of California and Alabama.

South Carolina Assembly Gets Dry Repeal Resolution

NURSING DEAN UNDER FIRE AT COUNTY SESSION

Several Demand Removal of Laura Logan.

Demands that Miss Laura R. Logan be dismissed as dean of nurses at the Cook County School of Nursing were made by several county commissioners yesterday at a meeting called to air charges that the management of the nursing school is in inefficient hands.

Due to a misunderstanding, members of the board of directors of the nursing school were not present. They received notices of the meeting too late to attend, Mrs. Glenn E. Plumb, one of the commissioners, announced. The commissioners, therefore, adopted a resolution calling upon the directors to meet with staff physicians at the county hospital and agree upon a report specifying what, if anything, is wrong with the school.

Calls Miss Logan "Czar."

Commissioner Charles H. Weber declared that Miss Logan had adopted "czarist tactics" in her management of the school. County hospital staff physicians made the same charge a week ago, declaring that the dean would not coöperate with the doctors at the hospital and had "destroyed her usefulness" to the school.

Commissioner Weber also declared that Miss Logan had circulated a petition among the nurses at the school insisting that she be retained as dean. All nurses who refused to sign the petition were to be discharged by the dean, the commissioner charged.

Wants All from County.

Weber also introduced a resolution, which was adopted, calling for the submission of a list of names of all nurses and their residences. He will insist, he told members of the board, that only Cook county residents be accepted as nurses. At present, it is said, a large percentage of the nurses come from other states.

Unofficially, several members of the board of directors of the school are said to have declared themselves in favor of dismissing Miss Logan. The problem first arose when Miss Logan's purchase with county funds of $50 love seats and other items of furniture was revealed some months ago.

BOY LIVES SIX MONTHS IN RESPIRATOR; LOSES FIGHT AGAINST DEATH

Syracuse, N. Y., March 18.—(AP)—Clarence Hastings, known here as "the gamest kid in America," died today after a struggle of 177 days against infantile paralysis.

The disease, attacking him last September, paralyzed his respiratory organs so that the only way of keeping him alive was by placing him in a hospital respirator. He had remained there since with only his head free, but always with a smile for his attendants and visitors.

Last Tuesday another handicap was added, for the doctors had to operate on him for an abdominal obstruction. It was a life or death matter. He amazed them and his nurses even after that by his will to win. This morning he said to a nurse:

"Please shut off the machines. They're making too much noise."

Then he died.

CUT PRE-MEDIC COURSE U. OF C. TO THREE YEARS

Revision of requirements for admission to the University of Chicago medical school, under which a student may begin the actual practice of medicine eight years after he enters college instead of nine years, as heretofore, was announced yesterday by Dr. B. C. H. Harvey, dean of students of the university's division of biological sciences.

The major change is that a bachelor's degree, awarded after a four year college course, is no longer necessary for admission to the four year medical course. Providing students have the requisite premedical training, they may enter the medical school at the end of three years' college work. After the four year medical course the student must serve one year's interneship in a designated hospital before he is licensed to practice. Most medical schools require only two years' college work for admission.

The revised requirements, which will apply beginning this summer, will give the university added flexibility in the choice of its medical students, Dr. Harvey said. Last year there were 675 qualified applicants for the 110 places available in the first year medical class.

HELD IN $8,000 ROBBERY.

Clements Smith, 27 years old, was held by the Michigan City police yesterday as the man who planned a robbery in which $8,000, their life savings, was taken from Mr. and Mrs. Fred Michaels at their home in that city on Sunday night. At the home of Smith's sweetheart police recovered $5,000.

MOVES TO SHUT "PORK BARREL" NAVAL STATIONS

House Committee Hopes to Save Millions.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 18.—[Special.]—Once again the question of closing or curtailing activities at "pork barrel" navy yards and stations has come to the fore. It became known today that the house subcommittee handling navy department appropriations has called upon the navy department for all available data showing what savings could be effected through the placing of certain shore properties on an inoperative status.

In the belief that constant agitation for federal savings eventually will result in the curtailment of certain of the activities of the navy's huge 400 million dollar shore establishment, a new study of the navy's shore properties has been ordered. The navy general board is expected to begin hearings shortly at which each shore station or base will be studied with an eye to the preparation of a report showing which properties can be spared easiest.

President Ignore Suggestions.

Numerous studies of the navy's shore establishment have been made in the past, but all efforts to limit encroachments of the navy shore have been frustrated by congressmen from the affected districts. The navy department last October recommended the curtailing of activities in excess of twenty shore stations as an economy move, but President Hoover and the budget bureau ignored the suggestion and included funds for their maintenance in the budget sent to congress.

The October navy report suggested the closing down of the Boston and Charleston, S. C., navy yards, the Newport naval training station, the navy hospital at Charleston and numerous radio stations. Such a storm of political protest developed that the navy was forced to make cuts in other activities to save the pork.

Now it develops that the navy subcommittee, headed by Representative A. W. Ayers [Dem., Kas.], and including Representative Burton L. French [Rep., Ida.], another interior naval expert, is in the hands of men representing districts which have little or no naval port.

Shore Station Problem.

This subcommittee, seeking a way to trim 10 per cent from the navy's 343 million dollar appropriation bill, recently began to delve into the shore station problem.

Just what the outcome of their explorations will be still is problematical. Opposition to the closing of the Boston and Charleston yards already has come from Massachusetts and South Carolina. It seems hardly probable that the head of this committee will brave the wrath of his party leaders by trimming naval pork from districts likely to be fruitful of Democratic votes this fall.

During the next few days the committee will have before it facts and figures showing what would be the immediate savings derived from placing certain stations on an inoperative status. It is possible the committee will direct that the navy department be directed to make a certain percentage savings in its shore establishment.

103 Millions for Fleet.

At the present time the navy is spending virtually as much for its shore establishment as for its activities afloat. Last year $80,000,000 was allocated for shore stations, while 103 millions was set aside for the fleet.

Although no definite figures ever have been prepared, it seems apparent that many millions could be saved if the surplus shore properties were eliminated.

Death Sentence for Rapist Upheld by Indiana Court

The Indiana Supreme court yesterday affirmed the death sentence imposed on Ulysses Mack, giant Gary Negro, who in 1929 killed Josephine Odoriczi, 16 year old Gary school girl, after he had raped and robbed her. Mack, who is in a death cell in the Michigan City penitentiary, was granted a stay of execution until July 1 that his attorneys might seek a rehearing of his appeal.

GAS CO. OFFICIAL PREDICTS BOOST IN USE OF GAS

The 6 per cent reduction in the charge for cooking gas, made when the new mixture of manufactured and natural gas was put into the mains, was the result of an estimate of future gas consumption, James I. Griffiths, assistant secretary-treasurer of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, testified yesterday before the Illinois commerce commission.

Under the examination of Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph Grossman, Griffith predicted that gas consumption would increase 30 per cent in 1933, as compared with this year, and that gas consumption would show an increase of 12 per cent from 1930 to 1932, inclusive.

In reply to Grossman, he said that the rates would be subject to recalculation should these estimates prove wrong. The hearing was continued to March 29, when further records of gas costs will be submitted.

Why Pierce-Arrow

TWELVES

are America's Finest

priced as low as $3650 at Buffalo

THE HOURS of hand workmanship that go into these new Pierce-Arrow Twelves would be exceptional even in most of the more famous foreign cars.

The materials used are the finest that search can yield. Tons of steel and thousands of feet of body timber that would ordinarily be considered good enough for any car are rejected automatically each month by the rigorous specification requirements of the Pierce-Arrow Twelves.

Yet, because Pierce-Arrow this year is buying its premium materials for less than in previous years, savings that scarcely seem possible are being passed on to the public in these incomparable creations.

You have only to see and drive a Pierce-Arrow Twelve to know that it has no competition in appearance or performance. Cold figures tell you there is no competing with its value!

Where hand-craftsmanship still endures

Fine precision operations were originated, for the most part—where motor cars are concerned—in the Pierce Arrow plants at Buffalo, N. Y. For example: .0015 of an inch is the maximum allowance for backlash in the rear axle gears and pinions of Pierce-Arrow—indicating a degree of gear accuracy that is rare in automotive engineering.

SWEET PICKINGS FOR PAY ROLLERS IN OLD NEW YORK

First Rumbles of Public Revolt Heard.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 18.—[Special.]—There has been a lot of talk about reducing municipal extravagance in New York City, but today nothing has been done about it except to "postpone" some of the improvement programs. This curtailment of city work has hit the people who usually get hit—the workers—but it has not bounced any politician from the pay roll nor pinched a single officeholder in his well stuffed pocketbook.

There are cities where the citizens become aroused over municipal scandals or extravagance involving no more than $100,000, but here in New York, where millions of dollars are wasted, the average taxpayer takes it on the chin with a fatuous grin. He has grown to expect a beating and often is heard to remark:

"If the fellows in office now didn't get it, those who succeeded them would."

First Signs of Protest.

There is, however, a concerted effort under way on the part of leaders in the city's business and civic life to scotch this false logic and put an end to the enormous wastage of the taxpayers' money before the crash comes.

Today, according to the official directory, there are 148,557 city employés. This number does not include purely temporary or emergency workers such as election inspectors, tax clerks at collection time, snow removal workers or vacation relief workers.

The city departments, in order of size, are: Education, 46,500; police, 19,725; sanitation, 14,950; hospitals, 13,200; fire, 7,717.

On the basis of the city's 1930 population there is a city employé for every 46 men, women, and children; the equivalent of one employé to every ten families.

City Pays One Out of 13.

The army of city employés becomes even more staggering in size when it is compared to the working population of the city. The 1930 census shows 3,187,626 persons ten years old or over gainfully occupied or capable of being so occupied. A conservative estimate would have 2,000,000 of this group at work. On that basis one out of 13 is drawing his pay from the city.

The following survey of various city departments shows where a lot of the money paid in by property owners in the form of taxes is going in great fistfuls:

City commissioners are getting a minimum of $12,000 a year and frequently much more. Deputy commissioners average approximately $10,000. All are politicians, many of whom let trained civil service subordinates do the work while they collect the fat checks and run private businesses.

Secretaries get from $5,000 to $7,500. Scores of stenographers receive from $4,000 to $5,000.

Expensive Autos Provided.

There are 120 expensive limousines provided for officials. Sometimes a day and night chauffeur is provided. Mechanics, on the city pay roll, keep these cars in order.

The department of sanitation provides a striking example of political extravagance. The department is only two years old and was formed to combine the street cleaning and sewage disposal units of the five boroughs. Before the combination in 1930 these functions cost the entire city $1,993,000. Now they cost $3,051,000, a jump of 53 per cent.

Here is the reason why a merger increased expenses. Instead of naming one head to run the consolidated departments a lot of fat political jobs were created. These dignitaries and high powered aids run the department of sanitation:

Chairman, $22,500; two commissioners at $17,500 each; assistant chairman, $12,000. Commissioner of borough treatment plants, $12,000; four deputy commissioners at $8,000; two at $7,000; secretary, $7,500; assistant secretary, $5,000; assistant to assistant secretary, $4,000; three stenographers, $4,000 each; law clerk, $5,500, and flunkies, chauffeurs, and mechanics.

General Public Awakening.

New York's municipal merry-go-round offers a great ride and the taxpayers are growing dizzy merely from watching the whirl of the Tammany career men.

A large percentage of New York's population owns no property and smugly holds the idea that it pays no taxes. These people are beginning to realize that indirectly they pay as much as the apartment and store owners. A percentage of every dollar they spend finds its way into the politicians' hands. They pay through increased rentals and higher living expenses, and some of them are getting wise. When a sufficient number open their eyes something may be done about this city's municipal extravagance.

VIOLIN MAKER LOSES FAITH IN WIFE AS SEER

Hjalmar Schneider, 66 years old, 7 Le Moyne parkway, Oak Park, a violin maker, has lost his faith in spiritualism and card reading since he married Mrs. Augusta Schneider, an adept at both arts, he told Judge Joseph Graber yesterday in the Court of Domestic Relations. His wife had accused him of nonsupport.

"I met this lady at a spiritualist meeting," Schneider told Judge Graber. "She said she was a seer and healer. We were married three weeks later.

"The evening of our first wedding anniversary I took her home a wrist watch and a big box of candy and gave her every cent we had, $564, to keep. The next day when I returned home she was gone, and the money was gone, and all the furniture that I was buying on time was gone.

When Mrs. Schneider evaded Judge Graber's question as to how much her earnings were as a spiritualist, he refused to enter an order requiring her husband to support her.

STARVES SELF

[Acme Photo.]

Washington, D. C., March 18.—(AP)—Unless somebody gives him a suitable job Dr. Fred T. Wolters, 57 year old scholar, maintains he will starve himself to death in protest.

To prove that he means business, Wolters has eaten but one peanut, which he said he picked up in a store, since beginning to fast on Feb. 28. To avoid being clapped in an asylum the scholar took the precaution of having himself declared sane by alienists before announcing the hunger strike. They did. But pronounced him abnormal in some respects.

Wolters was on the library of congress staff once but resigned in 1926 because other employés were promoted over his head. He has tried unsuccessfully since then to be reinstated.

COUPLE HELD UP AT STOP LIGHT; ROBBED OF GEMS

A red stop light helped to enrich a young bandit by more than $3,500 late last night. The losers were George H. Weiner of 3740 Sheridan road, a merchandise broker with offices in the American Furniture Mart, 666 Lake Shore drive, and his wife, Dorothy.

Mr. and Mrs. Weiner, homeward bound, halted their car for the light in Ogden avenue at California avenue. A young man, flashing a revolver, boarded their machine. He took a ring valued at $1,600 and $12 from Mr. Weiner, and a $250 wedding ring and an $800 fur coat from Mrs. Weiner. Then he forced his victims to alight and drove away in the machine.

Two robbers halted Miss Louise Goetz last night as she was about to enter the apartment building at 14 West Elm street where she lived. They took her mink coat, which she valued at $1,000, and her purse, containing $1, and escaped in a car driven by a third man.

PRISON NEAR AS AL CAPONE ASKS FOR A REHEARING

Al Capone, boss hoodlum of prohibition, may join the select colony of ex-Chicagoans at Leavenworth federal penitentiary within two weeks.

This possibility developed yesterday when his attorneys, Michael Ahern and Albert Fink, appeared before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals and filed a petition for a rehearing of the income tax case in which Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson sentenced Capone to eleven years in prison and fined him $50,000.

Under court rules, the district attorney's office has ten days to file an answer. Without establishing precedent, the Circuit court may arbitrarily decline at that time to rehear the matter. In that event Capone's only loophole will be an appeal to the United States Supreme court.

However, should such an appeal be made, Capone, it is understood, will elect to go to federal prison and begin serving his sentence.

Cigaret Tossed Off Bridge Starts Fire on Launch

A burning cigaret tossed from the 95th street bridge at the Calumet river was believed responsible for fire which broke out early this morning on the deck of the 36 foot fishing launch, the Ruby, which was docked at the bridge. Part of the deck and the cabin was burned. The fire was extinguished by the fire tug Joseph Medill. Louis Angel, 9348 Chauncey avenue, owner of the craft and part owner of the Calumet Fish company, estimated the damage at $500.

BRIDGE WORKER ELECTROCUTED.

Oakland, Ill., March 18.—(AP)—Howard Crabtree, employed on a bridge construction job here, was electrocuted late Thursday while loosening a wire that had become entangled in a steam shovel. The wire snapped, contacting a high tension wire.

How One Woman Lost 47 Lbs. of Fat

In 3 Months, and Feels Years Younger

"I have been taking Kruschen Salts for nearly 3 months. I have continued taking one teaspoonful in warm water every morning. I then weighed 217 pounds, was always bothered with pains in my back and lower part of abdomen and sides.

"Now I am glad to say I am a well woman, feel much stronger, years younger and my weight is 175 pounds. I do not only feel better but I look better, so all my friends say.

"I shall never be without Kruschen Salts, will never cease taking my daily dose and more than glad to highly recommend it for the great good that is in it." Mrs. S. A. Solomon, New Bern, N. C.

"P. S. You may think I am exaggerating by writing such a long letter, but truly I feel so indebted to you for putting out such wonderful salts that I cannot say enough."

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts 4 weeks costs but a few cents.

When reducing, attention to diet will help—cut down on pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes—the Kruschen way is the safe way to lose fat.

To take off fat harmlessly and safely, take one-half teaspoon of Kruschen in a glass of hot water every morning—don't worry—it's the safe way to reduce.

But be sure for your health's sake that you ask for and get Kruschen Salts. Get them at any drug store in the world and if the results one bottle brings do not delight you—do not joyfully satisfy you—why money back.

JAPANESE SALES TO CHINA DROP 49% IN A MONTH

Boycott 80% Successful in Yangtze Valley.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, March 19 [Saturday].—The sale of Japanese goods to China in February declined 49 per cent under the figure for January, according to figures published here yesterday. The decrease ranged from a 35 per cent drop in Manchuria to a 94 per cent drop in southern China, including Canton. These decreases are believed here to be due largely to the nation-wide boycott of Japanese goods, which was one of the causes of Japan's attack on Shanghai.

The decrease in sales of Japanese products in the Yangtze valley averaged 80 per cent, while the decrease at Tientsin and other points in northern China south of the Great Wall amounted to 32 per cent.

China's Exports Increase.

The only place where Japanese exports showed an increase was the Kwantung leased territory in Manchuria, where imports during February showed an increase of 35 per cent over January.

According to the figures, the sale of Chinese products to Japan showed an increase of 7 per cent over January.

It was claimed that Japan's trade balance for February was unfavorable to the extent of 47,000,000 yen (about $15,270,000 at current exchange rates).

Another session of the preliminary peace conference between Japanese and Chinese opened at the British consulate here this morning. It was attended by Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japanese minister, Quo Tai-chi, Chinese vice minister of foreign affairs, and representatives of the British, American, French and Italian governments.

Japs Sail for Home.

SHANGHAI, March 18.—(AP)—The armies which fought so bitterly for control of Chapei and Woosung a few weeks ago shivered tonight in the cold of a Chinese winter.

Some of the fighting men were luckier than the others, for three Japanese transports steamed down the Whangpoo, crowded to the rails with soldiers going back home. It was the first contingent to go.

Two more transports will sail tomorrow and others will go next week. The troops moving now are of the 24th brigade, the first Japanese unit to be landed in China and that which did most of the fighting in the Hongkew-Woosung sector.

Japan Sets New Conditions.

Instructions were forwarded from Tokio today to the Japanese minister directing certain modifications in the conditions for an armistice. The new program consists of three points:

1. That the Chinese troops remain where they now are, more than 12½ miles from Shanghai.
2. That the Japanese troops withdraw to the old Shanghai-Woosung line.
3. That a mixed commission, including Chinese and Japanese, supervise the withdrawal and police the evacuated area.

Any agreement to a truce, the government at Tokio emphasized, presupposes a general conference which would discuss both the anti-Japanese boycott and the future security of Japanese residents in China.

Japs Debate War Chest.

TOKIO, March 18.—(AP)—Parliament met today in special session to pass upon a 67,000,000 yen [$21,775,000 at current rate of exchange] war chest to pay the bill for the campaigns in Shanghai and Manchuria.

This figure is slightly lower than the appropriation originally suggested, but when the government encountered opposition to a plan for making the appropriation without calling parliament, it accepted a reduction and consented to submit the issue to the legislature.

It was the first session of the legislative body since the recent general election, in which the Seiyukai party was returned with a substantial majority. The formal opening of parliament in the presence of the emperor does not take place until next Sunday and the regular legislative program will begin March 22.

Today the lower house elected Kiyoshi Akita speaker and Yetsu-jiro Uyehara vice speaker. Both are members of the government party.

Reds Storm Hankow.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

HANKOW, March 18.—A large communist army attempted to capture Hankow today in a surprise attack but was beaten off. The invaders had moved down from the north along the Peiping-Hankow railroad. For a time the struggle outside the city was so serious that every available soldier was kept in barracks ready for emergency. The situation here is still serious, with the army becoming disaffected as a result of pay being four months in arrears.

PALATINE BANKER TESTIFIES TODAY IN OWN DEFENSE

Ralph L. Peck, 65 years old, president of the closed First National bank of Palatine, will take the stand in his own defense today in the court of Federal Judge John P. Barnes, where he is on trial before a jury on a charge of falsifying the bank's records.

Robert P. Monson, investigator for the department of justice, testified yesterday to discovering a $35,000 shortage after the bank closed in January. He said Peck had sold a $20,000 mortgage which he had received as collateral for a loan and kept the money.

Miss Harriet Shosky, former secretary of the closed Second Northwestern State bank, remained in a stupor from the effects of an overdose of sleeping powder taken Tuesday night. Physicians at St. Elizabeth's hospital said she will recover.

As secretary to Frank E. Lackowski, former president of the bank, Miss Shosky was a witness in the investigation of the bank by Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg. From the witness stand she attacked the banker's character. Lackowski committed suicide.

U. S. ALARMED BY SOVIET MILITARY MOVES IN SIBERIA

Eyes Concentration of Troops, Food.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 18.—Dispatches telling of military preparations being made by the soviet at Vladivostok aroused considerable concern today in official circles. The report disclosed that the Russians have been purchasing large quantities of wheat in Manchuria and shipping it to Vladivostok for possible use there in event of hostilities. It is understood that something like 50,000 Russian troops are at the soviet city.

According to information current here, four trains loaded with wheat have gone to Vladivostok and twenty additional trains are preparing to go. One report said that Japanese-controlled Chinese in Manchuria have prohibited the export of wheat and flour, ostensibly on the ground that these articles are needed by local inhabitants. This embargo is understood to have been made too late, as most of the Rusisan wheat is said to be on the way.

Japs Eye Movements.

For several weeks soviet authorities have been shipping rolling stock of the Chinese Eastern railway into Siberia without returning it. The new Manchurian authorities are reported considering the halting of further rolling stock movements into Siberia.

Newspaper dispatches from Tokio stating that L. M. Karakhan, acting soviet foreign commissar, had informed the Japanese ambassador at Moscow that Russia cannot accept the Japanese explanation of the concentration of troops along the soviet border in Manchuria also tended to increase the apprehension with which officials here view Manchurian developments.

Japan had stated previously its view that she had as much right to concentrate troops on her borders as had Russia to concentrate troops on the Siberian border.

Report "War Plot."

One report today was that soviet officials are planning to feed Chinese troops along the border and encourage them to warfare against the Japanese.

Some trouble also was reported at Manchuli among the Chinese garrisons.

In general the situation along the railroad and the frontier was described as becoming worse.

Police Guard U. S. Ship at New Zealand Dock

AUCKLAND, N. Z., March 18.—(AP)—The American steamer Sierra discharged a cargo of goods here today under police protection because of threats of dock workers and seamen that they would take retaliatory action against the American Jones-White shipping law. A subsidized American competition, they said, threatened to drive British shipping from the Pacific.

MUKDEN SHOWS HEADS OF 9 MEN TO WARN REBELS

MUKDEN, Manchuria, March 19.—(AP)—The heads of nine Chinese executed as "bandits" were planted over Mukden today as a warning to any opponents of the new Manchurian régime.

The heads were placed on the ornamental arch marking the boundary between the international settlement and the Chinese section, in accordance with an old Manchu custom, which was revived.

Dispatches to Shanghai yesterday reported that 100,000 Chinese volunteers were marching on Mukden from three directions, destroying the flag of the new Manchurian government in villages along the way and hoisting the Chinese national emblem. A group of Chinese organizations in Mukden described the new Manchurian régime as "merely a puppet of the Japanese army."

MIKADO AND WIFE BID FAREWELL TO U. S. AMBASSADOR

TOKIO, March 18.—(AP)—Emperor Hirohito and the empress were hosts at a farewell luncheon today to Ambassador W. Cameron Forbes, who is retiring and will sail for the United States from Yokohama on March 22.

After the luncheon the emperor and the ambassador talked through an interpreter for an unusually long time on international and political matters. The emperor expressed his appreciation of the difficulties of the ambassador's position during the Sino-Japanese conflict and complimented him on exercising tact and understanding in fulfilling his duties.

The ambassador told the emperor the United States government did not attempt to judge which of the parties in the conflict was right or wrong, but merely sought to maintain peace in the orient.

Seize 2 Alleged Gangsters; Toss Pistol from Auto

Sanford Rosenbaum, 38 years old, 5511 Ellis avenue, and John Leroy, 28 years old, 1055 West 79th street, alleged gangsters, were arrested by Sergt. Joseph Kelly of the detective bureau last night at 80th and Green streets. One of the men tossed a pistol from the car in which they were riding. Rosenbaum, according to police, is an ally of Spike O'Donnell, south side beer boss.

FAKE PREMIER OPENS SYDNEY'S GIGANTIC BRIDGE

Arrested After He Cuts Ribbon at Fete.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

SYDNEY, New South Wales, March 19—[Saturday]—A sensation was caused at the opening of Sydney's gigantic new harbor bridge today when a prominet member of the New Guard, a political organization inimical to Premier J. T. Lang, deprived the premier of the honor of cutting the ribbon to signal the opening of the $29,000,000 span by performing that ceremony himself.

The imposter, Capt. de Groot, formerly of the British army, suddenly dashed from among the throng of spectators, seized a horse belonging to a soldier in the governor's escort and galloped forward to slash the ceremonial strand.

"I declare the bridge open in the name of the people of New South Wales," he shouted as the ribbon snapped.

Carries Out Threat.

De Groot was seized and arrested amid tremendous excitement in the huge and distinguished assembly which had just listened to King George's message of congratulations and the speeches of several official guests. The program proceeded, however, after this incident.

Capt. de Groot's act marked the carrying out of a threat made by the New Guard that Premier Lang would not open the bridge.

Half a million people crowded the streets of Sydney today trying to be in two places at once in order to witness both land and sea pageants which marked the opening of the bridge. Sydney's skies and bay donned their brightest blue for the occasion and all cares and grievances of the citizens were momentarily forgotten and the years ahead of paying for the bridge disregarded in the pride of achievement.

The spirit of carnival happiness prevailed among those who watched the elaborate pageant.

Unfold State's History.

The life story of New South Wales was unfolded. Its future was symbolized by 700 school children heading the procession, and its history and its fruitfulness told by a tableau presented on thirty decorative floats drawn by richly caparisoned horses. On one was depicted Capt. Cook and his ship's company followed Govs. MacQuarre and Philip and the explorers, Oxley, Blaxland, Lawson, and Wentworth. Then came the gold finders, the pastoral pioneers and the old original coach of the Cobb company, whose transport lines were the links of the whole state.

Australia's wool, gold, and wheat told their stories in the many beautifully designed ficral floats and added to the purely spectacular side of the display. Children provided the two incidents of the day which captured the popular imagination the most.

One was 9 year old Leonard Gwyther on a chestnut pony he had ridden 600 miles to see the bridge. The other was the delivery of a message of good will from a village in the exact center of the state which was brought to Sydney by relays of school boy runners as a greeting from the heart of New South Wales.

13 Liners in Procession.

The sea pageant began in the morning with a procession of thirteen great passenger liners representing various nations and was continued through the afternoon by a regatta with naval aircraft on display. The actual ceremony opened with the king's message of good will.

Congratulatory messages were received from officials of several American cities which have bridges similar to the structure inaugurated here today.

The bridge is one of the greatest Australia. It is a single arch span 3,770 feet long, made of steel with abutment towers of Australian granite. It is designed to carry a load of 10,000 tons, with a capacity of 80 trains, 6,000 other vehicles, and 40,000 pedestrians per hour.

DIES UNDER ICE

OTTO DEGENER.

The truck which Otto H. Degener was driving slid over the edge of a 70 foot deep quarry at 31st street and Salt creek late yesterday afternoon. Twenty feet from the rim the vehicle struck and broke through eight inches of ice and plunged the remaining 50 feet to the bottom.

Then Degener, 51 year old employé of the village of La Grange Park, began a short and dramatic fight for his life. He leaped clear of the truck after it was under water. Weighted down by his heavy clothing and chilled by the water, he started to swim. But his leap had carried him past the clear water, and when he rose his head bumped thick ice. He had turned away from the hole made by the truck.

Two friends, Owen Maxham and Herbert Ringiser, his helpers on the truck, seized large stones and tried to break the solid roof of his watery prison. They tried to signal him to turn and swim to the open space. In both attempts they failed. Degener sank and was drowned.

Policemen from La Grange Park and a rescue squad from Riverside recovered the body an hour and forty minutes later. Efforts made to revive Degener at the Frances Willard hospital were unsuccessful. His home was at 505 North 5th avenue, La Grange Park.

PATSY CLEMENTI FAILS TO "BEAT RAP"; IS GUILTY

Patsy Clementi, 42 gang hoodlum who is reported to have boasted he could "fix any rap," and his companion, George Price, were found guilty of stealing an automobile by Judge John Prystalski in the Criminal court yesterday. Judge Prystalski asserted that he could find no mitigating circumstances and announced he would impose sentences on Monday. Patsy is a brother of Louis ["The Louse"] Clementi.

The defendants face a year in the Bridewell if Judge Prystalski sentences them on the misdemeanor count, or 1 to 20 years in Pontiac or the Joliet penitentiary for the felony charge. The case was tried without a jury.

Price testified yesterday that he asked Clementi to steal a car for which he had a sale. Then Clementi took the stand and asserted that he stole the machine which belonged to Roy C. Follett, 6529 Kenwood avenue, only because of his friendship for Price.

Judge Prystalski asked Clementi whether there was any truth to the reports that he said he could "fix any rap." "All lies," replied Clementi, "They pinched me a lot of times and took my picture, but I haven't got a record."

BANDITS FAIL TO GET CASH.

Fred D. Penney, office manager for the Brennan Packing company at 3900 Normal boulevard, and George E. Brown, the cashier, were kidnaped while on their way to the bank yesterday and thrown out of the car by two bandits at 43d street and Normal boulevard, when they showed they were carrying only checks.

WRITS SOUGHT FOR 3 ACCUSED BY PROFESSOR

CRIMINAL COURT.

Roy Barber, assault to rape, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary; Joseph De Polo, contributing to delinquency of a child, sentenced to 1 year in the Bridewell; James De Witt and William Kieser, impersonating an officer, sentenced to 1 year each in the county jail by Judge George Fred Rush.

Arnold Bannasch, William Grams, and Joseph Samec, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years each in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Rudolph Desort.

Petitions for the release of three men who are alleged to have extorted $2,500 from Jerome Gregory Kerwin, assistant professor of political science at the University of Chicago, on writs of habeas corpus, were filed yesterday before Chief Justice Harry Fisher of the Criminal court.

Assistant State's Attorney Henry Samuels told Judge Fisher that it was believed that the men were involved in other crimes, and that time was needed for investigation. The judge continued the hearing on the writs until 10 o'clock this morning before Judge James J. Kelly.

Those held are John L. Murphy, alias Walkin, and Jack Grablick, alias Gleason, both of Detroit, and Edward Belson of the Viceroy hotel, 4758 Kenmore avenue, Chicago.

Detectives arrested the three men on Thursday as they parked in front of Prof. Kerwin's apartment at 5807 Dorchester avenue, supposedly to collect $5,000 more from the professor. Because of the nature of the charges made by the men, Prof. Kerwin asserted, he paid them $2,500 to keep quiet.

STRIKE BACKED BY WIVES OF 40,000 MINING MEN FAILS

Hungry Polish Workers Return to Jobs.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SOSNOWICE, Poland, March 18.—Despite the insistence of their wives, mothers and daughters that they fight to the end, the coal miners of the Cracow and Dombrowa districts today went back to work. The strike, which lasted nearly a month, was declared as a protest against a cut of 8 per cent in wages.

Women were the backbone of the strike, which threatened grave trouble for the government. Fights with police, who fired and frequently killed or wounded demonstrators, occurred daily, as did attacks upon miners hired to replace the strikers. Many of these attacks were made by women, the police said.

40,000 Men Involved.

The miners' struggle was a lost cause from the beginning. It was brought on when the mine owners decided to cut wages by as much as 21 per cent. The reduction was made necessary, the owners said, by similar cuts in Germany, Belgium and England.

The government opposed such drastic reductions and, through arbitration, induced the owners to compromise at 8 per cent. This rate was accepted in Upper Silesia, but the Sosnowice and Cracow districts refused it. Then 40,000 miners left the pits and began a fight which they claimed was for a chance to live.

The deadlock offered no hope of success to the miners because the mines have huge coal reserves and the best policy for the owners was to close the mines altogether until business conditions throughout the world improve.

Families in Want.

In spite of this the miners went out. They went on strike, they said, for the right to work, for up until the last wage cut the mines had been working only part time and want was common among miners throughout the district.

Sosnowice, before the war, was an important Russian frontier station. As a city it is dying. Katowice, near by, is taking its place. The streets suggest German prison camps during the war where Rusisans were interned. They are filled with people, mostly women, who congregate constantly around the government employment agency office.

These women are the most alarming and dangerous element in the district. Organized in groups, the police said, they attacked strikebreakers and beat them. They agitated among the men with telling effect. The workers did not hesitate to attack police, and only gunfire repulsed them, the police declared.

GUNS AND BOMBS ROAR IN OUTLAW STRIKE AT MINES

Boy Shoots 2 Defending Father.

Scranton, Pa., March 18.—[Special.]—Shooting, stoning, and dynamiting punctuated today's developments in the outlaw strike of anthracite workers in this vicinity who are demanding a wider distribution of working time in the mines.

Late this afternoon a man and child in a crowd of picketers were shot when the 14 year old son of John Gunda, of West Scranton, leaped to his father's defense. The picketers were threatening Gunda as the latter was on his way to work. The son dashed back into their house, came out with a shotgun, and fired into the crowd, wounding Joseph Priewiski, 6, in the arm and shoulder, and striking Julius Golembrewski, 50, in the left hip. Neither was seriously hurt.

Fifty Are Arrested.

Earlier in the day several men were stoned and fifty arrested, most of the arrests being made at the Marvine colliery of the Hudson Coal company, when pickets attempted to prevent miners from going to work.

Last night a stick of dynamite exploded within a few feet of the home of William Jordan, in Taylorboro, breaking several windows and causing Mrs. Jordan and her baby to suffer from shock. At Wyoming, two miles south of Pittston, another charge of dynamite was set off on the road in front of a miner's home last midnight, and half an hour later another explosion occurred in a field at Duryear, near Pittston. Windows were shattered by both these last explosions.

Workers Threatened.

Several miners in Port Griffith, Jenkin township, reported that stones had been hurled through their windows with rags tied to them bearing warnings, "If you don't quit work, we will dynamite your homes."

Shortly before noon, 5,000 strikers marched on the city hall at Pittston to protest activities of police. Vincent Galizzi, leader of the marchers, entered the office of Mayor Ambrose Langan to voice his objections, but was denied an interview and ordered out. The mayor said he would "not be intimidated by mass violence."

Union leaders meeting in Hazelton said the strike was in violation of the agreement and condemned it.

Remainder of Robbers' Loot Recovered in Iowa

Clinton, Ia., March 18.—(AP)—The remainder of the $106,000 stolen from the City National bank Tuesday by four robbers was returned to the bank today. The sum, $370, was recovered on the J. O. Shaff farm near Camanche last night.

Mexican Troops Ordered to Shoot Oil Line Raiders

BY JOHN CORNYN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, March 18.—Mexican troops are protecting the new pipe line of the Aguila Oil company of Mexico as a result of two successive "breaks" in the line. The soldiers are under orders to shoot to kill.

Gangsters are suspected of tampering with the pipe line, which stretches from the gulf coast to the refinery here. Officials declare that they have taken this method to intimidate the company, which is one of the richest oil concerns in the world.

The first effort of the mysterious gang to disrupt the flow of oil to the refinery resulted in a fire. The pipe line and buildings near the Mexico City refinery were badly damaged by the flames.

Within the last few days several threatening letters have been received by the company from individuals who said they were ready to damage the more than 200 miles of pipe if the company did not "meet their terms," and pay them to keep away. The matter has become so serious that it was taken up at an executive session by the department of industry, commerce, and labor.

Federal intervention was suggested, not so much to protect the company, as to prevent the blowing up of long sections of the line and thus endangering the lives and property of natives.

The police have taken an active hand in investigations and in running down the guilty persons, but they have encountered considerable difficulty because the line passes through woods, across canyons, over mountainous and rocky ground. Sections of the line are located in desolate regions, inhabited by Indians.

Federal troops were ordered to take part in the investigation and to shoot any person tampering with the oil line on sight. There is an old law, which was passed in the régime of Porfirio Diaz making it an offense outside of criminal law for any one attempting to interfere with lines of communication. It provides that such a person may be shot.

The soldiers sent to guard the pipe line have been ordered to apply this penalty.

Arrested as Bootlegger in House Owned by State

Ottawa, Ill., March 18.—[Special.]—In a raid on a house owned by the state of Illinois at Council cave, a part of the Starved Rock state park property, Sheriff E. J. Welter seized 50 quart bottles of beer and a small amount of whisky. W. H. Howell, tenant of the house, has been arrested as a violator of the Illinois prohibition act.

RAILROAD HEADS CALL ON HOOVER FOR CONFERENCE

Finance Body Directors Also Attend.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 18.—[Special.]—Executives representing fifteen of the nation's largest railroads participated in a secret surprise conference with President Hoover late this afternoon. Following the meeting President Hoover declined to throw any light on the subject matter of the conference, although admitting he had been conferring with directors of the reconstruction finance corporation, members of the interstate commerce commission and the department of commerce, in addition to the executive committee of the railway association.

The best information available tonight seemed to be that the representatives of the roads had called upon the President to aid them in working out arrangements which would facilitate their securing loans from the reconstruction finance corporation.

Friction Is Reported.

Although corporation and White House officials have maintained silence, there has been increasing evidences of friction between President Dawes and Eugene Meyer, chairman of the board and governor of the federal reserve board, over the handling of loans to the railroads.

It is understood that the railroad officials have complained that they have experienced much more difficulty in obtaining loans from the corporation than have the banks. Reports also are current that under the program advocated by Gov. Meyer the banks would be the chief beneficiaries of loans made to the railroads by the finance corporation.

Neither R. N. Aishton, chairman of the executive committee of the Association of Railroad Executives, nor Alfred P. Thom, its general counsel, would discuss the White House meeting when they emerged around 6 o'clock. Brig. Gen. Dawes said the conference was a White House matter which he could not discuss. Gov. Meyer also was silent.

Statement Is Issued.

The only comment from the White House was contained in the following statement:

"The President has had conferences with the directors of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, the member of the interstate commerce commission, and the department of commerce, interested in reconstruction matters, together with the executive committee of the Railway Presidents' association and the chairman of the Railway Credit corporation, upon coordination of reconstruction activities. The conferences are still continuing."

While the railroad men were discussing their troubles with the President, officials of the department of agriculture were considering a plan for utilizing Reconstruction Finance corporation funds for establishing credits in Europe for the purchase of American surplus farm crops. It is reported that the farm board will change its policy and market more than five million bushels a month if arrangements for sale of this grain abroad can be made.

Manager Europe-Bound.

George S. Milnor, general manager of the Grain Stabilization corporation, is en route to Europe to confer with foreign millers in an effort to find an outlet for the corporation's stabilization wheat. It is understood the board is anxious to dispose of some of its wheat, as it realizes no more funds can be obtained from congress.

Other railroad officials present at the meeting included W. W. Atterbury, president, Pennsylvania Railway company; J. J. Bernet, president, Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad company; E. G. Buckland, chairman of the board, New York, New Haven and Hartford; W. R. Cole, president, Louisville and Nashville Railroad company; E. M. Durham Jr., Missouri Pacific railroad; Carl R. Gray, president, Union Pacific system; Fairfax Harrison, president, Southern Railroad system; A. D. McDonald, vice president executive committee, Southern Pacific railroad; J. J. Pelley, president, New York, New Haven and Hartford; H. A. Scandrett, president, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railway; George M. Shriver, senior vice president, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company, Charles Donnelly, president, Northern Pacific Railroad company, and F. E. Williamson, president, New York Central lines.

Wheaton College Dean, 2 Girls Hurt in Auto Collision

Orion, Ill., March 18.—(AP)—Miss Corrine Smith, 37, assistant dean of Wheaton college, Wheaton, Ill., was critically injured, and Miss Margaret Dodd, 21, and Miss Laura Gates, 19, both of Wheaton, were injured when the automobile in which they were riding collided head on with a bus on route 80 near Orion today. They were taken to the Lutheran hospital in Moline.

FIRE ON FLEEING CAR.

Lincoln park policemen fired at four men riding in an automobile, who failed to obey a command to stop, early yesterday at Hawthorne place and Sheridan road, but their machine outdistanced the police squad car.

SEEK TO CLEAR LOOP JEWELER IN FAKE GEM HOLDUP

Convicted on False Testimony, Is Claim.

A petition to set aside the conviction of Maurice A. Barnett, loop jewelry dealer and alleged ringleader in the fake holdup of Mrs. Laura B. Price two years ago, was filed yesterday before Chief Justice Harry Fisher of the Criminal court. Attorney John J. Fogle filed the petition, which stated that new evidence had been discovered which would prove that fraud had been practiced in the trial court.

MRS. LAURA PRICE.

Despite the state's protest, Judge Fisher allowed the petition to be filed and gave the prosecution until April 1 to file an answer. The chief justice set April 18 for hearing.

"A Frameup," Says Mueller.

Assistant State's Attorney Charles Mueller charged that the petition and the alleged new evidence was "a frameup."

Before Judge Fisher acted, he was informed that Mrs. Price had served a six months' sentence in the county jail for playing the part of the victim in the fake robbery. Max Krakow, a jewelry salesman, is just completing a like sentence. Because Barnett was represented as the leader of the plot, he was sentenced to 1 to 5 years in the penitentiary for conspiracy.

Barnett was sentenced by Judge Harry B. Miller on March 15, 1930. The conviction by a jury has been affirmed by the Appellate and Supreme courts. Since his appeal failed, deputy sheriffs, bearing a mandate for his incarceration, have been hunting Barnett.

The petition on Barnett's behalf asserted that Joseph Baum and Ben Levin, the fake bandits who took the jewelry and fur coats from Mrs. Price so that the plotters might obtain $18,000 insurance, had committed perjury as state's witnesses. The charges against Baum and Levin were not pressed.

Tells of Reward Offer.

Attached to Fogle's petition were statements from Baum and Levin, which declared that their testimony of the sham robbery was true with one exception. They now declare that Barnett had nothing to do with the crime.

According to Baum's new version, he laid the blame on Barnett at Krakow's request because the latter had a family.

Baum further declared in his latest statement that Attorney Luther F. Binkley, who represented the Corporation of the Royal Exchange Assurance of London, which wrote the insurance for Mrs. Price, had promised him and Levin $4,000 if they would return the loot. Baum said Binkley paid for his attorney, Sam Golan.

The petition also alleges that Prosecutor Mueller and Binkley promised Baum and Levin complete immunity for their testimony in the trial.

Baum said that he and Levin were told that if they were asked on the witness stand if they had been promised immunity to say "no," which they did. After Baum heard that Barnett's conviction had been affirmed by the Supreme court, the petition stated, he became conscience stricken and told of the alleged false testimony.

Bound for Hawaii

Dr. A. H. Compton, professor of physics at the University of Chicago, left yesterday on a trip which will take him to mountain tops in South America, Hawaii, and Alaska, where he will conduct experiments on the cosmic ray. He was accompanied by Mrs. Compton and their son, Arthur Alan. They will go to Los Angeles, and from there to Hawaii for the first of the experiments.

FIVE KILLED AS CONVICTS ESCAPE MEXICAN PRISON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, March 18.—Convicts in the state prison at Jalapa, capital of the state of Vera Cruz, today seized guns, overpowered the prison guards and broke from the prison. A fight followed in the streets of Jalapa in which two policemen and three prisoners were killed and many prisoners and policemen wounded.

Two prisoners were recaptured, but the others escaped to the mountains. They are well armed and it is feared they will loot villages, as among them are six desperate criminals who had been serving long sentences.

Romero Carrasco, guilty of the assassination of a whole family, among whom was his own uncle, was shot this morning by a federal guard while being taken by train to the penal colony at Las Tres Marias. Carrasco had declared he would never go to Las Tres Marias alive. He was shot trying to get out of the train through a window.

SLAYER POWERS CONFESSES ALL AND IS HANGED

Bluebeard Who Killed 5 Calm at Death.

tence was imposed on him for the slaying of Mrs. Lemke, the fifth victim of his matrimonial ventures. He was never tried for the Eicher killings.

How Powers Advertised.

The West Virginia Bluebeard got in contact with his victims through the American Friendship society of Detroit, a matrimonial agency conducted by Albert B. Plater and his wife, Olga. This was the description of himself through which the 45 year old Powers, an ex-convict and already married for four years, trapped his victims:

"Wealthy widower worth $150,000. Has income from $400 to $3,000 per month. Is a civil engineer and a very fine looking young man of 38. Writes: 'My business enterprises prevent me from making many social friends. I am therefore unable to make the acquaintances of the right kind of ladies. As my properties are located through the middle west, I believe I will settle there when I am married, so I do not care where a lady lives, just so she will be willing to settle with me in the middle west. "'Am an Elk and a Mason. Own a beautiful 10 room brick home, completely furnished with everything that would make a good woman happy. My wife would have her own car and plenty of spending money. Would have nothing to do but enjoy herself, but she must be strictly a one man's woman. I could not tolerate infidelity. Am now living in West Virginia.'"

Killed Children Later.

Under the name of Cornelius O. Pierson, Powers wrote to Mrs. Eicher throughout the winter and spring of 1931. In June he visited her and persuaded her to go to Clarksburg with him. It is believed that he killed her in the windowless garage which he built at Quiet Dell, five miles from Clarksburg, before he returned for her three children, Greta, Harry and Anabel, took them to Clarksburg, and strangled them in the garage.

Powers was tried and condemned to death in Moore's Opera house in Clarksburg. Powers, weeping on the witness stand, sought to lay the slayings on a mythical "Mr. Rogers."

BRITAIN FEARS U. S. WILL EXPEL 2,000 ACTORS

Government Denies Ban Can Be Reprisal.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 18.—Alarm was expressed by officials and theatrical people here today when it was learned that the Dickstein bill was favorably reported back to the United States congress by the immigration committee. It is feared that the bill if enacted into law would mean that 2,000 British actors would be asked to leave Broadway and Hollywood.

The ministry of labor denied that any restrictions on the appearance of American artists in London could have caused the American Equity association to about face on the Dickstein measure, which previously the association had opposed.

Denies Foreigners Are Barred.

"Our attitude was completely misunderstood, particularly in the United States," an official of the ministry of labor declared. "The British Equity delegation was informed more than a month ago that no permits had been refused foreign performers for a long time and that only two cases of extensions were refused. The position remains the same today.

"It is evident that there is a widely held belief in the United States that we are keeping out their actors. A good deal of the misapprehension is probably due to the reported ban on Susan Glaspell. How that arose is a mystery. There never was such a ban."

The British Equity association some time ago opposed the minister of labor's proposal to exclude foreign performers. British actors from the United States will create more unemployment here.

Between 150 and 200 American actors are at present in Britain.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 18.—Only alien actors and actresses of "unusual" ability will be admitted to this country outside the quota system if a bill reported favorably to the house by the immigration committee is enacted into law. The bill was introduced some time ago by Representative Samuel Dickstein [N. Y.], chairman of the committee, and was reported out of committee yesterday.

Hitherto, Representative Dickstein explained, foreign actors and actresses have not been included under the quota system and have been entering the United States by the thousands. His bill, he said, is designed to protect American actors from this foreign competition by including the foreign performers under the quota system.

Jailed for Failure to Pay Ex-Wife $3,350 Alimony

His plea that it took all his money to support his present wife and their two children, one only 10 weeks old, failed to save Max Kroll, 1713 Sedgwick street, from going to jail yesterday for nonpayment of alimony to his ex-wife. Mrs. Anna Kroll, 2943 Mildred avenue, claimed that he owed her $3,350 under a decree granted in 1924. "If you can support your present family, you can contribute to your former wife," Judge Joseph Sabath ruled in committing Kroll for contempt of court.

BANK BANDITS GET $7,000.

End Up Doubting 'Honor Among Thieves.'

"Professors" James Murphy and Charles Harris yesterday gave the postgraduate course to the three star pupils of the burglary college they have been conducting at 1512 West Congress street.

The instructors, whom some people would call Fagins, are veteran housebreakers, about 40 years old. Their pupils, John Buckley of 5550 Ingleside avenue, Earl Moore of 937 East 55th street, and John Smith of 1502 East 66th street, are novices. They are only 18 years old.

Break Into Home.

Last evening Buckley, Moore, and Smith broke into the home of Mrs. John G. Collins at 1509 East 54th street and obtained $25 and a silver flask. On their way to report to the professors they were arrested by Sergt. Alex McCabe and Policemen Joseph Hanlon and John Gallagher of the Hyde Park station.

They admitted that Murphy and Harris furnished them with instructions and assignments. So Sergt. McCabe and his men took Buckley to the place on Congress street. It is a rooming house and no one was at home. However, the doors were open and the house had been ransacked. Every room had been looted.

Why Rob a Burglar?

Sergt. Hanlon asked himself why a burglar's home should be burglarized. He noted carefully that in most of the rooms were the butts of two kinds of cigarets. One kind was a roll-your-own and the other a tailor-made. And when the landlord finally arrived he said that Harris rolled his own and Murphy smoked the tailor-mades.

Missing from the rooms that had been occupied by Pupils Buckley, Smith, and Moore were two radio sets.

"We worked hard to steal them sets," said Buckley, "and I'll bet you the professors took 'em."

Find Another Hideout.

He disclosed that Murphy and Harris had another hideout at 215 South Racine avenue. There the police went and verified the suspicion of Buckley. The professors were in a room with the radio sets and other stolen and re-stolen property. They were fighting and they were drunk.

"The boys stole the stuff from the people and we stole the stuff from the boys and now Harris is trying to take it away from me," Murphy shouted. "Where is that honor among thieves he's always talking about?"

"Maybe you can find it in jail," said Policeman Hanlon as he and McCabe overpowered the battling burglars.

$3,247,000 GAIN IN INDUSTRY PAY ROLL IN ILLINOIS

An industrial pay roll increase of $3,247,000 in Illinois during 1931 is reported in the annual survey of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, made public yesterday. The report shows 69 new industries in 52 Illinois cities outside of Chicago with a total investment of $5,440,000, and employing 5,714 persons on a pay roll of $6,920,000.

"Although the investment in new industries was $2,197,000 less than in 1930," C. V. Gregory, chairman of the industrial development department, said, "the annual pay roll showed an increase and 2,442 more employes were given work."

Expansions did not make such a favorable showing. Such developments in 1931 were 37 fewer than in the previous year. Expansions, however, accounted for 250 persons being added to industrial staffs.

MICHIGAN CITIES ASK BOND ISSUES TO COVER TAXES

Delinquent Levies Cause Problem.

Lansing, Mich., March 18.—[Special.]—Michigan cities may be tided over the critical situation arising from widespread tax delinquency through action of the legislature at the approaching session, it was indicated today.

Gov. Wilber M. Brucker, it was disclosed, is giving consideration to a proposal that governmental units be authorized to borrow the full amount of tax delinquency within their borders by issuing short term notes.

Detroit Lads Movement.

Several cities have brought to the executive's attention the fact that their borrowing power must be increased if they are to cope with the situation successfully. Inclusion of such a plan has been urged upon the governor within the last two days by a Detroit delegation and he has also been asked to request the legislature to broaden the bonding laws which are now strictly limited.

The governor has not indicated definitely what attitude he takes toward the municipalities' requests. He has been inclined to limit the matters to be taken up at the special session to the absolute minimum in order to assure some action rather than dissipation of legislative energies on innumerable schemes, many of questionable merit.

In Serious Difficulties.

The city of Detroit is probably in the most acute need of special legislation to relieve present financial stringency. It has issued about $30,000,000 of bonds in the last year and the annual retirement cost to the taxpayers for the next three years will be about $7,066,000 under present arrangements.

The city also has outstanding in tax anticipation notes $7,046,000 on a total delinquency of $22,339,000. Amendments to permit issuance of additional refunding bonds, to be retired over a 10 year period, were suggested.

CLAUDEL PLEADS FOR A BUSINESS VIEW OF DEBTS

'We're All in Same Boat,' Says Envoy.

The "eternal question of debts and reparations" would be much nearer a solution were it discussed in a spirit of business and hard fact rather than in a spirit of abstract right, Paul Claudel, ambassador of France, declared last night. He addressed several hundred members of the French and Franco-American societies and distinguished Chicagoans at a banquet in his honor in the Palmer house.

"We are all in the same boat," said M. Claudel in his address, which he gave in English. "Instead of wrangling and fighting it would be better to understand that we are confronted with a big operation of salvaging. When entanglements have taken place, it is no use trying to say that we should not be entangled. It is much better to try to disentangle ourselves."

Quotes Ben Franklin.

Ambassador Claudel spoke of Washington and Jefferson, adding "a name which is dear to every Frenchman, Bonhomme Richard, or Benjamin Franklin." He quoted Franklin's remark at the worst period in the war of independence: "If we do not hang together, we will hang separately."

Of all the uses of a rope, M. Claudel continued, the worst is "to beat time in dignified aloofness at the worst end of it."

"I do not mean for a moment that I object to the sacred right of every nation to blame, abuse, and misrepresent each other," he said. "It is a salutary and refreshing exercise either for individuals or for nations, and they are welcome to it. But when the business of damning is finished it is time to see if something more practical cannot be achieved."

He expressed his astonishment that "people who like so much to speak about disarmament are the same who speak so lightly about the necessity of changing frontiers." It is, he said, as if nations were told: "Please put down your arms and then we will carve a new and beautiful Europe out of your own flesh and bones."

Way to Disarm.

"If people want real disarmament the first sensible thing to do should be to stop that vague talk about revision of treaties which is contrary to every feeling of security," he continued.

He predicted that in the near future a close and sincere friendship between America and France will be cemented.

"Nobody cares for a weak friend," he said. "A weak France will not make Europe and America stronger; a destitute France will not make them richer; an unarmed France will not make the world more secure."

The ambassador chose only two of his many decorations to wear at the banquet: the red ribbon of the Polcnia Restituti, in which he is a grand officer, and the Legion of Honor.

Arthur Allais Presides.

Among those at the banquet were Arthur Allais, presidence of the Alliance Française, who presided; Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Dr. Frank Billings, George W. Dixon, Dr. William Allen Pusey, Daniel H. Burnham, the architect, President Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern university and Mrs. Scott; Godfrey Haggard, British consul, and Mrs. Haggard; Rene Willer, French consul general in Chicago; Henri Bougearel, vice consul; Dr. Giuseppe Castruccio, Italian consul general; Leon Hermant, French artist; Mrs. Vesta Channon, Robert Hall McCormick, and Alfred Soriano, president of the French War Veterans.

In the morning Ambassador Claudel was the guest of President Scott at Northwestern university, and later at luncheon in the Union League club. In the afternoon he was the guest of Robert B. Harshe at the Art institute.

Open Verdict Returned in Evanston Woman's Death

A coroner's jury yesterday was unable to decide as to the cause of death in the case of Mrs. Maude B. Emig, 57 years old, who was found dying earlier in the day in a cement areaway beneath her apartment at 827 Forest avenue, Evanston. Mrs. Emig either fell or jumped from the second or third story of the building, according to police, but there were no witnesses.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

GANGLAND SEEKS A JUDGE'S HEAD.

Senator Borah, chairman of the senate judiciary subcommittee now considering the appointment of Judge Wilkerson to the Circuit Court of Appeals, has received two letters from the Railroad Labor Executives' association, which is opposing confirmation. One letter was signed by Donald Richberg, chief counsel for the organization. The other was signed for the organization by its officers. Both charged THE TRIBUNE with the use of malicious fabrication and willful libel in support of the nomination.

THE TRIBUNE has said that the denial of a promotion to Judge Wilkerson, following upon the heels of the conviction of the most notorious gangsters of the United States in his court, would be interpreted as warning to the judiciary that the organized criminality of the United States could protect itself out of court when held to account by a judge.

THE TRIBUNE is not alone in this opinion. In a communication to the senate committee Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago crime commission, and Robert Isham Randolph of the Association of Commerce secret committee said: "If organized criminals attempt to influence the senate of the United States to refuse to confirm the appointment of an able and fearless judge, then no judge is free from intimidation, and the federal bench is on notice that influence, not justice, is the chief consideration in the administration of the law of the land."

Mr. Richberg and the labor executives accuse THE TRIBUNE of discreditable familiarity with gangland characters and seek to convey the impression that the support of Judge Wilkerson is in behalf of some gangsters against others. What Mr. Richberg actually does is to put the labor executives he represents in the position of attacking a judge because his acts have been effective against criminality and violence. That position is not improved by falsehoods. THE TRIBUNE'S connection with gangland has been to obtain the evidence which convicted the only killer sent to the penitentiary in this county for one of its notorious gang murders. That was the first break in the immunity behind which the gangs conducted their operations.

Judge Wilkerson's connection with this underworld has been to break the leadership of the Capone gang by requiring a trial on the evidence instead of accepting the compromise offered by the department of justice. Capone had dictated his terms until he came into Judge Wilkerson's courtroom.

The opposition which appears on the surface against Judge Wilkerson bases itself principally upon an injunction issued in the railroad shop craft strike in 1922 upon evidence showing that in the progress of the strike there had been: "Nineteen deaths, 1,500 assaults, sixty-five kidnapings, 300 cases of actual or attempted burning and dynamiting of property, fifty of actual or attempted cases of derailment of trains, and other instances of sabotage too numerous to count."

In whatever direction the opposition to Judge Wilkerson leads, it uncovers either organized and politically protected crime or violence and lawlessness in the background. The prejudices of some of the labor executives may have closed their eyes to this, but the facts stand out plainly enough to every one else. Mr. Richberg seeks to discredit the judge before the senate and to prevent the confirmation. THE TRIBUNE prefers the interpretation which may be put upon its acts to the interpretation which may be put upon his. This judicial promotion may be endangered by the attacks upon the judge presented for a merited reward, but a denial of the promotion will be judged in the light of the obvious reasons for opposing him.

If the senate rejects the appointment it cannot protest against the conclusion that gangland went far, but it got its man.

CAN MR. HOOVER BE WET?

Ralph Williams, vice chairman of the Republican national committee, came away from the White House Thursday saying that Mr. Hoover might be willing to run on some sort of a wet platform and that the party would find some sort of a wet platform unavoidable when it assembled in convention. Mr. Williams was careful to add that he was not reflecting Mr. Hoover's opinions. He was merely soothsaying, but even as clairvoyance it was enough to set Washington agog.

Senator Fess, the eminently respectable chairman of the national committee, is probably horrified by this revelation of vice in the vice chairman. Mr. Fess is of the old school who believes that a sound platform is built on the principles of a hammerless piano. You can display prodigious technique on the keyboard and never make a sound. Only sons of Anak ask what of the Volstead act.

Bishop Cannon, the eminent Democratic confessor of the Republican party management, is probably even more horrified than Mr. Fess and may even lose his confidence in the department of justice. Bishop Cannon, being more southern than congenial, will require evidence that Mr. Williams is hereticated before he will undertake to deliver Virginia and North Carolina again with any amount of assistance from Mr. E. C. Jameson. Possibly Mr. Jameson does not care so much this year.

Can Mr. Hoover accept a wet platform? He has not made it very easy. Until the Wickersham commission's report was submitted he might have been regarded as having an intelligent curiosity as to the noble experiment. His address to the committee when it started its work could be taken to indicate the open mind. Doubts arose as to the national welfare under federal prohibition and Mr. Hoover wanted facts.

However many curiosities may be found in the report its unescapable conclusion was condemnation of the Volstead act and the consequences under it. Some one in the administration caused misleading interpretations of the report to be given twenty-four hours' start of the truth and thereupon the report itself went into the discard. The administration divorced itself from the conclusions. Mr. Hoover had little more to say of his fact finding committee and since has insisted that the citizenship remain imbued with respect for the law as it is. This is not good preparation for reconsideration at this time.

American politics of late has produced few men who have been willing with great ambitions at stake to chance a defeat with an uncompromising statement of what they believed. The chance of their doing so diminishes with the importance of the stake. The assumption seems to be that the American people will not accept candor or permit moral convictions in their political affairs and that avoidance and equivocation are the practices necessary for success.

CUT OR COLLAPSE.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas recommended a horizontal cut of 10 per cent on all expenditures to his senate associates, speaking of the McKellar amendment for such a slash in the interior department appropriation. It wouldn't be a scientific method of getting reductions, he admitted, but it would be a practical way. Economy is like the weather. Everybody talks about it, but no one does anything about it. Every undertaking, every position, every item, every expenditure, when threatened, calls for rescue and its friends respond. The interested partisans pool their votes and nothing can be touched.

A blind swing at the budget, cutting it from top to bottom, is not a considerate way of reducing costs, nor is 10 per cent a satisfaction of the deficits. The United States treasury is not within 10 per cent of its revenue, nor are all the appropriations reducible wisely by a fixed ratio. Nevertheless, Senator Robinson is probably right. The only way to get any heads to the block for a shave is to take them all. The congress of the United States is not, as it so often proves, a board of directors facing personally ruinous consequences if ruinous methods are continued, but is a body of uncertain individual responsibility for the use of other people's money.

The gentlemen of the government may be persuaded that this irresponsibility is of permanent inconsequence, but when they have pushed the overloaded structure of federal government down on the people who are trying to support it they may find that the collapse carried them with it. Even Balaam finally listened to his beast of burden.

BACK-TRACKING.

The insurance committee of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce wants the state department of insurance taken out of the department of trade and commerce and made an independent department. The reasons advanced for the change are that "the insurance department is one of the most important in Springfield," that in amount of revenue collected it is second only to the department of state, and that besides collecting these funds the superintendent supervises all insurance organizations operating in Illinois and thousands of agents and brokers. It is alleged that because the superintendent is officially subordinate to the head of the department of trade and commerce any one feels that his decision is not final and that "owing to this double decked arrangement the department of insurance has lost caste immensely with other states."

Much the same or equally plausible reasons undoubtedly would be urged for the independence of other departments or bureaus. It is desirable that they should not be allowed to obscure the considerations of coördination and economy. It is significant that the chamber's insurance committee touches very gingerly upon this. It notes that Gov. Lowden conceived the idea of combining a number of bureaus, commissions and departments under one supervising head, and that this was "in the interest of economy and tended to coördinate the work of the state" in respect of "a number of small bureaus." The committee generously admits that "the step taken was effective in most respects," but apparently not in respect to the bureau they are specially concerned with.

By this process the coördination which was one of Gov. Lowden's most constructive contributions to good government in Illinois can be steadily disintegrated under one plausible influence or another. The reasons given in this instance do not seem weighty as against those in favor of the coördination carefully and wisely established under Gov. Lowden. It is everywhere the nature of bureaus to resent control and to seek to increase their authority and prestige.

Editorial of the Day

[Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.]

Objection from Nicaraguan sources to the projected withdrawal of all American marines, now in Nicaragua, by the end of this year indicates the obstacles which the Washington policy of getting out of the country faces.

The Nicaraguan government insisted that the marines, which had given satisfaction to the leaders and following of both parties in the supervision of the presidential election of 1928, perform a similar service in the elections this year. In compliance with this request the administration strengthened the force to make it adequate for the job, but declared its purpose to withdraw the entire number by the end of the year.

Now Nicaraguan statesmen have in mind making constitutional changes, and suggest that some marines, or at least some marine officers, be retained until a constitutional convention has passed upon them.

The state department is reluctant to make any change in its announced program. If it were minded to keep American marines in the country, plausible occasion for indefinite occupation would not be lacking. Such retention, giving rise to unjust aspersions on the policy of this country, is not desired. But the Nicaraguan government does not want to be left unprotected.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES (so called) went and did it yesterday. They passed a wartime tax imposing a levy of from seven to sixty-five per cent on all incomes going upwards from eight thousand dollars a year. All such shrieked "Ouch!" so loudly yesterday afternoon that all the earthquake seismographs in the observatories jumped clear off the table. But with Congressman Rainey declaring over the radio that the U. S. A. is going back $7,882,000 each and every day—what to do?

SEVEN MILLION eight hundred and eighty-two thousand dollars deeper in debt each and every day. Every day! The more we think of it the more it hurts. How we wish we might skip a day now and then. Every time we managed to miss a day the government would save seven million eight hundred and eighty-two thousand dollars. Oh that Joshua could return to the earth and visit these United States of America and once more lift up his voice and say again: "Sun, stand thou still upon Gibeon; and thou, Moon, in the valley of Ajalon."

BUT WE HAVE no Joshuas these days. And if there were he couldn't be elected keeper of the dog pound. He wouldn't even carry his own precinct. The sovereign voter is not strong for prophets; what he wants is somebody who promises him prosperity.

SONG OF THE OVERTAKEN.

Come, let us dance
On the heels of tomorrow,
With ears cocked high
To the hooves' sound of Sorrow!
For Sorrow is straddled
To a mange-eaten mare;
His head is flung back
And his black skin is bare!
Come, let us dance,
For the gay wind is blowing;
Sorrow brings clouds
And clouds bring the snowing.
Come, and dance gayly,
Breast close to breast;
Wind-mad—youth-mad—
Damned and blessed!

MR. GARNER IS THINNING OUT because he is silenter and silenter every day. The Man in the Iron Mask was an open book compared with the silent, mysterious Garner. We double dare any of the war correspondents in Washington to walk right up to Mr. Garner and ask him, "Do you think it's going to rain, Mr. Garner?" Now, almost any statesman would answer that quite frankly in the usual manner with the bright quip, "Well, it always has," but Mr. Garner would only smile sadly and say, "My boy, please, I must request you not to ask me that."

INFANTS AND CYSTS.

A READER writes: I had a baby born with a branchial cyst, which grew as he did, and weighed two pounds at the end of two months. He was then operated on. It was attached to the right shoulder and neck, and there were small cysts attached to the large one which were imbedded in the flesh under the shoulder blade.

Baby is now six months old, weighs 18 pounds, and is perfect except that shoulder blade sticks out. Is this a form or kind of tumor? Would it ever return? Is it due to improper development?

REPLY.

First, let me answer your direct questions. A branchial cyst, weighing two pounds, say about one-eighth the weight of the person, would be called a tumor. It should not return. It was due to improper development.

The way the human body develops before birth is very complicated. It proceeds according to very intricate plans and specifications laid down by some unknown force. We say there is an impulse to grow and develop in accordance with a pattern and schedule, but why or how this is we do not know.

In the formation of the air and the food tubes of the neck and face there are more than the usual number of complications and intricacies. There are a series of openings along the sides of the neck in the early stages of development. They are called branchial clefts. They have been compared to the gills of fish. In natural development these fissures, or clefts, form, at their internal parts, into certain organs or structures, and their external parts disappear entirely. If something goes wrong the result may be a fistulous tract like the ear canal, or a branchial cyst. In case there is a branchial cyst we say that a fetal branchial cleft has been obliterated at both internal and external ends, but that the middle region, for some reason, has persisted. This remnant makes a cyst wall and the secreting wall eventually fills the cyst with cyst contents—fluid, fatty, or some other nature. This is called a branchial cyst.

These cysts are apt to appear around the corners of the mouth and nose, on the cheeks and lower jaw, around the ears, on the sides of the neck, on the upper shoulder, above the collar bone and shoulder blade. They do but little harm. If completely removed they should not return.

BOILING WATER.

Mrs. O. S. writes:

1. What is the value of boiling water before drinking it?

2. When one observes the accumulation of crusty substance on the inside of a tea kettle after boiling our city water, one cannot help wondering if that same condition exists in the stomach when we drink unboiled water.

REPLY:

1. It kills disease-producing bacteria if the water is polluted. In some places it is advisable to heat the water for this purpose. In most places it is not.

2. It does not. Boiling precipitates some of the so-called scale in hard waters. However, this does not precipitate from water in the digestive tract. As a rule hard waters are wholesome. However, some of them are too hard—alkali water, for example.

RIDGES ON FINGER NAILS.

A. G. S. writes: I am troubled with ridges in my finger nails. Do they indicate poor health? I am troubled with nervousness. Would that be the cause?

REPLY:

It is more likely that the cause of these ridges is living in air that is too dry, or exposing the fingers to soap and water, to chemicals, to cold, or to some irritant suggested by the mention of these.

SETTLING ESTATE.

Chicago, March 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—An estate, consisting of cash, bonds, and a mortgage maturing in April, 1931, for $3,500, is overdue for settlement. The administrator is holding up final settlement because the purchaser of the real estate has not made settlement. 1. Is there any reason why a partial settlement cannot be made at once? 2. Is this entirely at the discretion of the administrator or the court? 3. Is it possible to replace either the administrator or the attorney for the estate? 4. They were appointed by the judge. 5. How do you go about doing this? 6. Would it be possible for one of the heirs to procure a copy of the inventory of the assets? 7. I understand the administrator is required to make two copies, one of which he retains and the other goes to the judge. 8. If this is true, to whom would one apply, to the administrator or the judge? 9. Under Indiana law what is the status of the widow of a direct heir? The case I have in mind is as follows: A man's mother died leaving him an heir "according to statute" [not by a will] and before the estate is settled he dies. Does his widow have any claim as an heir? F. E. M.

1. No compelling reason appears on the bare facts that you state.

2. No, but if a small delay would put him in a position to cover the entire matter in one distribution, then the delay would seem reasonable.

3. Yes, on proper proof.

4. The appointment of the administrator is ordinarily made on petition of one of the relatives, without the judge exercising any active choice. The administrator appoints the attorney.

5. Probably it would be necessary to employ another attorney for such step.

6. Yes, but you would have to pay for it.

7. The second copy goes to the inheritance tax office.

8. Apply to the clerk of the Probate court for a certified copy.

9. Such widow would share.

CHINA-JAPAN WAR, 1894

SHANGHAI, Oct. 12.—The rumor is current here that the Chinese government has commenced negotiations with Japan for peace. It is said that China has offered to acknowledge the independence of Corea and pay a war indemnity to Japan.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 12.—It is semi-officially announced here that Great Britain is doing its best to induce the powers to join in an attempt to secure a cessation of the war between China and Japan.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 12.—The state department has not received any advices confirmatory of the rumor coming from Shanghai that China has sued for peace and the report meets with little credence.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 13.—Efforts of the United States naval department toward increasing its force in Chinese waters have resulted in the hurried completion of the 5,800 ton cruiser Olympia, which will soon be delivered to the Mare island navy yard, and as soon as its complement of 460 sailors, marines, and officers can be provided it will be sent to the far east war zone. A large force is busy completing the inside works of the battleship Oregon, the crack cruiser of the navy, which will cost the government more than $2,000,000 when completed.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 15.—A cablegram from United States Minister Denby at Peking says the reports of danger to foreign residents of Peking are exaggerated. An imperial edict has been published assuming for the government full responsibility for the protection of the foreign residents. The Chinese overtures for peace have been rejected without a hearing by Japan.

WIE JU, Oct. 15.—The Japanese and Chinese armies are facing each other on the banks of the Yalu river and both are perfecting arrangements for a battle. Field Marshal Count Yamagata, commander of the Japanese forces, is awaiting the arrival of supplies and heavy artillery. Spies report that the Chinese army is 25,000 strong.

28 YEARS AGO TODAY

LONDON.—The report comes from St. Petersburg this morning that the Vladivostok squadron dynamited its way through the ice in the harbor last Tuesday and put to sea. The report states, further, that it is conjectured at St. Petersburg that the fleet has gone to Saghalien island. If the news is true it proves that the squadron was really inside the harbor at Vladivostok when the Japanese fleet bombarded that port on March 6. The statement that Admiral Reitzenstein has taken his fleet to Saghalien island is not credited here. Naval experts believe he will try to effect a juncture with the main squadron at Port Arthur. A dispatch to a Paris newspaper reports the squadron left Vladivostok seventy-two hours ago, but that Russian officials will give no hint of its destination. All advices from the far east indicate that Russia is making hurried preparations to resist a Japanese attack upon Newchwang. The Standard's Tientsin correspondent says that Paul Lesser, Russian minister to China, has renewed his protest against the dispatch of Chinese forces outside the great wall, and intimated that unless they are withdrawn Russia may be compelled to act on the assumption that China is abandoning her neutrality in favor of Japan.

LONDON.—The Newchwang correspondent of the Times asserts that there are no Japanese north of the Yalu river, and that none of their scouts has been seen there since the beginning of March. On the other hand, the correspondent says, the Russians are reported to have crossed the Yalu river to the south.

CHEFOO.—It is reported that the Russian forces in Corea number 99,000 men. No further movements are planned before Gen. Kouropatkin's arrival. The Russians were entirely confident of success on land. The Manchurian villagers were friendly, bringing in daily a big supply of fresh provisions to the moving regiments.

MARCH 19, 1916.

MEXICO CITY.—The minister of war, Gen. Obregon, issued a decree declaring all participants in the Columbus raid outside the law. The decree gives the right to any citizen to apprehend and kill, if necessary, the followers of Villa who crossed the American frontier. The first victim of the decree was summarily executed today in the city of Hermosillo, near which place he was captured by men who denounced him as one of the raiding party. The authorities declare that the efforts to run down the bandits will increase with time and that the government will not rest until all those guilty of the crime against the United States have been run to earth.

MARFA, Tex.—A messenger from Mexico arrived at Presidio with a report that Villa bandits were mobilizing to attack Presidio. Most of the American women have left Marfa. Carranza troops were reported cooperating with the American forces for possible defense against bandits.

EL PASO, Tex.—The first phase of the American expedition into Mexico, the rush along Villa's dim trail to the endangered Mormon colonies—400 at Durban and 500 at Casas Grandes—was an accomplished fact tonight, completed, according to reports reaching the Columbus base, without the firing of a hostile shot by the Americans. The second phase already was beginning, it was indicated here, as the Americans turned somewhere from Casas Grandes to resume their night marches toward the rough mountain slopes where it is known Pancho Villa already has preceded them with more than 100 miles start.

LONDON.—Marked slackening in the violence of the German assault around Verdun has convinced French military critics that the crown prince is about to abandon the offensive. This conviction was expressed in several dispatches from Paris. Coupled with it was the hint that defeat for the Teutons at Verdun will be followed shortly by a great French offensive.

THE FARM BOARD IN ACTION.

Chicago, March 14.—James C. Stone, chairman of the federal farm board, is quoted as saying:

"We have made mistakes, yes; but what I think is fair, if an investigation is made, is this: Do not put the first effort that has been made to help the farmers of this country on trial without investigating the other fellow who has been handling farm commodities under the old system. Then compare the two. I think that would be very enlightening.

"Let us see which is the best plan. Let us see how much they have been making out of the old system in handling farm commodities. That is all I have asked in connection with an investigation."

The writer is not actively aware of the cotton or wheat situation, although the farm board's activities seem to speak for themselves. Regarding fruits and vegetables, however, we are intimately acquainted with the true situation, and to say we would welcome the investigation Mr. Stone mentions is putting it mildly. We have been selling car lot fruits and vegetables, strictly as growers' agents, for the last forty-five years. An investigation will reveal whether our service warrants praise or criticism.

The farm board has formed a fruit and vegetable marketing exchange. In doing this they have set up offices and hired many men, necessarily incurring heavy expense. Then the Farm Board Marketing association sells in our market and in other markets through one of the private marketing concerns already in existence. In a letter quoted in last week's Chicago Packer, written by Mr. Leper—one of the heads of the Fruit and Vegetable Farm Board Marketing association—Mr. Leper writes their brokerage charge per car will be the same as those which already govern.

In other words, Mr. Stone's setup in our business does not eliminate one single item of expense, but adds more. Where the farm board broker formerly dealt with his growers and shippers, now he deals with them through an additional marketing cog—the farm board's fruit and vegetable exchange. The farm board broker charges the usual brokerage and the farm board marketing organization itself will undoubtedly have to milk the taxpayers—farmers included—for the extra expense, as the brokerage generally charged in our business could not possibly support both the brokers and the farm board marketing organization. They may claim this will do so, but we handle fruit and vegetable car lots in volume and know what our actual profit amounts to.

We and our reputable competitors always welcome constructive government supervision, but the farm board racket should be done away with, as the resultant waste in our fruit and vegetable business alone will cost the people of this country plenty they cannot afford to lose at this time.

V. C. TAGGART,
Fry Brokerage Company.

THE MARKETING OF LIVE STOCK.

De Kalb, Ill., March 14.—The poor live stock exchanges shedding crocodile tears all over the meeting place because the farm board is destroying their nice fat business! Stupid as the farm board has been in most of its dealings, I don't think it could be blamed for the destruction of the live sock exchanges. Any organization that has not vision enough to look beyond its nose deserves destruction.

The commission men and the exchanges are charging the farmer just as much to sell and handle three dolar hogs and cattle as they did in the wartime, when hogs and cattle were $20 per hundredweight. That is why farmers are shipping their stock direct to packers. Farmers know that this will eventually destroy the market, but their plight is such in these times that if they don't get every dollar possible right now future markets won't interest them.

If the exchanges are looking for sympathy they need not come to the farmer, for the live stock producers know that sooner or later a farmer owned system must be established. We cannot afford to pay the unreasonable charges made by commission men for service and feed at the present live stock prices.

EXPERT ASSESSORS.

Chicago, March 15.—Now that a new assessor has been appointed and a new assessment is to be made, it is hoped that the new assessor will appoint men who are qualified to value buildings, who how costs, and understand depreciation of buildings. I suggest that, as there are a great many in the building business who are idle, a selection could be made among the architects and engineers who would be glad of the opportunity and who would render real service, nothing obligated to some politician, who usually appoints because of the ability of the appointee to corral votes, and whose sole interest is in the pay check he receives and any other graft he may manage on the side. We could get an intelligent, honest assessment by men of character rather than a so-called assessment by political ward heelers and hangers-on of the "riff-raff" class. TAXPAYER.

ALASKA.

Chicago, March 16.—As a former Alaskan, who has spent several years in Alaska, I feel it a duty to warn the unemployed of Chicago of an entirely wrong impression that might have been made by Bishop Rowe's suggestion in a recent TRIBUNE interview that "a few hundred thousand of Chicago's jobless be sent" to Alaska, which, according to the bishop, is a golden paradise for "the down and outer"—a paradise flowing with milk and honey to be had without money and without price.

I believe in the future greatness of Alaska, and I know that Alaskans generally are as noble a people as live on the face of the globe; but Alaska is certainly no place for the great army of our unemployed. If there should be a stampede of the unemployed to Alaska the coming summer only the steamship companies and other allied interests would be benefited, at the bitter expense of the rainbow chasers.

Chicago, March 14. — We are contemplating forming a riding club and have selected as a name, The Saddle Guild. We would like an expression from some one regarding the word "guild" used in this connection. Would the word "society" be better fitted for a riding club? Also, there is a riding club called "Onwentsia." What is the meaning of this word? I. J. I.

STATE OWNED RAILROADS OF INDIA SHOW LOSS

Private Lines Found to Be Breaking Even.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 18.—The strange combination of a socialistic enterprise—the railroads of India—operated by one of the most centralized, all powerful governments in the world is treated in the report for 1930-'31 just issued here. It shows that the government is a poor railroading organization, for state owned and operated lines returned a loss on capital of 1.31 per cent, whereas lines under private management almost broke even with a loss of .11 per cent.

The total financial investment in all railroads of India, including those under construction, amounted to about £617,000,000 [$3,085,000,000 normally]. Of this amount, about £61,000,000 was contributed by Indian states.

Buy Up Railways.

Much of the money was spent in purchasing railways rebuilt by British capital. They were at first managed by companies, but later were purchased by the government at prices fixed in the original contracts. In many cases the amount was raised by loans by the government of India, and the debt was added to the public debts of the government. The amount of sterling loans for this purpose is fixed at £150,000,000.

Out of this sum about £29,275,000 was written off by the operation of the annuities and sinking fund. At the end of March, 1931, the amount of private capital owned by companies was about £25,000,000.

The chief reason for the state railways deficit was revealed by the government spokesman in a debate in the central legislature. The discussion hinged upon a resolution for the purchase of the Assam-Bengal railway. The railway's contract expired Dec. 31, 1931, and under the terms the company would be permitted to continue administering the line for another ten years unless due notice was given.

Too Well Managed.

The government decided not to purchase the railway because, it was stated, that the road had been economically managed and that salary increases in line with those on other state operated lines probably would be demanded if the change took place. Privately operated railways in India have lower wage scales than those operated by the state. One of the arguments for placing this particular line under government management was that salaries and wages could not be forced upon the present operators without strikes and labor upheavals.

The story of the autocratic government of India operating the railroads goes back to the days of the East India company. This privately owned trading concern had ceded to it by the crown all the authority of government. Although the directors found it convenient to use the finances of other people to build the lines, they had the traders' instinct to secure the possibility of regaining control over them at a later date when the spadework had been finished.

Reserves Right to Purchase.

The terms in the contracts were, therefore, so worded that the East India company reserved the right to purchase the lines after 25 or 50 years on terms "calculated to be the equivalent of the companies' interests therein and also to enable the companies to surrender their lines to the government and to receive in return the capital at par."

Lord Dalhousie as governor general introduced this policy in 1854 and it was adopted by the directors of the East India company.

The mutiny of 1857 forced the British government to take over the management of India from the hands of the company, and the government with all its privileges reverted to the crown. A policy adapted to suit the terms of the original contracts was instituted, and exists today.

RUTHVEN SAYS EDUCATION MUST MEET THE TIMES

DR. A. G. RUTHVEN.

Higher education must further adjust itself to the economic world of today or it will fail of its purpose, delegates to the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools meeting at the Stevens hotel were told yesterday by Dr. A. G. Ruthven, president of the University of Michigan.

"It is futile to attempt to prove that a university should exist for the sole purpose of training scholars for simply providing a cultural background for others," Dr. Ruthven said. "A cultured man or woman without a business, if such a person exists, is like a flowering weed—possibly beautiful, but out of place."

Dr. A. A. Reed, university examiner of the University of Nebraska, was elected president of the association; Dr. A. H. Upham, president of Miami university, Oxford, O., and F. E. Edgerton, state high school supervisor of Kansas, vice presidents, and F. L. Hunt, Culver Military academy, Culver, Ind., and Dean J. E. Stout of Northwestern university, members of the executive committee.

Dr. Ruthven also spoke at the annual banquet of the University of Michigan club at the Auditorium hotel last night. A. Loomis Kirkpatrick was elected president of the club. Junius B. Wood spoke on conditions in Russia.

William Beebe Charms Again in New Essays

Stories on Science Topics Given Praise.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Nonsuch," by William Beebe. [Brewer, Warren & Putnam.] Published yesterday.

TO some of us there is no writer with the peculiar charm of William Beebe. He is a wholly satisfying chronicler in that his pages appeal alike to the intellect, the emotions and the artistic sense. He is a scientist of the first water. He writes popular essays with his left hand. He once said to me when I had berated him for not writing more books that I could read, "If I should ever get rich I would never write another line of an essay. Yesterday I discovered a fact about the embryo of a fish. That fact would be one line in a scientific paper. It would be little more in a popular essay. But that is where my heart is. I might sing about my essays, 'My heart's in the laboratory, my heart is not here.' My essays are a sort of automatic writing."

WILLIAM BEEBE.

He has, however, the almost unique faculty of making scientific fact exciting to the layman, of passing on to the readers of his essays something of his passion for his subject. He is emotionally stirred by the discovery of a provable fact about the embryo of a fish, or by a man's eye view into the home life of a snail, or by the mystery of a bird's flying thousands of miles against all hazards in his irresistible urge to migrate.

Will Beebe's life has been spent searching out the mysteries of the lives of creatures and growths of whose real names we are wholly ignorant. But he has never lost the zest of that search, and his ability to share that zest gives his books a wholly satisfying emotional appeal to intelligent readers.

Artistically he gives us the comfort of reading really beautiful English turned by his skill idiomatically without ever losing its purity. He has a rare style, and that style is a constant joy to me.

In "Nonsuch," a collection of essays like those rare delights, "Jungle Peace," "Edge of the Jungle," and "Jungle Days," Mr. Beebe talks about simple creatures so beguilingly that he takes you wholly out of the buzzy, fuzzy world and opens a door into a calm and a peace and a "rightness" that is rejuvenating to the spirit. The "friends" whom you visit with him are butterflying fish, flounders, who are real flying carpets, birds with uselessly lovely plumage, little creatures that play over the body of a great blue shark, cedars, snails, crabs, and they are so much more vitally interesting than most of the people one is introduced to!

There is one chapter about "Milord the Weather," which is a masterpiece of creative writing about a subject which by this time has certainly been whipped by conversation until it should be all frayed and hanging in ribbons like a flag in a gale. Mr. Beebe describes a gale, a hurricane on the little island of Nonsuch, that you will never forget. The island is a tiny one off the end of Bermuda where the scientific station which Mr. Beebe rules brilliantly and delightfully under the auspices of the New York Zoölogical society is situated. "Nonsuch" is published under their auspices, but it is mental manna for the layman nevertheless.

In one essay (Mr. Beebe's essays are so full of so many luscious bits of writing that it is almost a misnomer to call any essay about any one subject) the author says: "For a year and a half when I was a boy I used to climb out of a dormer window every late afternoon on to a zinc gutter and in a most uncomfortable position write a description of a sunset. The only thing I recall now is that my sentences grew shorter and shorter toward the end of the eighteen months, which was encouraging, and that I learned to write without looking at the paper, because the color changed so quickly that if I took my eye away I was sure to miss something."

The essence of Mr. Beebe's scientific character and artistic integrity is in that sentence. From his boyhood he has been a tireless and conscientious observer and he trained himself as a lad to be accurate in his word jugglings . . . There is something very touching about the picture of that boy on his precarious ledge trying to catch in words the wonder of the sunset—and keeping at it for eighteen months!

For whatever ails you in these days of many torments take Beebe regularly until the supply is exhausted and alleviation of your personal woes (if not a permanent cure) is certain.

Goethe, German Genius, Studied in Simple Story

Good Biography Written for Centenary.

BY JOHN ERSKINE.

"Goethe, Man and Poet," by Henry W. Nevinson. [Harcourt Brace.]
"The Germans, an Inquiry and an Estimate," by George N. Shuster. [Dial.]

Here are two studies of the German genius, one by an Englishman, the other by an American. They suggest fruitful comparisons.

GOETHE.

This life of Goethe has been prepared for the centenary of the poet's death on March 22, 1832. Mr. Nevinson has no discoveries to communicate and no new interpertations to propose, but, availing himself of the life by Bielschowsky and of the other well known sources, he has created a simple and persuasive portrait of one of the noblest and most energetic human spirits.

If one is not already acquainted with the events of Goethe's life it is an advantage to know them first in a simple volume like this. A full account of Goethe is likely to confuse the novice; there must be so many discussions of his relations with various men and women, of the philosophical and other problems raised by his writings, of the influence of Werther at one stage of his career, and of Faust later. Mr. Nevinson contents himself with showing us a creative mind meeting a fortunate opportunity, and once we have understood this significance of Goethe's life we can fill in the details at leisure.

Goethe felt that he was impelled to all his work by an inner urge; that his best writings were forced out of him by a power over which he had little control. He did not lead the conventional career of a literary man; against his inclinations he studied law to please his family, and he secured freedom from this unloved profession by accepting a post at the court of the duke of Weimar. In this little town of six thousand inhabitants he spent his great powers in practical work, in administration, in education, in landscape gardening. One might have expected a literary flame to be quenched by so many humdrum duties, but out of this discipline of life his researches in science and his colossal achievements in literature grew, as we now can see, inevitably, since he was what he was.

The service in Weimar proved for him not a distraction from his destiny but a door to it. This is to say that he had that authentic kind of creative impulse which will burst through temporary confinements and which will convert unpromising experience into material for its dream. He left us, to be sure, a large number of works unfinished, and if he had enjoyed the seclusion of a poetic cloister perhaps he would have pushed to a conclusion more of the enterprises which fascinated him. But it is not certain that from any cloister he would have drawn power and fertility. He might have completed more poems, but he might also have had fewer to complete and less important.

Our own poet philosopher, Emerson, who loved Goethe, drew from his example the doctrine which he handed on to us in America, that though the artist and scholar are tempted by their tastes to withdraw from life, yet it is only in the thick of daily experience that they can find the true source of inspiration, and the just standards by which to measure their products. If a mind feebly creative cannot function in the noise and dust of the practical world, perhaps it is not worth while to make the world safe for feebly creative minds.

Mr. Shuster's book on the Germans is an informing study of the background of Germany today, of its cultural and political organization, of the forces which divide it, and of the other forces which are molding it into a new nation. We can read this book with profit, whether or not we are already acquainted with modern Germany.

But it is from the biography that one gets perhaps the strongest sense of the German temper, the urge to build and to create, which made Germany for decades the most craftsmanlike country in the world, the most industrious in creative ways, the most resourceful and enterprising in education, in science and in art. When other countries have also been creative, one suspects that it was by the same principle—by accepting the center of each man's world as the starting point for his work, and by developing life rather than by trying to escape from it.

ALBERT the GOOD and THE VICTORIAN REIGN
By Hector Bolitho

HECTOR BOLITHO has based this rich biography of the Prince Consort upon new and exciting documents which he has discovered in Coburg and other parts of Germany and also upon many unpublished letters found in England. His source material includes ten manuscript volumes of letters, never before published, which Albert wrote to his brother, Duke Ernst. These cover the twenty years Prince Albert lived in England. The result is a rich and vital biography, destined to change our estimates of Albert, the Queen and of the whole Victorian reign.

'The Brothers,' by Strong, Is Signal Success

London News as Told by Swinnerton.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON, March 18.—L. A. G. Strong's new novel, "The Brothers," published here, and already a signal success, is one of his best books. This young author—he is only 35—is among the best and most interesting of those who are not doing literary stunts. When he writes a book it is because he has a story to tell; he is not a hunter after popularity at any price; he has intelligence, great sense of beauty, and an exceptional insight into human nature.

L. A. G. STRONG.

He is of Irish parentage, as readers of "The Garden" will have recognized; and he was born in Devonshire. He is well acquainted with Scotland. Having taken his degree at Oxford, he turned schoolmaster, and was for several years a master at a school near Oxford.

He is now settled in London, and is doing much literary work outside his novels. But it is the novels which are his most notable work. Readers who can appreciate quiet beauty and understanding should hasten to read "The Brothers." They will find what is in effect a long story, which some writers would have made interminable, offered with such brevity and certainty that they will rejoice to meet an author who is neither verbose nor pretentious. This is one of the good books that can be enjoyed.

It must have been noticed what a revival there has been, not necessarily in the reading of Sir Walter Scott's novels, but in the publication of books about Scott. Some of them very good books, too. One by Stephen Gwynn, one by Donald Carswell, and now one by Col. John Buchan is to appear soon.

Col. Buchan first came into notice as a writer a good many years ago, when he wrote eerie stories about the Highlands. But it was not long before he was a popular romancer upon a larger scale. His thrillers made him a nationally known author. But he is a keen student of history, and his own historical works and romances of past times have shown how deep is his interest in the life from which our life has developed. History and romance—were these not Scott's own enthusiasms? A book on Scott by Col. Buchan will be welcome, because there is not another man who combines these enthusiasms today as he does.

Col. Buchan has had a varied history. He has been publisher as well as author. The great firm of Nelson owes much to him. But he has now retired from publishing, and has become a member of the British parliament. He thus has more leisure for literary enterprises of his own; and the book on Scott is evidence of this. It should be a good book.

A new book that is attracting much interest here is A. G. Street's "Farmer's Glory!" Mr. Street was born and brought up on a farm in the west of England. He went to Canada to farm as a young man, and returned to England at the beginning of the late war. It is of his own experiences that he tells in "Farmer's Glory," and the experiences are not less interesting than Mr. Street's manner of relating them, and picturing the men and women with whom he has come into close contact in the course of his adventures.

Part of Norsemen in Early America Subject of Holand

"The Kensington Stone," by Hjalmar R. Holand [Holand] is the result of 20 years of interesting and painstaking research on the part of the author. It is conceded by most scholars that in the eleventh century Leif Ericson discovered America, but it is still a disputable point whether this discovery was followed by continuous emigrations of Norsemen.

Holand, with primarily the evidence of the Kensington stone, states that over the period of 400 years after Ericson's famous trip there were expeditions to this country from the Norseland. Since so much of his research rests upon the authenticity of the stone itself, the author has devoted most of his book to an examination of it. He carefully weighs the research that has led to the belief that the Kensington stone was a forgery and comes to the conclusion that not only is there no decisive evidence that the inscription, in runic symbols, on the stone is not authentic, but also that there is no external evidence to give any indication whatsoever that the stone was a forgery.

Many of his deductions depend upon the fact that Scandinavian arms and implements of medieval times were unearthed in western Minnesota, and that there was a tribe of Indians called the Mandans which in many respects gave evidence of Norse contact. The exact date of the lost Norse expedition is still undetermined, but the conclusion is that it was around 1362. This is an extremely valuable book, carefully documented, and as far as can be now estimated throws an important light on a hitherto blank period in pre-Columbian American history.

Too Many Gypsies Offer to Play for Bercovici

Konrad Bercovici has been annoyed lately by a steady stream of gypsy visitors at his hotel in New York. Ever since it was made public that he intended to conduct a gypsy orchestra over the radio he has been besieged by anxious gypsies each of whom swears his ability to play on musical instruments is unsurpassed. The gayly dressed gypsies, though picturesque and charming enough in their way, nevertheless cause some disturbance in a midtown New York hotel.

To the Man Who Knows Its Origin Every Word Presents a Picture

CALCULATE

The ancient Romans had no adding machines. Even the art of writing was the accomplishment of comparatively few. So their counting and reckoning was done with the aid of little stones used as counters. The Latin word for the pebble used in this way was calculus, derived from calx meaning "limestone." From calculus was developed the verb calculare, "to calculate," and this is the immediate origin of our word calculate.

The branch of mathematics which we call calculus was named directly from the little counting stone of ancient Rome.

Prices Cheer Shoppers for Smart Attire

Ensemble Values Are Astonishing.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

IF a breakfast-hunting early bird stumbled into a well filled can of fishworms he wouldn't be any more dazzled than bargain hunting shoppers will be during the ensuing spring days when they discover in many smart Chicago shops all kinds of extraordinarily good looking costumes with low price marks. The price tags will make some shoppers mop their brows from the pleasant shock and surprise. This is the time to scrape together all available and unattached shekels, join the army of those who have been convinced that spenders are menders of all torn or raveled financial edges worn by dollar hoarders who clutched too tightly.

It's positively amazing what a few willing dollars can buy this spring . . . smart tailored furless coats, for instance, the kind of coats you could easily convince the most knowing shopper as being the fashion find of the year, soft pedaling the extremely low price lest your statements be politely but skeptically disregarded.

Two or Three for the Price of One.

Dresses, too, distract with their chic and color, luring even the seasoned shopper into a state of frenzied indecision until the attractive low prices are quoted and calm reason has been restored. Invariably the still breathless shopper departs with two and even three models purchased for a sum that formerly was expended on just one. These may be hectic days for some people, but women who know clothes and values are certainly getting all the breaks.

About the most astonishing values are the two piece ensembles that have lately been received and triumphantly displayed in nearly every shop . . . ensembles that consist of a long, slender coat that is a sleek shadow of fashion and a separate smartly designed dress. A most unusual model featured a coat of beige crêpe woolen material made to fit and accentuate the slender curves of the wearer . . . the sleeves are long and rather wide at the wrist . . . a very narrow brown patent leather belt is buckled with a large metal square. The coat is faced deeply with the silk of the dress, which in this twosome is made of narrow striped black and white silk . . . the princess silhouette is achieved in the dress with waist sections cut with the stripes, horizantal, and the remainder up and down . . . two small buttons keep it closed to effect a high neckline . . . two similar buttons close the short sleeves and the inevitable scarf ties in a bow under the chin.

The entire ensemble can be transformed with a black crêpe dress or a dark green frock or light beige sheer wool sports dress. Accessories will render splendid color coöperation with this costume . . . gloves, shoes, hats, or handbag in contrasting color can collaborate to make the most successful model in your wardrobe.

Another Good. Ensemble.

Another ideally mated ensemble is one that uses a long blue rough woolen coat in the new cornflower blue shade over a printed dress, with blue and vermilion designs on a darker blue background. The dress has long sleeves and clings closely around the waistline . . . bows of self material trim the sleeves and blouse. The coat can be buttoned high at the neck and worn with a scarf or silk or fur . . . or it can be very military and swagger when opened with wide lapels folded toward the shoulders . . . you could change this costume by a clever selection of differently colored dresses, either in plain or printed fabrics, as well as waving a magic influence with accessories of, for instance, golden yellow.

These are but two of some of the best buys smart women will find in the shops this season . . . two models from collections that are so low in price that all of us can be thrifty possessors of quite a few new spring models with a substantial surplus still intact in our clothes allowance.

Sirovich Clashes with Writers at Drama Luncheon

New York, March 18.—[Special.]—Representative William T. Sirovich locked horns today with Heywood Broun and Ed Sullivan on the subject of dramatic criticism at the annual luncheon of the Drama Study club at the Waldorf Astoria in the presence of an audience which included Daniel Frohman, Jesse Lasky, and a number of other theatrical and motion picture celebrities.

Mr. Sullivan accused Dr. Sirovich of "insincerity." Mr. Broun said the attempt to curb dramatic criticism by legislation was "silly." Dr. Sirovich charged some of the dramatic critics with "murder," citing the case of Tyrone Power, who, he said, died because he was called a "ham." Henry Hull, speaking for the actors, assailed what he called "the Wisecracking school of critics." Whereupon Mr. Broun came to the defense of the "wisecrack."

At the end, Dr. Sirovich, on the verge of tears, charged that "his reputation, built up in twenty-five years of public service has been dragged down to the gutter over night by certain dramatic critics."

Los Angeles, Cal., March 18.—(AP)—A delicate spinal operation was performed successfully today on Eve Southern, film actress. Later she was reported in "fair condition." She suffered a fracture of several vertebrae in a toboggan accident March 6, and surgeons, who said the spine began to knit out of line, wrapped her in a plaster cast.

Parisienne Sponsors Long Silk Coat Resembling Wool for Afternoon Wear

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — Long coats made of silk are in style for wear during the late spring and early summer afternoon. The silk from which such coats are made, however, tries to look as much like wool as possible, and is what makes it chic. For the making of such coats, the silk manufacturers have created silks that look like serge, spongy woolens, wool crêpe, flannels, and basket-weave woolens.

The Parisienne likes to wear a coat of such material over her light colored afternoon frocks, and the smart coat of silk is so cut that it covers the dress entirely. It isn't chic to show a dress in a different color than the coat.

The silk coat for afternoon is usually made on very soft and feminine lines, though there are a few strictly tailored silk wraps running around Paris. The illustrated coat from Philippe et Gaston is, however, the most distinguished type. This coat is made of a black spongy silk that you can scarcely distinguish from its woolen ancestor. Its double-puff sleeves are individual details that are fashionable, and so is the scarf that replaces a collar. This scarf is attached to the coat, and the ends that reach to the waistline in front are banded with ermine.

The high waistline of the coat is marked by a belt across the front and the back, but not functioning at the sides. This belt ties in front.

N. U. Faculty Bans Humor Column in Student Newspaper

"The Last Word", a humorous column, failed to appear yesterday in the Daily Northwestern, student newspaper at Northwestern university. Prof. H. F. Heidbrink, head of the board of student publications, announced that the column had been suspended indefinitely and that hereafter all student editors must submit their material to a faculty member before printing it.

"This is not censorship," Prof. Heidbrink said. "It is placing responsibility in a responsible source."

A few days ago Jack Leach resigned as chairman of the editorial board of the student paper after he had written an editorial which, it was charged, reflected the morality of the co-eds. The editorial was based on an article, "The Obscene Virgin," scheduled to appear in "M. S.," student literary magazine. Yesterday it was announced that "M. S." will appear without the article.

Illinois D. A. R. Selects Alton for Next Meeting

Quincy, Ill., March 18.—(AP)—The Illinois Daughters of the American Revolution decided at the closing session of their annual conference today to hold their 1933 convention in Alton. A resolution to urge the state legislature to enact a law requiring all teachers in tax supported schools to take an oath of allegiance to the flag and government was voted down. A substitute resolution was adopted under which a state committee was provided to handle the proposed measure and coöperate with other patriotic organizations to take it before the legislature.

First Lady of Evanston Will Be 89 Today

Cornelia Lunt Tells of Years of Living.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

"He most lives who most enjoys, most loves, and most forgives."

YEARS ago, too many to recall, Evanston's first lady, Miss Cornelia Gray Lunt, chose this simple philosophy for her own. Today, her 89th birthday, happy in spirit and happy in mind, she is the vivid example of its truth.

Flowers, books, messages—"billets doux" by the dozens—have been arriving for days at Anchorfast, the handsome brown frame house at Judson avenue and Clark street. Yesterday and the day before nieces and nephews came by plane and rail, and tonight Evanston neighbors will stop to say, "Many, many more happy birthdays." For in these 89 years of "living" Miss Lunt has surrounded herself with friends both at home and abroad.

Devoted Friends Arrange Party.

"They give my party for me—my devoted family and friends," Miss Lunt said. "They always come without being reminded, and this I appreciate most of all. It is these associations that have made my life so rich and pleasant. I can't imagine a happier old age."

Certainly it was a person like this whom La Rochefoucauld marked as an exception when he wrote his well known sentence, "Few people know how to be old." A spirit of eternal youth tempered by the mellow charm of years—this is Miss Lunt's personality which has helped make Evanston society gracious, dignified, and lovable just as her father helped make the town itself possible.

For claim to the title "First Lady of Evanston" comes to Miss Lunt through her father, Orrington Lunt, who shortly after 1850 selected the "swampy north shore" as the most attractive site for Northwestern university. His choice, however, was not that of the other founders of this new university as they had decided on Jefferson after looking over the Evanston scene. But Mr. Lunt was not to be so easily dissuaded. He made a second exploration "to the north," convinced his colleagues of its advantages and the foundations of Evanston were laid.

Refuses Name For Town.

These pioneers wanted to name the town for Mr. Lunt, but he refused, and the honor went to Dr. John Evans, who had married Mrs. Lunt's sister. Today Miss Anne Evans of Denver, daughter of Dr. Evans, who afterward went west to become territorial governor of Colorado, is in Evanston helping celebrate her aunt's birthday.

With this early interest in the north shore it was natural, when the Chicago fire of 1871 destroyed the Lunt home on what is now the site of the Auditorium hotel, that the family should turn to Evanston for a new location. Just 60 years ago Orrington Lunt built the great brown house on Evanston's lake shore that has ever since been an important center of cultural and civic activity.

Today the Orrington Lunt library on the Northwestern university campus, Orrington avenue in Evanston, and Lunt avenue in Chicago are monuments to Mr. Lunt's pioneering spirit and to his service for many years as president of the university board of trustees. About as many and as important have been Miss Lunt's activities as she has kept the stream of life flowing through the old homestead the last half century.

The Fortnightly, the University Guild at Northwestern, the Fort Dearborn branch of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and the Chicago branch of the Colonial Dames of America all look to her as one of their founders. Miss Lunt is now one of the two living charter members of the Fortnightly, the oldest woman's organization in Chicago. And with all these interests she has always found time for travel—every year at least a month or two in England. The next trip will be in August, she said yesterday.

Gives Philosophy Of Happiness.

"Life is a falling down and getting up again, both spiritual and physical," Miss Lunt went on, "and if I can't run I'll walk. Age does not need to be drab and arid. It can be full of vividness and interest. That's what keeps me so happy.

"I have a feeling of sympathy and affection with the young. They have changed today. They are sophisticated and have more knowledge—they are so far advanced. But they begin earlier to understand life."

It is with this feeling about life that Miss Lunt goes on winning friends year after year. The warm attachment they continue to hold for her is best expressed, perhaps, in a letter she received only this week from the Baroness von Militz, who was recently her house guest. "I love you, beautiful lady. I love you more than yesterday and less than tomorrow."

Church to Receive Letter Written by Jenny Lind

A letter in the handwriting of Jenny Lind, "Swedish Nightingale," will be presented tomorrow to St. Ansgarius Swedish Episcopal church, 2514 Thorndale avenue. The famous singer helped to found this church, and donated a chalice which is today valued at $10,000. The letter she wrote referred to the chalice. The missive will be presented by Attorney Thomas Lindskog, who received it from his father, a former pastor of the church, to the Rev. William Tullberg, present rector.

Playboy Weds Church Mouse; Trouble Starts

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Here's the tale of a little church mouse married to the "Man Everybody Knew for a Playboy." Their marriage was a surprise to everybody, as such unions always are. He had been playing around with the gayest girls—out every evening somewhere. This girl one evening; another, the next. Night clubs, drinking, dancing!

Three or four years of this, with occasional inventories of its unsatisfactory financial status, and a sudden longing for "something different" drew Mr. Playboy's attention to the soft voiced, nondrinking, home loving 'maid of our tale.' So, they were married. And for months he was the husband thrilled to the core with his quiet pal and the serenity with which she managed to envelop him. For nearly a year he played the rôle of the reformed playboy.

Then, signs of restlessness began to exhibit themselves. He'd call up an old pal, ask about the old crowd, and then sit down to an evening of moodiness. Finally, he began making excuses to get out for the evening. This and that call meant a contact that would serve him in business, so he alibied.

The little church mouse turned the futile old weapon of tears on him. She shed more and more tears, until finally he didn't tell her about the "valuable business contacts" any more. He just didn't come home to dinner. And at the present moment the bride of a year or more has decided her man doesn't love her, and she loves him so much she'll give him his freedom if that's what he wants.

Give him freedom—yes! But not the legal kind. That isn't what the restless one wants, at all. What he wants is a little grownup understanding of a restless nature. And the way to go about giving that is to dry up the tear ducts, forget the silly babble about the man loving you no longer.

Dress up and suggest that you wouldn't mind having a little fling, yourself—with him and his old pals! Be the pal in his restless hours as well as his quiet ones. No criticism of his old friends, understand. Let that come from him—later! Swallow what you may not like with grim determination to hold on to the man you love.

The chances are that, with a cheerful youth along on these expenditions, the old glamour will evaporate and presently the former playboy will find himself too grownup for such silly business.

Poor Feast on Wild Ducks Seized by Game Wardens

Evansville, Ind., March 18.—[Special.]—Thanks to four hunters who bagged sixty-one wild ducks out of season, and to A. E. Holstein and Pat Williams, state game wardens who confiscated them and turned them over to the Evansville rescue mission, approximately 125 hungry persons will dine upon wild duck tomorrow at the mission. The hunters, who had been shooting in the bottoms near Hovey lake, Posey county, had loaded their kill upon horses and started to leave when the wardens stepped in.

Horned Toad Race Sporting Event for Arizona Visitors

Receive Interesting News About Chicagoans in Southern Holiday Land.

BY JUDITH CASS.

FROM Arizona come these interesting bits about Chicagoans: Mrs. Robert M. Hutchins accompanied the Barney Goodspeeds to Castle Hot Springs for an early spring vacation—Dr. and Mrs. Franklin H. Martin have left Phoenix, where they went early in the winter, and are in Santa Barbara, but they will return to Phoenix the end of this month for a brief stay before coming on to Chicago—Jarvis Hunt has as his guests at his Arcadia residence, just outside Phoenix, his son, Jarvis Jr., and Ernest Waud of Chicago.

Our correspondent adds that she saw the Hunts and Mrs. Patterson, the senior Mr. Hunt's sister, who is spending the winter with him, at the polo game at Ingleside last Sunday with James R. Offield and Miss Betty Offield, who are at the Wrigley place in Phoenix.

The sporting event in Phoenix recently was a horned toad race held last Sunday night at the Westward Ho; horned toads are native to the Arizona desert and run instead of hop like ordinary toads. Each toad in the race had his owner's color tied around his neck and the excitement and enthusiasm over the ugly little beasts' racing ran high, so we're told. Palm Springs is to have an international horned toad race on April 1—The George Gillespies [Katherine Thorne of Chicago] have moved from an apartment in the Patio Royale to a house on Palm lane in Phoenix.

West Point Dinner Tonight.

Tales of several wars and of the days when the 90 men who will be together tonight were cadets at West Point will be revived when the Chicago West Point graduates meet for dinner at the Tavern, their annual celebration to commemorate the birth of the Military academy in March, 1802.

Col. Horatio B. Hackett is president of the Chicago Alumnus association and the men at the dinner will range from graduates of the class of 1865, Gen. Charles King, to young second lieutenants who finished at the academy last June. Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the Sixth corps area, and Gen. Bolles, commander of Fort Sheridan, also will be present.

The Tavern is to have a "comedy dinner-dance" on Saturday, April 2, that promises to be a novelty and much fun. The announcements read as follows, "Members are invited to contribute to this soirée sketches, cartoons and caricatures of other members. These graphic libels, executed [we hope] in the spirit of friendly humor, will be hung in a chamber of horrors; and there, when the revelry is at its height, a competition will be held and judgment will be passed." And also "if you think that this show will not come off, you should see the material already on hand." Can't you imagine the possibilities of such a party?

Plans for the annual Tavern April Fooleries do not seem to be progressing very rapidly, according to the chairman, Arthur Bissell, and it might be that it will be decided to dispense with the Fooleries this year, but nothing is definite yet.

Foreign Relations Anniversary.

Today's luncheon of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations will make make the tenth anniversary of the council and so will be of unusual interest, of course.

George W. Wickersham opened the first meeting on March 18, 1922, with an address on the treaties which had been negotiated at the Washington conference of that year, and since then the council has brought many outstanding men and women to Chicago to address its luncheon meetings.

Lessing Rosenwald will preside at today's luncheon, at which his excellency Dr. Richard von Kuhlmann, former imperial German secretary of state for foreign affairs, will speak on "Germany After the Elections."

At the speakers' table will be Mrs. Rosenwald, Mr. and Mrs. Graham Aldis, Mrs. Cabot Brown, the German consul and Mrs. Simon, and Dr. and Mrs. Walter Lichtenstein.

The annual Easter sale of the parish guild of the Church of the Holy Spirit will be held next Saturday at 602 Northwestern avenue, Lake Forest. Tables of flowers and plants will be in charge of Mrs. James O. Heyworth, Mrs. William E. Casselberry Jr., Mrs. Ralph S. Longstaff, and Mrs. Uri B. Grannis.

Mrs. Richard S. Mabbatt and Mrs. De Forest Hulburd will have a table of novelties. Mrs. Gilbert E. Porter III. and Mrs. T. Philip Swift are assembling a collection of Easter nests, rabbits and toys. In addition there will be homemade cake, candy, and bread, and a good many second hand books.

Chicago Kennel Club Show.

Mrs. James B. Waller will exhibit 19 of her famous pugs and 2 Russian wolfhounds at the Chicago Kennel club show to be held next Friday, Saturday, and Sunday in the First Regiment armory. Among other aristocratic canines will be two Irish wolfhounds and a pair of Labrador retrievers entered by Thomas M. Howell, two of Harold Florsheim's Airedale terriers and Henry Hooper's bull terrier.

I have no doubt that as soon as the duties of his new post, first assistant secretary of the treasury, will permit him to leave Washington for several days, James H. Douglas Jr. will board a train for Chicago to make the acquaintance of his new son, who was born yesterday morning at St. Luke's hospital. This is the Douglases' second son, James H. III, having been born about two years ago. Mrs. Douglas, who is the former Grace McGann, and the new baby are reported to be "doing nicely" by St. Luke's hospital.

Albert B. Dewey will arrive from California on April 2 for a visit with his son, Charles S. Dewey, and the latter's family. Miss Louise Dewey, who is at home from Farmington for the spring vacation, will remain in Chicago for a few days after her grandfather's arrival and then will go to Detroit for a visit with her older sister, Mrs. Frederick M. Alger Jr. [Suzette Dewey], before returning to school on April 7. The Charles Deweys' younger son, Albert P., will arrive from St. Paul's school on April 1 for the spring holidays. Mr. and Mrs. Albert B. Dewey Jr. sailed recently from San Francisco for a trip through the Panama canal to New York.

Miss Eleanor Litsinger returned yesterday from the French school in New York to spend two weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Litsinger, and her sister, Mrs. W. Calhoun Smith. Mr. and Mrs. Smith have been spending most of the winter in town with the Litsingers, only going to their Lake Forest residence for week-ends, but they expect to go to the country for the summer the middle of April. Miss Litsinger is to be a debutante of next season.

Francis Parker School Luncheon.

The Parents' association of the Francis Parker school will give a luncheon on Tuesday at 12 o'clock at the Webster hotel. The Parker school is a pioneer in progressive methods of education and was started in 1901 by Mrs. Emmons Blaine to carry out the educational ideas of Col. Francis W. Parker. Miss Anne Cooper, general secretary, will introduce John Merrill, head of the dramatic department of the school, who will talk to the parents at the luncheon, after which the school orchestra will play. The program will end with the singing of the alumni song written by Catherine Delano, now Mrs. Alexander Galt Grant of Fairhaven, Mass., who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic A. Delano of Washington, formerly of Chicago.

Willard Reed, former headmaster of the Brown and Nichols school in Boston, is the house guest for the weekend of Mr. and Mrs. George N. Northrop. Mr. Reed spoke before the senior assembly of the Chicago Latin school yesterday morning.

The men are managing a party to be given tonight by the South Suburban Winter club at the Olympia Fields Country club, and they are working hard to make their party as successful as the leap year one the women of the club gave recently. Among those who will entertain guests are Mrs. and Mrs. Harry E. Hobbs, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Blue, Dr. and Mrs. William Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph V. Lawrence, and Mr. and Mrs. Earl D. Conant.

Prague Exhibitors Protest Censorship on Foreign Films

PRAGUE, Czecho-Slovakia, March 18.—(AP)—Motion picture exhibitors protested at a meeting today against a government decree under which foreign exchange to pay for the importation of films would be granted only after the films had been passed by the censors.

The decree would apply to all foreign films and it was denied that there was any intention of discriminating against the American product. There was instead a feeling of antagonism against German films which emanated from nationalist circles, the exhibitors said.

The Czecho-Slovakian government is expected to introduce a quota system soon for the purpose of encouraging home production of movies, but the matter has not yet been decided. In event of such a system, the American quota is expected to remain in about the same proportion to the German, French and English as at present.

Postmistress to Florida Society Enjoys Her Job

Palm Beach, Fla., March 18.—(AP)—Mrs. Lola Miller will tell you that being postmistress in Palm Beach, where society basks in the sunshine, isn't much play, but she thoroughly enjoys her job.

In addition to overseeing the distribution of the mails in the society capital, she is frequently asked to recommend dry cleaners, hunt for lost or strayed husbands, or find mates for lonely men and women.

Not long ago she received a letter from a man saying he was tired of poverty and asking her to recommend some rich woman who wanted a "good faithful husband."

One girl wanted a rich husband.

But the oddest job that has fallen to the lot of the pretty brown eyed postmistress, who is known to the entire community as Miss Lola, is to weigh a dog regularly.

Fifi's wealthy owner, socially prominent, was trying out a new diet on the dog. She wanted to keep the canine's weight correctly so she trusted only to the accuracy of Uncle Sam's scales.

"Of course, I get calls every day asking what kind of weather we will have," she said.

"The most frequent question I get over the phone is 'Is it going to rain?' I'm not such a good weather prophet, but Uncle Sam is. Folks want to know about the weather so they can plan parties, go fishing, play golf.

"I like it all. I'd rather be postmaster at Palm Beach than President of the United States."

New Mexican Sister Team Enters Films

Lucy Tovar Joins Lupita at Hollywood.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., March 18.—Lucy Tovar has joined her sister, Lupita Tovar, in the Hollywood screen colony. Her arrival completes the third Mexican sister team to crash Hollywood—Lupe and Reina Velez, Raquel and Renee Torres,and now the Tovars. Lucy was given her start in a minor rôle in Universal's "Mountains in Flame."

Charlie Murray has recovered from the flu and with his family leaves for Florida March 22. Charlie recovered, strangely enough, on March 17.

All the film studios observed one minute of silence at the hour of George Eastman's funeral.

Virginia Cherrill, Chicago movie actress, and William Rhinelander are aboard the Vincent Astor yacht en route back to San Francisco from Tahiti, according to advices here. The report that Virginia and Rhinelander were to be married in the South Seas blew up as advance reports of Hollywood weddings have a habit of doing. Maybe they will be married when they come back here. The Cherrill-Rhinelander couple will return just about the time that Lily Damita and Sydney Smith, composing another "Might Marry Any Minute" couple, get back from Hawaii. There are some friendly wagers in film drawing rooms as to which, if either, couple ties the knot first.

The Fanchon and Marco company which sends stage shows with girl choruses all around the United States from Hollywood headquarters, was one of the active protesters against the Pullman company's desire to charge higher rates for railroad berths when two persons occupy one berth.

The girls here who are not absolutely certain as to the spring style trend will have their doubts resolved next week when Billie Dove is due Monday from Palm Beach. There are no immediate plans for her next film work as everything at the Caddo studio, to which she is under contract, is in abeyance until Howard Hughes, Caddo magnate, returns from yachting and flying between New York and Florida next month.

According to the Caddo Film company offices here, Jean Harlow's contract, which has three more years to run, has been adjusted to satisfaction of Howard Hughes and Miss Harlow. Jean voiced dissatisfaction with her contract before her present vaudeville campaign in the east. The Caddo offices say they expect to use the Chicago beauty in more pictures and that no deal has been arranged as hinted here, to loan her to MGM for the star rôle in "Red Headed Woman," which would change her platinum blond halo to gold.

Wallace Beery was showing some pictures of himself taken when a boy to Lionel Barrymore. "Not a bad looking kid," said Barrymore. "What happened to you?"

Garden Calls for Changes in Landscape

Vegetable Plot May Be Part of Picture.

BY PAUL POTTER.

When the family discussion turns to the addition of a vegetable garden to this summer's activities, it is time to begin planning some readjustments in the yard's landscaping.

Hundreds of gardeners in the Chicago region have learned that the vegetable plot can become an attractive part of the homesite. So, if the decision of the inner circle dictates a source of homegrown fresh vegetables, it is time to consider the building of a trellis, lattice fences, or possibly an arbor.

The arbor may become the entrance to the garden, with shrubs or lattice fence on each side. Climbing roses, clematis, morning glories [some fine large domestic types are now developed] or other climbing plants may soon cover such a structure.

The plot may be cut into quarters by means of paths and a bird bath or sun dial placed at the intersection. Shrubs may form a background for shielding one side of the patch from view, while berry bushes or a low trimmed hedge borders another side. Hollyhocks frequently are desirable for the back fence side.

The paths of the garden, instead of abruptly cutting through the soil or vegetables, may be bordered with alyssum, a low, steady flowering edging plant.

Tough Cuts of Meat Weaken with Marinade

Which Knowledge Tastily Prepares Sauerbraten.

Sauerbraten is a popular old-fashioned German dish. Generally it is made from the less tender and consequently more inexpensive cuts of meat. In order to reduce this toughness, the meat is first marinated in a vinegar and water solution. And it is this principle of marinating that we want to talk about today.

The usual marinade is a mixture of oil, acid, and seasoning. It is one of the housewife's best aids in making tough cuts of meat more tender and at the same time bringing variety into the meal through the delicious flavor it imparts.

The packing industry has done much to promote a great deal of research and experimental work on the desirable characteristics of animals in relation to the tender and palatable cuts of meat. But no matter how much these desirable characteristics are developed, there will always be some parts of the animal which are less tender as a result of muscular development. Cuts of old animals and those which do not have the characteristics of good beef carcasses always appear on the market at a lower price than the choice cuts. To make these cuts more palatable there will always be the marinade.

The main difference in the tender and less tender or tough cuts of meat lies in the fact that the fibers of all muscles are bound together by connective tissue, the tender cuts having less and the tough cuts a greater amount of this connective tissue present. When heated in water or steam this tissue is converted into gelatin. This change takes place rapidly if the meat is from young animals, and more slowly if from old ones.

It has been discovered that this connective tissue is soluble in acid. For this reason it is possible to make meat more tender by marinating it—that is, soaking it in or rubbing into it a marinade which contains acid [usually in the form of vinegar]. By this treatment even meat from the neck, which is usually considered nonusable because of its toughness, can be substituted, at least in part, for the beef in the sauerbraten recipe given today.

Besides this power to dissolve the connective tissue of the muscle, which in itself, however, is enough reason to justify its use, the marinade adds a distinctive flavor to the meat so treated. From this flavor point of view the best proportion of ingredients is considered to be three parts of oil to one of acid. Any common cooking oil is suitable and vinegar, lemon, or tomato juice can be used as the acid constituent. The proportion, of course, may be varied.

The seasonings should always include salt and pepper. Other spices and herbs may be added to produce delightful flavors—parsley, onion, bay leaf, thyme, marjoram, allspice, cloves, mustard, sage, and celery seed.

MARINADE.

¾ cup vinegar.
½ teaspoon salt.
¼ teaspoon pepper.
¾ teaspoon thyme.
¾ teaspoon sage.
¾ onion, minced.
½ teaspoon celery seed.

The marinade may be rubbed or brushed into the meat so that it penetrates into every crack and crevice, or the meat may be immersed in the marinade. The former is more economical, but the latter method probably produces a "tendering" effect in less time. A successful method of cooking marinated meats is braising.

SAUERBRATEN.

4 lbs. beef [chuck, round, or rump].
4 teaspoons salt.
1 teaspoon pepper.
1 small onion, sliced.
1 bay leaf.
1 teaspoon peppercorns.
Vinegar and water, equal parts.
¾ cup sugar.
4 or 6 gingersnaps.
½-cup raisins, if desired.

Rub the salt and pepper into meat. Place with onions, bay leaf, and peppercorns in a deep earthen dish. Add water to vinegar and add salt and sugar to taste. Pour this hot marinade over the meat so that meat is well covered. Cover dish and allow to stand in a cool place for 3 to 5 days. Put meat in kettle, add onion and a little of the marinade, place in hot oven to brown all over.

Cover and cook slowly until tender [about 3 hours]. Add more vinegar if necessary. Take the meat out, slice for serving, and keep hot. Strain liquid in kettle, skim off fat. Let one-fourth cup sugar melt in iron frying pan, add very gradually the strained liquid, then the gingersnaps and raisins. Cook until thickened and smooth, and pour while hot over meat. One cup of thick sour cream may be added to the gravy if desired.

Sight Fur Ship Lost in Arctic Three Months Ago

POINT BARROW, Alaska, March 18.—(AP)—Like a ghost rising up out of the ice of the Arctic ocean, the abandoned fur trading steamship Baychimo, missing for more than three months, today was sighted in floating ice about 10 miles off Point Barrow.

The vessel, apparently little damaged, was held in the tightly packed ice, which because of its roughness held boarding parties on shore. The ship disappeared with an ice pack south of Point Barrow.

The Baychimo was discovered by natives yesterday while they were fishing about five miles off shore. There was a sudden cracking of the ice, which began to move as the wind opened up leads, and the vessel appeared to rise out of the deep gullies in the pack. The Baychimo, a Canadian vessel, was caught in the freeze-up last fall a short distance south of Point Barrow.

South Shore Follies Score New Triumph

Applause Greets New Club Show.

Rounds of applause greeted the merry troupe of actors and chorines who danced across the stage at the South Shore Country club last night in the 1932 edition of the club follies. Snappy lines, sparkling music, and clever sets are three good reasons for joining the second audience of proud relatives and friends tonight—in case you missed last evening's performance.

From the moment the curtain rises on "The Marvel Club" [Al Jolson's wonder bar has nothing on this] to the time it drops on the grand finale, "Good-by, Good Luck," the production shows a finish seldom discovered in amateur theatricals. For this smoothness much credit is due Morrison C. Wood, and E. Malcolm Anderson, authors of the first act, and John T. Hall, who was in charge of rehearsing and staging.

Mr. Wood who also plays a leading rôle is an "old timer" when it comes to the South Shore follies and so is his father, R. J. Wood. There are several more "repeaters" in the cast—among them Albert J. Bates, the happy go lucky bartender, and Mrs. Bates, O. L. Huffaker, and Walter Burrows—for some of the talent, it's hard to duplicate.

Late arrivals miss one of the most original acts in the whole show—the coppers' raid on the night club when Manager Anderson calmly announces "It's only a place for motion pictures and entertainment." Presto! The silver screen drops, pictures of the chorus start racing across it, and you are all ready to settle back for an evening of movies, when the chorines literally burst through—the show is on!

A clever beginning. Another important contribution to this act—the parts taken by Danny, the porter, and John Burke, the doorman, both country club attachés for so long no one member can remember. Indeed, they are quite finished actors taking their respective rôles in the night club scene.

For specialty dancers the follies is ahead of most amateur shows and as fas as that is concerned, many of the professional revues. Pretty Marie Hisgen floats across the stage to the music of "I Kiss Your Hand, Madame" and Virginia Hall Johnson does a snappy tap dance to the tune of "Stepping Fool." One of the features of the colorful "Japanese Fantasy" that opens the second act is Miss Jean Stevenson's specialty number. Mrs. Pope Dodge brings forth a round of applause with her impersonation of Beatrice Lillie.

For a good laugh or two there's nothing like the skit entitled "Touring Back in 1901" when a chorus appears in the dusters, two story hats, caps, and goggles of a bygone day. Herbert Beidler and Mrs. Dorothy Tillinghast score in this number. In the second act Mrs. Tillinghast contributes another bit of humor as Mrs. Prunne, head of "Boarding House A La Chorale." And what a boarding house it is with Charles Thomas and Donald Bryant among the guests.

Mrs. Lois Holsman takes the lead in "Dutch Blues" and Walter Hayne and Miss Charmian Crissy introduce "Maid of Paper." There are 15 scenes in the first act and 15 in the second but it's all over in two hours or a little more. All in all an up to the minute fast moving revue.

Bubble of Farm Promotion Bursts; Money Is Returned

An investment bubble at Genoa, Ill., burst yesterday when would be investors in surrounding counties and states were informed that the Sunshine Valley Canning company promoters had closed their office doors. torn up sales literature and had acceded to demands of the Illinois state department of registration and education to return all payments for lands. Buyers had signed contracts to produce spinach and tomatoes for a proposed canning factory to be located in the village.

Contracts were illegal, insufficient money was being held in escrow in the Genoa bank, and promotors had misrepresented their proposition, according to Chief Inspector J. E. Edwards of the state department.

Partners in the venture were P. L. Melburg of St. Paul, and Lewis Dodds of Wilmette, according to investigators.

Fashionable Frock in Chartreuse and Black Crepe Gives Slim Effect

WOMAN'S OR MISS' DRESS.

This two piece dress has distinction, and the blouse of a Vionnet type is especially slimming. The gored skirt, slightly flared at the hem, is attached to a camisole bodice. A pleasing suggestion is to make the skirt of black rough silk crêpe with the blouse of chartreuse in a rough silk crêpe.

The pattern, 2528, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 2¼ yards of 39 inch material for the blouse, with 2 yards of 39 inch material for the skirt and ½ yard of 35 inch for the camisole.

Berta Ochsner Pleases with Gamin Spirit

BY HAZEL MOORE.

A goodly number of friends of the dance, and more particularly of friends of Berta Ochsner, gathered socially at the Goodman theater last evening to assist in the dance concert of Miss Ochsner and of Emily Boettcher who appeared in the triple rôle of accompanist, piano soloist, and composer.

Berta Ochsner has danced about Chicago since as a child she recited Mother Goose rhymes pertly to a pantommic form of dance accompaniment entirely her own. She has investigated many dance methods since that time, and the result last night showed more nearly, if not allegiance, at least fellow feeling for the school of Mary Wigman. But it is still the gamin spirit that is the most individual feature of Miss Ochsner's work. In the "Puppet Show" and the "Hunting Song," two of three miniatures by Grovlez, she was a distinct personality. In such numbers as the queerly named "Princess Into Queen" and Lady Into Fox" the intention was vague, lacking the abstract verity of Wigman's approach.

Two Sonatas by Scarlatti were danced with a nice musical sense, in the medieval vein that seems to pervade Miss Ochsner's more serious work. The "Poisons d'Or" was a too realistic attempt to depict the little goldfish of whom Debussy wrote so charmingly. The inevitable waits incident to a dancer's program made it impossible to report on the Percussion Suite and Renaissance Suite which appeared late in the program.

Miss Boettcher, who recently made her debut as a young American artist, played excellent accompaniments, good solos, and very young American compositions.

M. P. Will Request an Investigation of Red Labor Conditions

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, March 18.—Oliver Locker-Lampson, Conservative, will put the following question to Prime Minister MacDonald in the house of commons Monday:

"Will the government invite the league of nations to approach the soviet Russian state and ask it to allow a commission to enter its territory and report upon conditions of labor?"

There is much interest in what the premier's reply will be in view of the fact that the question recalls frequent attempts the Conservatives made when in the opposition to have Russian labor conditions investigated and when MacDonald, then head of the Socialist government, declined to further those attempts.

Good Morning!

Make no mistake about it—the Oriental has a mighty good picture this week!

"Disorderly Conduct" is one of those surprisingly engrossing programmers that pop out at you when least expected.

The title and the fact that a certain comedian is in the cast caused me to suspect the worst, and I moaned to myself, "Heaven help me, for otherwise I fear I cannot bear it . . . !" Well, you never can tell from where you sit! For "Disorderly Conduct" is NOT the farce comedy I supposed it to be, but a human, punchful drama of present day life. The comedian only shows up a few times and then not objectionably, and the rest of the cast, headed by Spencer Tracy—who—is—just—swell!—does the sort of playing guaranteed to keep the most blasé movie goer on the qui-vive. As for the director, I waft him a kiss. And when I waft kisses there's a reason.

The story deals with beer runners, policemen, politics and a pretty girl whose love for excitement gets a grand young motor cop demoted, shatters his ideals, messes up his morals and lands him, herself and others in the lap of tragedy.

The smile at the end is seen through tears, for the price of it has been paid by the "sweetest little fellow . . . mighty like a rose . . ." whose tiny policeman's uniform will never again hold the gallant, small body that stopped a gangster's bullets.

"Disorderly Conduct" is swift moving, believable and peculiarly free from hokum. It's a straight-from-the-shoulder indictment without an ounce of preachment.

"Stop, Look, Listen!" it seems to cry—and gives you something to stop for, look at and listen to.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

M. S.: THE WAISTLINE IS GOING higher—not lower. Don't you see them in the fashion cuts? Surely, you can get that pad of fat off your diaphragm sector. If you want a smart line badly, you can. Better send for my instructions in pamphlet form quickly.

QUERY: INDEED, YOU DO SEE some funny looking eyebrows in a day's jaunt. But don't pluck yours to a hairline. It isn't being done in attractive eyebrow circles any more. A trim and groomed line is all you want.

* First, measure the sweater—then make lukewarm Lux suds and press them gently through—don't rub the least bit! Rinse in 3 lukewarm waters, pin flat on a board to dry, shaping to the measurements you made at first.

This easy way preserves "elasticity"—leaves your sweater soft, perfect-fitting—like new! Ordinary soaps—cakes, powders, chips—often contain harmful alkali which shrinks wool and fades colors, too. Lux has no harmful alkali. Anything safe in water alone is just as safe in Lux!

The Woman Hater

BY MAY EDGINTON

SYNOPSIS.

Faire Chapelle is the stepdaughter of Ma Chapelle, who owns Flaxen's casino, a café of ill repute, near the waterfront of Port Bai. Faire and Aya, Ma's daughter by her first husband of dubious color, have been trained to assist in Flaxen's. The Chapelles are looked upon as outcasts by respectable island residents, and Faire feels their attitude keenly, because her father was of unimpeachable antecedents. He had brought her as a little girl into these unsavory surroundings and left her there at his death. She has kept aloof from all that Flaxen's represents.

Sir Philip Persian is governor and commander-in-chief of the Tama islands; Bai and St. Rosario. His young secretary and ward Robert Grand, is involved in an affair with Mira Worcester, a faded beauty. Her husband has become suspicious. Maitse Bookes, aid de camp of the governor, to avert a scandal asks Faire, as a favor to the governor, to clear Mira by proving it was she who'd been meeting young Grand secretly, threatening to close Flaxen's and have the Chapelles deported unless she consents. Sir Philip is furious with Bookes when he learns that Faire has been forced to accept Mira's guilt. He sends for Faire to try to make amends. He arranges to have her return to her father's people in England. In Jamaica Faire meets Mira Worcester, who is also returning to England. Sir Philip's lawyer meets Faire at Southampton.

INSTALLMENT XVIII.

SISTERS REUNITED.

Sir Philip, the lawyer explained, had cabled very fully. He himself had taken the important step of advising her sister of her imminent arrival. Lady Rosewood had said she would be at Waterloo station.

"My sister is meeting me?"

"She will be there. I don't think she'll disappoint you."

"O, tell me! What did she say?"

"If it is possible for any one to be more thrilled than you are," he answered with a laugh, "it is Lady Rosewood."

He thought he had never seen such light and vitality as in this girl's face. And, he thought, what eyes! Also he noted how shabby she was. Also he queried privately what Philip Persian was doing with her. What called that flash unconsciously to her whole being when he mentioned Persian's name?

"How did you get this lovely house? We were always poor."

And what of . . .

The lawyer checked this last thought, dismissing it. "Perhaps all that is over," he said to himself, though doubtfully, for he had known the intimate history of "all that" for some years now.

He remarked to her: "Sir Philip comes home in the new year."

Again the electric flash: "Yes, so I have heard."

"He did not tell her himself," the lawyer thought.

The train came into Waterloo station.

The girl jumped out first. "A live thing; a wild thing," thought the lawyer; and then he saw coming towards them Sheba Rosewood.

Neither needed him to say: "Here is your sister." They looked; and were in each other's arms. "My dear!" cried Sheba in a deep soft voice. "How wonderful!"

Faire gasped back, "I was afraid you might not think it wonderful at all."

The lawyer left them after he had escorted them to Lady Rosewood's car. And now, as the car threaded its way from the busy station, the sisters looked long and seriously at each other, seriously, yet with smiles. Sheba had taken Faire's hand in hers, which was also ungloved, and Faire looked down at that white hand with its brilliant nails against her slim brown one.

"You're manicured, I suppose?" she cried naïvely. Sheba answered, laughing at the simplicity of the exclamation: "Darling, I'm a beauty specialist."

"Sheba, there are so many things I've never seen or had or heard of—I've been afraid you would be dismayed with your only sister."

"Faire, you are gorgeous."

Faire looked at her sister, the sleek, slim, polished woman of thirty-two. Not even Mira Worcester had attained such clothes.

"Not even Lady Mira Worcester is as smart and lovely as you are, Sheba!"

Sheba's eyes stretched: "Mira Worcester! You know her!"

"I couldn't know her, Sheba. She was government house set, and I . . . You shall hear it all by and by. But she was the only really beautiful woman in Bai."

Sheba's lips curled: "Beautiful?"

"Isn't she?"

"In Bai, perhaps," said Sheba rather sharply; "in London she is not such a sensation. Is she still in the West Indies?"

"She came home on the same boat——"

"I hope she was nice to you on the trip?"

"I could hardly expect that, Sheba," said Faire slowly.

"She is a cat," Sheba remarked. "Did she behave herself out there?"

Faire answered steadily, without hesitation:

"I can't tell you, dear. We lived in different worlds."

They came across Westminster bridge, made for Victoria street. Faire cried out in ecstasy at the great gray buildings.

"I've seen nothing so wonderful, not even in Jamaica, or in Trinidad where the ship stopped!"

"Jamaica and Trinidad being your limit?"

"My extreme limit, Sheba."

"You have an amusing time before you then."

The car stopped in a quiet gray street with the sun on it.

"Where are we, Sheba?"

"Home."

"Your home?"

She stepped out, her breath coming faster. It was strange that she had never tried to invision Sheba's home. All the way over she had often thought of Sheba herself, Sheba and her dead husband, Sheba and her beauty shop. But never had she thought of Sheba at home. This quiet and tall gray house, storied with the history of centuries, looking down upon her, was suddenly the most beautiful and heart catching house that she had ever seen.

The front door opened. They went in arm in arm. A quiet large hall with flowers in it, dark polished staircase rising from it. A door was ajar, showing a glimpse of a dining room in Adam green; and about it all that definite statement of accustomed luxury, unostentatious, of safety, and wealth, pride and privilege.

Faire murmured huskily: "Sheba, is this all yours?"

They went into a drawing room, white paneled, with soft greens against the white, a water lily of a room, and sat down.

"Mine, and yours, Faire darling."

"O, not mine!"

"What is mine is yours."

"O Sheba, no! But I can stay awhile?"

"You'll live here. I've got to present you next season. This one is nearly over. There are a thousand things for me to do for you."

"I want to belong, that's all."

Sheba watched her sister curiously: "Money, Faire?"

"The governor lent—gave—me enough for the journey, and to begin with."

"Who is he?"

"Sir Philip Persian."

Again Sheba's eyes stretched wide.

"Philip Persian!"

"You know him, Sheba?"

"We've met . . . Why did he help you, darling?"

"He knew I wanted to get away."

"He realized, perhaps, that you ought not to have been stranded there with that awful woman and her half caste brat! I've heard of them from the Brynnes, who had one or two letters from father, years ago. Philip Persian saw, I suppose, that it was his duty to get you away?"

Faire assured her very quietly:

"No doubt that was why, Sheba."

"It was a social obligation, really," said Lady Rosewood.

The butler came in with tea. More lovely things, Faire thought; old lacquered tray, Rockingham china, Queen Anne silver. When the servant had gone out again she said dreamily: "How did you get this lovely house, Sheba? We were always poor, weren't we?"

"I married, my dear. I've been married and widowed since I last saw you, Faire."

"And, Sheba, the beauty business?"

"I went on with it to drown my trouble when my husband died, and I've made such an extraordinary, amusing success that I can't let go."

Faire realized that she had never thought either of Sheba or grief. But here was a woman who had loved and lost and suffered.

Sheba was saying: "We had no child. I'm glad to have you here."

"Sheba, you never wrote to me!"

Sheba nodded: "Two or three times; but—no reply."

"O damn them!" Faire cried furiously.

So Ma Chapelle had done that, too!

"So much happened to me . . ." said Sheba. "Besides, father had made it clear, writing to the Brynnes, that you were to belong to his side."

"O, if you'd seen 'his side.'"

"Forget it, darling."

"I'm not fit for your adorable house, Sheba. I need clothes. I would like to earn them."

"You shall earn them, my dear. You are not only a wonderful sister whom I've found after thinking her lost, but you are a godsend to my beauty business. Nothing like you has ever come into my salons."

Doris Blake Answers

May Grow Tired of Him.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 17 and go with a fellow whom I see every night? Is that too often? M. K."

Seeing the boy friend every night is the quickest way to get tired of him.

Parental Objection.

"Dear Miss Blake: I like a fellow who is 19. I am younger and not allowed to go with him. What should we do? LOW DOWN."

Is it family opposition that is egging you on or do you really care for him?

Mother Minus Maternal Love Makes Misery

Child Suffers from Too Much Restraint.

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Yesterday we offered, very delicately, I hope! suggestions to the nervous mother who is making a sad failure of her job because her nerves render her cross or impatient, or utterly incompetent in handling her children. We did not have space to say anything to the woman whose little boys or girls are in for an unhappy childhood because she, herself, finds unsatisfying the companionship and care of a child.

There are people who lack the deep springs of real maternal feeling. It must be acknowledged that all women are not potential mothers, just as all men are not potential fathers. It isn't their fault. But neither is it their child's! Only it's just too tragic for him if they don't care for the job of being a mother—or a father, either, for that matter.

Still, there the baby or young child is, through the parents' own doing, so it's up to them to see what can be done. And here we come to nerves again.

Now, what usually happens is that women like the kind described become nervous and restive under the duties and restraints and confinement of motherhood. This shows itself either directly or indirectly in an attitude toward their children which makes for unhappiness and behavior difficulties.

Those women may say, "Yes, but what can I do about it? I'm not suited for motherhood."

There is something better for them to do than to go plodding on against the grain. If these mothers would stop thinking about themselves and about how nervous and tired and deprived of freedom they feel, and instead try honestly to find out something about these busy, demanding, ubiquitous little children of theirs it would make a great change in their feeling.

If they would watch and study and try to understand the really powerful motives, or the funny ones, the surprising motives or the touching ones that lie back of the tears or tantrums or mischief that annoy them so, they would find an interest in being a mother that in time might become a big thing in their lives.

This column tries to make clear some of these things, but it cannot cover everything, so we have arranged suggestions for brief easy reading on child management; also, booklets written in full, like our "Obedience" booklet, are guide posts for the mother who is looking for help. Any of these will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Lovely Skin Is Result of Daily Home Diligence

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

"Your face, you should mind it, because you're behind it; the people out front you shouldn't jar." Paraphrasing the old jingle, we introduce the subject of making over a face that has gone off a bit, of late days.

Sure, you can make that face over if you don't like it the way it is. Maybe not change its nose and its eyes, but you can turn a dowdy face into a crisp, fresh looking one. I have seen it done, time and again.

Women who have given more time and thought to their growing youngsters than to themselves, awaking one day to their neglect, have dug in and practically remade their faces. They've thrown away the old gray and spotted covering for a bright new, creamy satin one. Just the other day I met a girl in the late twenties who has recreated her face, and with new face and figure could get away with 23 years easily. There's a firmness to her skin now that used not to be there. She exercises daily, for one thing. And exercises daily—not just in fits and starts. She has a five minute workout before her bath; takes a warm shower and then a coolish one every a. m.

She's gone over that skin of hers every night with complexion brush, a good soap, and warm water, then cold. Then an astringent lotion is applied because her ailment is a greasy skin. And she has learned something about putting on makeup. Before, when her skin was not good, any old way did for the makeup application. Now, with a face to be proud of, she's trying everything to make herself prouder of it.

So, if you think your face is ailing, get behind it. And mind it! You have to live with it a long time and it might just as well be flattering company, you know. You don't need expensive or so-called magic lotions. The magic that lies in the will to put up a better face is all that is required.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Jobless and Ill.

"I am a married man have been out of work for more than a year and a half. I have tuberculosis and am under observation at one of the dispensaries. My wife and I are very much in need of clothing, and as she hasn't been able to find a job it has been hard for us to secure any. I need a suit and underwear, size 38; shirts, 14½; shoes, 6½ or 7, and some socks. My wife wears size 17, and is badly in need of a winter coat and dresses. E. K."

This family's misfortunes include not only unemployment but also illness. Can you lessen their suffering by giving the clothing so badly needed?

Embarrassing Moments

Touring the Unknown.

I was visiting friends in a distant city. Although I had been there several days it happened that I had not been shown over the upper story of their home. One day, thinking they were gone, my curiosity got the better of me, so I started to explore.

Peering into a bedroom, I saw the gentleman of the house, wide awake and looking right at me. He had slipped up for a little nap. There was nothing else to do but confess the reason for my intrusion. Although they accepted my apology good naturedly, I've never been back. G. K. H.

Ring Caught in Man's Sweater.

A friend and I were seated to enjoy a show when the vacant place ahead of me was suddenly occupied by a rather heavy person in a bulky fur coat. After removing her hat, displaying a head with much fluffy hair, I found my view obstructed. We decided to move, and after apologizing for stepping on some gentleman's toes, I started on when, to my embarrassment, I found that the prongs of my dinner ring had caught in the sweater collar of a man in the row ahead. To free myself I had to give a mighty jerk. Needless to say I hurried away thankful for the darkness. L. L.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Mary Annice, a little girl of my acquaintance, was quite precocious, the result of associating only with older people. Upon her return from her first day at kindergarten her father asked her what she had learned.

Mary Annice answered, "O, practically nothing." E. J. N.

When 4 year old Billy came home from his second day at kindergarten he was asked which little girl he liked best. He answered, "The one with the polka dots on her face." J. K.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight")

All those people who are employed to hand out problems or puzzles of one sort or another to the public have one nasty habit in common. They will concoct the problem, whether it is a cross-word puzzle, a bridge hand, or some other sort of brain teaser, and then tell their readers how easy it is, meanwhile slipping them a hard one that the author spent a great deal of time working on.

Yesterday's play-a-problem, however, was really an easy one. It was one of those grand hands with almost every card in the deck which should be bid a grand slam and played a grand slam without trouble by the average player. This was the hand:

♠—K,Q,J,10,9
♥—K,3,2

EAST.
♠—8,7,4,3
♥—Q,9,6,4

SOUTH (Dealer).
♥—10
♣—K,Q,7,5,2

South dealt and bid a club. West overcalled with two spades. North took out with three diamonds. East passed and South, knowing the strength in the North hand, thought he might as well tell North that he could take the first trick in spades and so bid three spades. West, having shown his full hand and having had his spade suit rudely treated by South, now passed. North showed his second suit with a bid of four hearts. East passed. South, with very strong support in diamonds and a singleton heart, now showed his preference for the diamond suit with a bid of five diamonds. West passed. North bid six clubs. East passed. South could not imagine North going back to South's original club suit unless he held the ace. He, therefore, felt that a bid of six diamonds was not only justified but also felt that the diamonds with his partner's original bid of diamonds would play better than his own clubs. After West's pass North now went to seven diamonds. Knowing that South had the ♠ A or none, in other words, that South could take the first trick in spades and having had strong support from South in diamonds and knowing also that South must have the ♣ K-Q a bid of seven diamonds is hardly a gamble.

East opened the ♠ 3, which dummy took with the ♠ A. Dummy then led out the ♦ Q-J, clearing the suit, and to the fourth trick led the ♣ 2, which North took with the A. North returned the ♣ 9, which dummy took with the ♣ Q. Dummy then proceeded to play out the ♣ K-7-5, and to the ninth trick led the ♥ 10, which declarer took with the ♥ A. Declarer then led the ♥ J, which dummy trumped with the ♦ 7. Dummy then led out the ♦ 10, and to the twelfth trick led the ♠ 6, which declarer trumped with the ♦ K. Declarer took the last and thirteenth trick with the ♦ A for seven-odd—a grand slam bid and made.

NORTH.
♠—J,9,5
♦—10
♣—K,9,6,5,4

WEST (Dealer).
♠—8,6,3
♥—9,8,5

♠—2

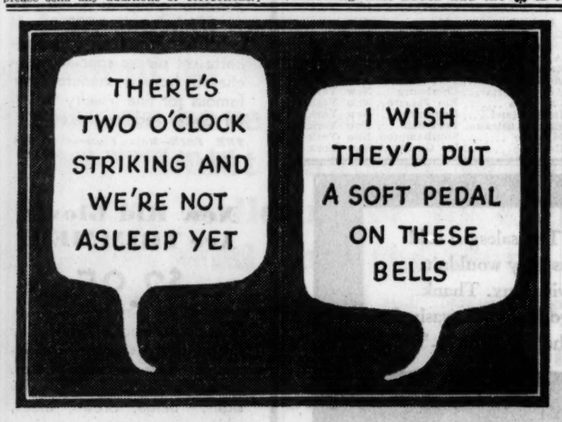
SOUTH.
♠—A,K,Q,10,7,4
♥—10,2
♦—Q,J,4,3
♣—10

Bid and play this hand and then compare the result with that printed on Monday.



But it wasn't the bells that kept them awake — it was the wrong coffee.

Follow These Rules:

1. Each day for 48 consecutive days (except Sunday) the Chicago Daily Tribune will print a United States Crossword Puzzle. The name of one of the 48 States in the United States will be in each puzzle. You are invited to solve the puzzle and name the State.

2. The Chicago Tribune will pay $5,000.00 in Cash Prizes to persons who send in the nearest correctly solved complete sets of puzzles in accordance with these rules. Note: This means that you do not necessarily have to solve each of the 48 puzzles correctly to win. The prizes will be paid to the persons whose entries rank highest.

3. This offer is open to everyone—men, women, boys and girls—except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. You pay nothing. Just prove your skill.

4. Puzzles are to be submitted only in complete sets. Do NOT send in each puzzle separately. Hold all puzzles until you have the complete set of 48. Then send them to "Crosswords," Chicago Tribune, Post Office Box 1539, Chicago, Illinois. All entries must be in by midnight 15 days after Puzzle No. 48 has been printed.

5. Each entry must be sent by First Class Mail, postage prepaid. Entries with insufficient postage will be returned by the Post Office Department. Make your entry simple and neat. Neatness will count.

6. You need not buy the Chicago Tribune. You may copy or trace the puzzles and send them in. The Chicago Tribune may be examined at any of its offices or at Public Libraries free of charge.

7. The judges will be appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Their decision will be final. In case of ties a duplicate award will be paid to each tying contestant.

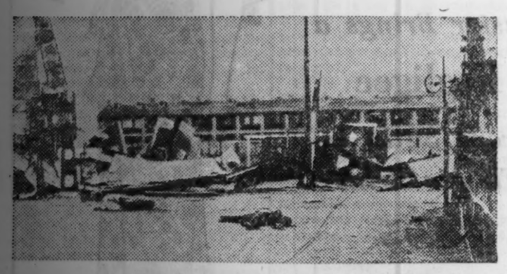
THE NEWSPAPER THAT CANNOT BE CONTROLLED

Wounded by a shell fragment as she tried to flee during the Japanese invasion of Shanghai.



The wreckage of the Chapei district in Shanghai after the advance of the Japanese forces.

A group of Chinese as they await execution or imprisonment at Japanese headquarters.

Since news is vital to the existence of newspapers, there is a continuous conspiracy to dominate newspapers by withholding news from those which do not color it to the satisfaction of governments and others in power.

Many newspapers have felt it necessary to submit. Not the Chicago Tribune.

For many years the Tribune has refused to keep a correspondent in Russia subject to Russian dictation. Where the Russians have failed, the Japanese cannot succeed.

They cannot make the Tribune poison its news by withholding their bulletins or by excluding Tribune correspondents who will send only the truth.

The recent refusal of Japanese military headquarters to admit John Powell, Chicago Tribune correspondent at Shanghai, within its lines or to give him its official communiques, will not keep the facts regarding happenings in that war-torn area from Tribune readers.

GAMES TODAY.

Quarter-Finals.

1 p. m.—Catholic, Washington, Ind., vs. Father Ryan, Nashville, Tenn.

2 p. m.—St. Mel, Chicago, vs. Cathedral, Indianapolis, Ind.

3 p. m.—St. Patrick, Chicago, vs. Bishop England, Charleston, S. C.

4 p. m.—Campion vs. Central.

The big guns in the ninth annual national Catholic high school basketball tournament roared again last night at the Loyola university gymnasium. Eight teams, survivors of a field of 32 of the outstanding quintets from all parts of the United States except the Pacific coast, swept into the quarter-final round, which will be held this afternoon.

Two Chicago teams, St. Patrick and St. Mel, are among the survivors. The others are Catholic of Washington, Ind.; Father Ryan, Nashville, Tenn.; Cathedral of Indianapolis, Ind.; Bishop England of Charleston, S. C.; Central Catholic of Fort Wayne, Ind., and Campion academy of Prairie du Chien, Wis.

Jasper Five Eliminated.

Campion, Wisconsin state titleholder, eliminated De La Salle of Joliet, 22 to 19, in the most interesting game of the day's schedule. The defeat of Joliet eliminates the last team bearing the name of De La Salle in the meet. The last five championships have been won by De La Salle teams.

The second upset of the day occurred when St. Patrick of Chicago triumphed over Jasper, Ind., 19 to 18, to reach the quarter-finals. St. Patrick led at the end of the first quarter, but Jasper rallied to tie the score, 12 to 12, at the half.

Ray Adams and William Asher led the Chicago quintet to victory over Jasper, the most popular and colorful team ever to participate in the tournament. Jasper reached the final round in the 1930 and 1931 meets.

Jasper was the only Hoosier squad to lose in the second round yesterday. The others, Central Catholic of Fort Wayne, Ind.; Cathedral of Indianapolis, and Catholic of Washington, all triumphed.

Illinois Teams Defeated.

Downstate Illinois' representatives, Trinity of Bloomington and Spalding institute of Peoria, fell. Spalding, state champion, was defeated by Cathedral of Indianapolis, 20 to 17, while Trinity lost to Bishop England of Charleston, S. C., 24 to 17.

James Cantwell of the three brothers, Tom, William and James, led the Charleston attack against Trinity. Marty Peters, tall center, starred for Peoria, sinking three field goals.

St. Philip, runner up in the south section of the Catholic league, was the first Chicago team to lose in the second round. Joe Dosch, 6 foot 4 inch center, led Washington against St. Phillip, scoring four baskets.

Curley Stars for Nashville.

Father Ryan of Nashville, Tenn., one of the favorites for the United States title, had little difficulty in disposing of St. Thomas of Scranton, Pa., 35 to 29, to reach the quarter-finals. Pete Curley scored eleven points in Nashville's victory.

The Norton award, annually donated to the team scoring the most points in the opening round, was given to

JUST ONE MORE CHANCE IS ALL SOX HITTERS GET

Then Mr. Fonseca Will Open Style Class.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Antonio, Tex., March 18.—The recollection that they were unable to make an earned run against a bunch of college boys in their first exhibition game of the spring Thursday, today found the Chicago White Sox a bit flattened out, but by no means depressed. The lads pointed to the fact that the University of Texas has been in spring training since Dec. 12, so why shouldn't they be good.

The persistent question, "Who's going to make them base hits?" kept ringing in the ears of Manager Lew Fonseca, however. Manager Lew is going to allow his athletes two more games to "bat natural" and if they continue the flops they were against the Austin school boys he's going to make a few of them bat the way he wants them to.

Lew Will Turn Teacher.

Lew, as all fans know, is one of the best form hitters in the majors. He has, however, been hesitant about imposing his stance and technique on players who like to "hit natural." For one thing, changing a batter's style gives that batter an alibi for his subsequent shortcomings.

Right now, for instance, the Sox camp is full of athletes who would have hit .400 if ex-Manager Donie Bush hadn't made them point their elbows three degrees or so off natural or if he hadn't ordered them to stand pigeon-toed. There are other reasons that have caused Mr. Fonseca to let the men do their stuff unhampered, though at times he has broken out with the hives watching certain individuals as they sought to employ bats for hitting purposes.

Meet Pro Foes Today.

Tomorrow and Sunday the Sox will play their first games of the year with a professional team and for the most part the batsmen will be permitted to swing au naturel. In the week-end games with the San Antonio Indians of the Texas league, Manager Fonseca will use two widely different lineups, so that he will be able to pick his class in batsmanship. And Monday, if plans are carried through, Lew will teach batting form much after the precise fashion of a golf professional.

In the two games with the Indians, Anderson in center field, Campbell in left, and Blue at first will be the only players to appear in both starting lineups. Erickson, Bowler, and Moore will pitch in tomorrow's contest. Sunday the pitching will be strictly first string, with Thomas, Hadley, and Jones the nominees.

The Sox will start their trip north next week, opening the journey with games in Fort Worth on next Friday and Saturday.

Barton's Homer with Three on Wins for Cubs, 9 to 5

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 18.—Vin Barton put in a plea today for recognition as the Cubs' regular right fielder. He produced a most convincing argument with three hits, the choicest of which was a home run with the bases full in the eighth inning. The drive broke a tie and enabled the major leaguers to defeat the Portland Beavers again, 9 to 5.

VINCE BARTON.

Barton's homer, coming after a walk, an error and Johnny Moore's safe bunt, was just a bit more timely than his two previous outbursts. He drove home the Cubs' first run with a single in the fourth inning and accounted for another with a double in the fifth.

However, he was given a close race by Marvin Gudat, the Columbus draftee, who exploded a pair of doubles and a single to three different sectors of the outfield. This effort means Manager Hornsby will have Gudat in there some more during the coming week.

Checked Until Fourth.

The Cubs were rather backward about getting started on the matter of base hits. In the first two innings they did nothing to prove their major league rating. In the third they broke through with a scratch single which could easily have been judged an error for Jacobs. Then in the fourth they actually made use of their bats against McDonald, three runs counting. Johnny Moore doubled to right and scored on Barton's single. Gudat doubled to left and Barton moved to third, whence he tallied on Jurges' fly. A single by Hemsley sent Gudat home.

Jurges gave needed aid to the Beavers in the fifth, and they picked up their first run as the result. Johnson opened with a single to right, the second of the two hits off Grimes. Higgins grounded to short and Jurges fumbled. Had he shown a little speed about picking up the ball he could have retired one of the two men, but the tired feeling had him in its grasp. A couple of force plays at second gave Johnson the chance to work around to the plate.

The fifth inning proved an excellent one for the recruits who are hoping to spend the summer in Chicago. This was where Peterson started to pitch, or at least throw. Herman greeted him with a double which Finney lost in the sun. After Johnny Moore had been tossed out, Herman strolled home on Barton's two bagger into the right field corner. Gudat then unloaded his second two baser, a line drive to right center, to score Barton. The next two batters couldn't furnish Gudat any assistance.

In the first two innings of his stretch on the mound, May southpawed with so much vim that he fanned four of the men facing him. He wasn't quite that tough for the Beavers in the eighth when the score became knotted. The pitcher led off with a single and this must have been too much for Jakie. He walked Monroe, who was forced by Finney. Then Jacobs singled, Berger doubled and Johnson singled to pile up the four runs needed for a tie. Happily for all concerned, the big leaguers lost no time breaking up the show.

Play Oakland Today.

Games will be staged at Oakland tomorrow, Sunday morning, and Sunday afternoon. This program will be followed by seven exhibitions with the San Francisco Seals. Then the Cubs will come back here for a week of exercise against the Detroit Tigers and Pittsburgh Pirates.

FORBRA, AT 50-1, CAPTURES GRAND NATIONAL CHASE

Sea Soldier, Chicago Horse, Is Eighth.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

AINTREE, Eng., March 18.—Superior stamina in the last mile gave Forbra, long shanked, brown 7 year old gelding entered by a Shropshire farmer, victory in the 93d running of the Grand National steeplechase today.

An unprecedented multitude of half a million, in which royalty was represented by the prince of Wales and Prince George, saw 36 horses start and only nine finish the historic four and one-half mile test over fences and ditches.

Egremont, a 33 to 1, shot, owned by Mrs. Ireland, was second, three lengths behind the outsider, Forbra, who paid 50 to 1 from the bookmakers and nearly 100 to 1 in the parimutuel machines. W. H. Midwood's Shaun Goilin, a 40 to 1, was a poor third. Shaun Goilin won the event two years ago.

Sea Soldier in Eighth.

Neither Forbra, Egremont, nor Shaun Goilin were American bred, owned or ridden, but the United States had its share of the Irish sweepstakes money and one big thrill in the manner in which old Sea Soldier stuck it out. Sea Soldier, the American bred son of Man o' War, held at 50 to 1 and entered by a syndicate of ten wealthy Chicago sportsmen, finished eighth.

Under excellent handling by his American amateur rider, A. G. Wilson, Sea Soldier sailed over the 30 fences with a grace and ease that eclipsed the crack British fencers, Gregalach and Grakle, but his marching between the barriers was a bit slow, although the course was hard and fast. Sea Soldier, was "sluggish all the way," Wilson said.

Ten U. S. Entries Fail.

Of the 13 American entries, only Sea Soldier and two other horses, Mrs. C. S. Bird's Heartbreak Hill and Jesse Metcalf's Theras, finished. Heartbreak Hill was sixth and Theras, ninth. A loose horse, Pelorus Jack, cutting across a canal at a turn killed Heartbreak Hill's chances and forced him out of the running.

Pelorus Jack was the ruination of the race. He brought Gregalach down, barged into others, and by the time he had been chased from the course, half the horses were out of the race.

Forbra, until he breasted the finish line, was a racing unknown. His best previous effort had been victory in a small race at Taunton and so little was he considered in the wagering that he was not even mentioned in the official callover. He is owned by W. Parsonage, a Shropshire farmer, who occasionally engages in bookmaking. J. Hamey of the north country rode him.

Paget Wanted to Win.

Two fences from home Forbra was even with Egremont. E. C. Paget, the young stock broker riding Egremont, was pressing Mrs. Ireland's entry on to the 8,000 sterling purse [about $32,000] and a personal prize through wagers of $50,000.

As they came before the stands Hamey struggling for his first important victory, sent Forbra ahead. Egremont made one desperate rally, but could not close in, as Forbra finished three lengths to the good in 9:44.6. This was nearly 12 seconds slower than last year's race, but four seconds faster than Shaun Goilin's time in 1930.

Forbra is the youngest horse to win the century old classic and carried the lightest load assigned in today's field, 147 pounds.

Glagesia, winner of the Grasslands Downs steeplechase in Tennessee last year, upon whom some stout hopes had been banked, fell early in the running and the American owned Dusty Foot refused to take a jump and lost out.

Grakle, favorite in the betting up to yesterday, refused a jump on the first time over the course.

ANOTHER KING GEORGE

Fight Decisions

At Boston, Mass.—Charlie Retzlaff, Duluth, Minn., knocked out Jack McCarthy, Boston, in the fourth round of a 10 round bout.

At New York—Sammy Fuller, Boston, knocked out Billy Wallace, Cleveland, in the seventh round of a 10 round bout.

At Daytona Beach, Fla.—Joe Knight, Ciro, Ga., beat Maxie Rosenbloom, New York [10].

At Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—Vince Dundee, Baltimore, Md., beat Johnny Ketchell, Chester [10].

BY FRENCH LANE.

George Nichols of Buffalo is the new light heavyweight boxing champion of the world.

Battered and apparently all but out late in the struggle, Nichols came back in the tenth round of last night's bout and fought on so nobly the judges gave him the decision over Dave Maier of Milwaukee.

A red, white, and blue diamond studded belt was pinned on Nichols by Gen. John V. Clinnin, president of the National Boxing association, and the crowd roared its approval.

It was one of the few world's championships decided in the Chicago Stadium. And it was the first time that two lefthanders ever fought for a world's title. The margin of victory was so close, Referee Phil Collins and the two judges hardly knew what to do.

Vote 2 to 1 for Nichols.

A world's championship probably never has been decided by such a slight margin. But the rules of the light heavyweight tournament, which opened last December and wound up with two lefthanders fighting in the championship match, called for a decision no matter how close the going might be.

Referee Phil Collins gave it to Nichols by a score of 57 to 43. Judge Ed Klein gave it to Nichols by 51 to 49 points. Judge John Houghteling ruled in favor of Maier, 51 to 49.

Nichols, by the ruling of the National Boxing association, succeeds Maxie Rosenbloom of New York as the light heavyweight champion. Maxie, after winning the title, rested on his laurels and seldom attempted to fight a challenger, so the National Boxing association ordered the tournament conducted to find a successor who really would fight.

Long Elimination Series.

The tournament has been a long drawn out affair. Every good 175 pounder in this country and Europe tried for the title. At the end of their skirmishes Nichols of Buffalo and Maier of Milwaukee, both lefthanded, survived.

Then came their battle last night for the championship. It was a vicious, hard punching, devil may care affair. They whaled away at each other with so much force that one or the other might have been knocked all the way to Ashland boulevard. Plenty of blows connected, but neither was knocked over into Ashland boulevard or into Lake Michigan.

They were game lads, these 23 year old boys, Maier of German parentage and Nichols of Italian extraction.

Maier's Rally Cheers Backers.

They hit each other with everything they had, but all through the early part of the struggle Nichols had a slight edge. In the eighth and ninth rounds Maier rallied so stoutly the spectators, including many of his neighbors from Milwaukee, were yelling for him to win on a knockout.

It wasn't so many months ago that Maier had scored a technical knockout over Nichols in Buffalo. Maier had been whipped until the seventh round. Then Maier opened up a cut over Nichols' eye and got the verdict.

When Maier started opening those old cuts over Nichols' eye in the eighth round by his vicious left and a counter with his right the crowd began to sense another knockout. But it never came. Nichols was too game. His furious last minute attack was all that won him the title.

Only 9,344 paid spectators watched the give and take affair. The gate totaled $23,233.23. But it will be a long time until the regulars at the Stadium again see such a vicious fight.

Calmes Beats Braddock.

Baxter Calmes of Oklahoma beat Jimmy Braddock of New York in ten rounds. In the first round Braddock hit Calmes so hard over the left kidney it looked as if he might have suffered a broken rib or two, but Calmes wasn't in distress and came back and won the next few rounds.

Calmes poked his left into Braddock's face so often at times Braddock didn't seem to know what was going on. But he stuck it out.

Frank Battaglia of Canada, 157½ pounds, knocked out Ben Jeby, New York, 160 pounds, in the first round of their scheduled ten round bout.

In a slugging match which went 10 rounds Harry Ebbetts of New York got the decision over Roscoe Manning, Newark Negro. Ebbetts rolled up a long lead in the first four rounds and rallied again late in the struggle to get the decision by a narrow margin.

In the opening bout Jerry Crano of Chicago whipped Joe Sbarkey of Albion, Mich., in four rounds. Neither boxer could land a damaging blow.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 18.—The retreat from Florida has set in already, and the railroad policemen along the line must be having some remarkably fine sport these days and nights, heaving hunks of rock ballast at the sportsmen as they roll through the yards on the outside of the cars bound for home.

There are some remarkably fine rock ballast wingshots along the route, and a number of excellent bags are expected. There have been complaints, however, of serious breaches of the sporting code by certain of the officers in the last few days, it being alleged that they have potted a few birds off the blinds and the roofs when the cars were at a standstill, which would merit the contempt of all sportsmen. The executives of these railroads should check up on such reports and enforce sporting conditions.

It'll Outdo Shelby, Mont., Exodus.

Judging by reports of the conditions among the horse people and the rag tag who follow the horse people wherever they go, the exodus from Florida this year will be the most picturesque since the getaway from Shelby, Mont., the day after the historic boxing contest between Jack Dempsey and Tommy Gibbons. It was a rainy day, so the town was mired again and the boys came crawling out of all sorts of obscure shelters to catch the freights and the few passenger trains.

Jack Kearns, who had tarried over in Shelby counting bushel baskets of cash money all night long in colaboration with deputy collectors of internal revenue, who were collecting the United States government's share, was badly bitten up by the time he swung aboard his train and wafted an airy farewell kiss to the bedraggled oil and cow town the next evening.

Mr. Kearns showed no charity to the mayor of Shelby, Cowboy Jim Johnson or any of the other bankers of the region who went broke trying to gather together his guarantee of $300,000 but he was more generous to individuals who had come all the way from St. Paul, Seattle, and such places expecting to deal a few kicks in various little games of chance and found themselves dealing to one another, owing to a lack of customers.

Mr. Kearns Gets Bitten.

Mr. Kearns was heavily upholstered in all his pockets with cash money which he did not wish to entrust to Mr. Johnson's bank for rather sound business reasons and the boys were sinking their fangs into his bankrolls all day long as he waited for his getaway.

Nevertheless, there were hundreds of them who did not enjoy acquaintance with the wealthy Mr. Kearns and there were more passengers outside the cars as the trains went out that day and night than there were riding on the plush.

The boys, of course, should have known that life would be hard in the horse business and all the little allied businesses in Florida this year, but they are great optimists and they will insist on trying. And, anyway, if a man is fresh out of resources, it is pleasanter to be fresh out in Miami where the sun is warm than in New York or Chicago.

I read some time ago that hundreds of dealers of one kind and another had gathered in Miami this year, all of them naturally, fresh out of money, and became outer and outer of money as the days went by. Work in the parimutuel windows was apportioned between the clerks, and some of them, consequently, did not receive more than two days' pay at $5 per day, each week. At E. Widener's dude track the gross gambling business in thirty-nine days of racing was estimated at only $6,000,000, and it does not take many mutuel clerks to deal $6,000,000 worth of tickets in thirty-nine days, even though the tickets be mostly in $2 issues.

Well, the Owners Can Ride 'Em.

AndersonEnds De Paul Grid Duties July 1

Dr. Edward Anderson, football coach at De Paul university for the last seven years, yesterday presented his resignation, effective July 1. It was accepted by the Very Rev. Francis V. Corcoran, president of the university. Anderson has offers from two or three schools under consideration.

EDDIE ANDERSON.

Anderson began his football career at Mason City, Ia., High school, and achieved All-American honors at Notre Dame. He was an almost unanimous selection at end in 1921 when mythical elevens were treated seriously. The late Walter Eckersall rated Anderson one of the greatest ends he had seen.

Anderson was a regular at Notre Dame in 1919, 1920, and 1921. He played in only one losing game during that span. Among his teammates were some of the leading players developed by the late Knute Rockne—George Gipp, Bernie Kirk, Eddie Madigan, Johnny Mohardt, Norman Barry, Hunk Anderson, Joe Brandy, and Dutch Bergman.

After his graduation in 1922, Anderson went to Columbia college, Dubuque, Ia., where he served as football and basketball coach for three years. He came to De Paul from Dubuque.

During his régime at De Paul the school has come forward rapidly in football prestige. The freshman rule was adopted three years ago. Its schedules have included contests with leading teams from coast to coast.

KEARNS GRANTED DIVORCE; WIFE TO RECEIVE $12,000

Jack Kearns, fight manager, was awarded a divorce yesterday by Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude from Mrs. Legana Kearns of New York. The decree was granted on grounds of desertion, and was obtained by agreement after Kearns had given his wife a $12,000 financial settlement.

Retzlaff Knocks Out Jack McCarthy in Fourth

Boston, Mass., March 28.—(AP)—Charlie Retzlaff, Duluth heavyweight, added Jack McCarthy of Boston to his knockout string tonight in the Boston Garden's feature bout. McCarthy, after taking a severe beating, was dropped for the count with a heavy right to the body, coupled with a terrific right to the jaw early in the fourth round of what was to have been a scheduled 10 round contest. Retzlaff weighed 198½ pounds, almost four more than his rival.

Meenan Is Barred from N. U. Eleven for 2d Marriage

Ken Meenan, Northwestern half back, whose marriage Monday to Jean Rogers, co-ed, caused his suspension from school the remainder of the current semester, will not be permitted to play football next fall, it was announced yesterday by athletic authorities at the university.

Meenan will be eligible to apply for reëntrance next fall, according to the university ruling on student marriages. However, regardless of whether he is readmitted, he will be barred from playing on the football team for one year.

The action of the athletic department was seen as a form of chastisement to the star half back, whose recent marital venture was the second durign the present year. Last fall he married Helen Major, Evanston girl, but the marriage was annulled, thus permitting him to remain in school.

Jim Corbett, Seriously Ill, Reported Unchanged

New York, March 18.—[Special.]—The condition of Jim Corbett, former heavyweight champion, remained unchanged tonight. He is in a "serious condition" after a month's treatment for heart trouble, but is in no immediate danger, his physicians say.

Mickey Hopes Son Is Another Champ; He's a 7½ Pounder

New York, March 18.—[Special.]—Mrs. Edward P. [Mickey] Walker, wife of the pugilist, gave birth to a son, weighing 7½ pounds, today at the Medical Center.

"I hope we have another champion," was Mickey Walker's only comment after the arrival of the baby. The mother and child are doing well, it was reported.

Walker has two children, Edward Patrick Jr., and Patricia, by his first wife, Mrs. Margaret Walker, from whom he is divorced.

RODAK STARS IN LEADING ROLE OF GOLDEN GLOVES

Proves Big Success as Chicago Team Captain.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Leo Rodak, Chicago's best known Golden Gloves boxer, captain of this year's team, already has proved his ability, not only as a fighter, but as a leader. Leo doesn't talk a great deal, but his actions during the training period at the Illinois Athletic club are worth a lot to the squad.

Perhaps it's not all due to Rodak's leadership, but the Golden Gloves gang this year has shown a greater team spirit than any in the last five. The boys are punctual in reporting for their road work and for their boxing. It goes without saying that they are on time for their meals.

Watch Out, Mr. De Foe!

Rodak, who was the 112 pound champion last year, winner of intercity and international honors, now is the king of the bantamweights. And if Johnny De Foe, New York 118 pound champion, whips Rodak in the intercity bouts at Madison Square Garden, he will do so only after the best fight of his life. Rodak is punching straight and hard. His speed not only aids his attack, but is essential in his defense. Yesterday Leo boxed two rounds with Dick Noonan, the bantamweight alternate, and then continued for another three minute session with John Ginter, who is slated to fight against New York in this division.

Charley Neigo and Adolph Wiater get the unanimous vote of the coaches as the most improved boxers after the first week of drills. Neigo is the middleweight champion. He will meet Mark Hough of the Salem Crescents, and Neigo must improve a lot more if he expects to whip the New York champion.

Wiater Outpoints Marek.

Wiater, from Green Bay, Wis., is the 175 pound alternate. But for two rounds yesterday he outpointed Max Marek, the runner-up, during which time he took advantage of his weight. Wiater weighed out at 174 pounds yesterday while Marek tips the scales at 165. In the third round Marek outslugged Wiater in a furious finish which left the pair about even.

No Golden Glover on the Chicago team now is more than three pounds over weight except Henry Rothier, the lightweight champion. He now weighs 140, but he is a short chunky chap and his weight slides up and down without warning. He had no difficulty making weight for the Chicago finals, so it is expected he'll be ready March 28.

Injuries Handicap Several.

There are several boys who haven't been able to give their best efforts because of injuries. Al Soukup, the flyweight champion, hasn't boxed for two days because of a badly swollen eye. If it does not respond to treatment soon he may not be able to fight in New York.

Johnny Nate, 112 pound runnerup, also was excused from boxing yesterday. He has a bruised hand, but an X-ray proved that no bones were broken. John Baltzer, the flyweight alternate, is four pounds under the limit, and the coaches also dropped him from the boxing instruction, although he went through the remainder of the schedule. Bud Marcy, featherweight alternate, also had an afternoon of leisure yesterday, as did John Phagan, the welterweight champion, who is suffering from a cold.

Hawks Carry Play-off Fight to Toronto

Another important National Hockey league game will take place tonight at Toronto when the Maple Leafs meet Blackhawks for the last time this season.

Winning of the game is far more important to the Blackhawks than it is to the Maple Leafs. While Toronto still has an outside chance to displace the Canadiens as the leaders in the International division, it has already qualified for the Stanley city finals. But the hold which the Hawks have on second place is precarious.

If the Chicagoans lose tonight's game they must defeat Boston at the Stadium tomorrow night to reach the playoffs. Tomorrow's game will be the last of the season for the Hawks, while the Boston team must play on its home ice Tuesday against the weak New York Americans. Tae closely bunched Hawks, Falcons, and Bruins, only two of whom can enter the play offs, have two games each to play. The Hawks have 45 points, the Falcons 44 and the Bruins 42.

Doc Romnes, center, who was loaned to the Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets, has been recalled and will be in the Blackhawk lineup against the Maple Leafs tonight. The National league standing:

SHAMROCKS PLAY FLIERS

St. Louis, Mo., March 18.—[Special.]—The league leading Chicago Shamrocks will face the Fliers here tomorrow night in an attempt to clinch a bye in the American Hockey league play-offs. The Fliers' defeat by the Shamrocks last Tuesday made their play-off chances practically hopeless. It will be the final appearance of the Shamrocks here this season.

Victory for the Fliers will complicate the Shamrocks fight for first place, while victory for the Chicagoans tomorrow and also Monday at Duluth will assure the bye.

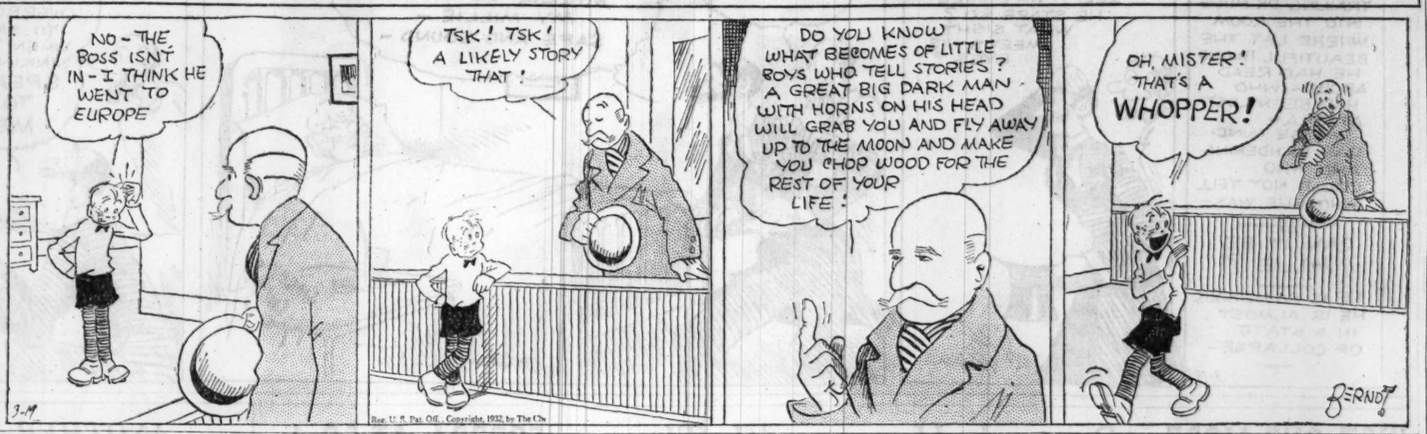
SMITTY—THE BEDTIME STORY



In the WAKE of the NEWS

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE:

May I tell you a few more of the changes which a person born in 1870, 62 years ago, has witnessed in a span of only a little more than six decades? Certainly that is a brief period in world history.

Bicycles of the '70s were funny high wheeled contraptions, but we thought we had lots of fun riding them, perched on our high seats from which "headers" were not infrequent. The safety bicycles came along in the '90s.

Rubber then found only a small fraction of its present use. This was true, too, of steel, copper, aluminum, glass, paper, and many other products of now common utility.

St. Louis was larger than Chicago. Rivalry between the two cities was spirited.

Wood burning locomotives were common; in fact, in the majority. River, lake, and canal boats were still doing much of the transportation business. Pullman cars were something new and comparatively few people had enjoyed their comforts. Refrigerator cars were unknown.

Flour, apples, molasses, sugar, crackers, salt pork, and many other commodities were shipped in barrels instead of the package goods of today.

Receipt of a telegram was an event to be talked about for days. Usually it announced a death of a relative at some distant point. More anon.

W. J. H.

In 1892 we were astounded to learn that guests of the Auditorium hotel could communicate with the clerk by a newly invented electrical device whose dial was on the wall. A sort of annunciator was used. By turning a dial and pressing a button a guest could order a cocktail, ice water, towels, valet, or evening papers. It was wonderful!

Agua Caliente Handicap.

The Wake has received an advance program of the Agua Caliente handicap, to be run tomorrow at the race course of that name in Mexico, across the border from California.

Once proudly publicized as the "richest stake in America," with $100,000 guaranteed, it has lost that distinction in this period of depression, although $50,000 is still added. Half a dozen stakes probably will surpass its net value this year, notably the Arlington Classic, now the most richly endowed added money event with $70,000.

It is not the value of the stake, however, so much as the program which intrigued us. To help get back part of that $50,000 added the Agua Caliente promoters have carded 14 races for the day. Four will be held in the morning, beginning at 10:30, and 10 in the afternoon. Figure that for a busy day, we who think six and seven races a full day's sport.

If the customer has any money left after playing 14 races he may visit the casino for a shot at the various forms of chance. Admission to clubhouse is $5 for women and $6 for men, with $5 extra for boxes. Clubhouse veranda tables are $5 per cover and lawn tables $3 per cover. At these tables patrons may obtain what they cannot get in this country. If it were not so far away it would be positively alluring.

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, March 18.—[Special.]—Eleven horses, headed by Phar Lap, Australian champion, are expected to go to the post here Sunday to contest for the $50,000 aded Agua Caliente handicap.

Although he has never started here, Phar Lap has been established a heavy favorite because of his great record in the Antipodes. He is to be ridden by Jockey Billy Elliott, who was brought here from Australia for the race.

Other contestants are expected to be Reveille Boy, one time winner of the American Derby; Spanish Play, recent winner of the New Orleans handicap; Dr. Freeland, former Preakness winner; Bahamas, Agua Caliente Derby victor two weeks ago; Marine, famed Canadian runner; Cabezo, speedy son of Carlaris, only horse ever to win both the Agua Caliente Derby and handicap in the same season; and lesser lights, including Joe Flores, Scimitar, Good and Hot, and Seta's Hope.

Clear weather is predicted for the race, but David J. Davis, owner, and Tommy Woodcock, trainer of Phar Lap, are confident their horse can win on any kind of a track. He is scheduled to carry top weight in the race, 129 pounds, but in Australia has won with 140 pounds up, and his weight Sunday is considered to be a mere feather.

Quail in Georgia Worth $11,000,000, Census Estimates

BY BOB BECKER.

What is the actual value of Illinois' wild life resources in dollars and cents? Unfortunately, Illinois has no game census system which would enable it to tabulate fairly accurately the amount of game killed each year and from these figures determine the cash food value of it.

The latest computation on the cash value of game to a state has just been taken in Georgia. The figures are startling, to say the least, although we have a hunch that the Carolinas or other southern states with a large quail population can produce similar sets of figures.

Here is the Georgia story as compiled by Peter S. Twitty, executive officer of the Georgia game and fish commission. He says:

"The actual food value of Georgia's wild life is conservatively placed, after a careful survey, as in excess of $20,000,000. An efficient and reliable census by the fish and game department of your state shows the actual food value of game birds and animals alone for the last year—and these reports are not figured by guessing in any instance—approximated $5,500,000. Authorities who have analyzed this census state we were ultra conservative in the values placed on some game."

Mr. Twitty revealed some interesting statistics on quail in his analysis of the game crop. He said:

"It should be interesting to learn that five and a half million quail were taken in Georgia during the last hunting season. The food value of these at 40 cents a bird approximates $2,000,000. The actual restocking value of these quail exceeds $11,000,000. If it were undertaken to replace every quail killed last season with a like bird produced by a state game farm or purchased from commercial breeders, it would cost the state of Georgia more than $11,000,000 to do so."

OLCOTT, FAMOUS ACTOR, WILL BE BURIED IN N. Y.

Irish Ballad Singer Dies in Monte Carlo.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTE CARLO, March 18.—Chauncey Olcott, 71, noted American singer, who died here early this morning, will be buried in New York City, where his success as a singer of Irish ballads reached its height. Mrs. Olcott said she would sail for home with her husband's body on March 22, and that the funeral would be held at St. Patrick's cathedral on the day of her arrival or the following day.

A year ago Olcott fell ill and came here. His wife, their son, and their adopted daughter, Jeannette Clarice Olcott, who was born in Monte Carlo, cared for him in his last illness.

STAR FOR THIRTY YEARS.

Remembered from coast to coast of the United States as a singer of Irish ballads, Chauncey Olcott from 1892 to 1921 appeared in no less than 21 productions of light opera, operettas and musical plays, all built on Irish subjects and themes.

Born in Buffalo July 21, 1860, he was introduced to the public twenty years later, first spending several years with a minstrel show. Olcott made his first appearance on the regular stage at the Union Square theater in New York City March 16, 1886, as Pablo in "Pepita." He played in "Old Homestead" with Frank Hopkins and in the comic operas "H. M. S. Pinafore" and "The Mikado."

He went to London in 1890 to study music under Holland and Randegger. During the next two years he appeared in "Miss Decima" and "Blue Eyed Susan." Returning to the United States in 1892, he played in "Mavourneen." His tours continued almost yearly with "Sweet Inniscarra," "Romance of Athlone," "Machusla," "Isle o' Dreams," "Shameen Dhu," "The Heart of Paddy Whack," and "Once Upon a Time." His tour in 1920-'21 was in a revival of "Machusla."

Taken Ill in 1920.

The singer was taken ill in 1920 and recovered at 17 Sutton place, East Mayfair, New York City, which he afterward called "Lucky house." During the next twelve years he was more or less an invalid. He had residences at Saratoga, which was named "Inniscarra" for the heroine of one of his plays, New York City, and Nice. An early marriage was followed by a divorce a few months later, and in 1895 he became the husband of Margaret O'Donovan, the mother of his two children, Tottie Carr and Blanche Alexander.

Among his best known plays were "Ragged Robin," "O'Neill of Derry," "Eileen Asthore," "Barry of Ballymore," "The Isle o' Dreams," "Shameen Dhu," and "Honest John O'Brien." In recent years Olcott specialized in romantic comedy, singing Irish lyrics, including "My Wild Irish Rose" and "Mother Machree."

OTHER FIREMEN'S TURN TO WORK, SO 4 CHILDREN BURN

Philadelphia, Pa., March 18.—[Special.]—Four children, ranging in age from eight months to 15 years, were burned to death in their home at the edge of Paulsboro, N. J., early this morning. A fire company two blocks distant failed to respond to the alarm because a town ordinance provided that this month it was the duty of another company, a mile away, to answer out of town alarms.

The children, whose father, John Bell, was at work in a factory three blocks away, were Teresa, 15; Mary, 8; Ruth, 5, and William, eight months. Lillian Bell, the father's second wife, whom he married two years ago, was severely burned on the shoulders and back as she fled down the stairs. She said she thought the children were following her.

Several neighbors tried to rescue the children, but were driven back by flames. By the time the Billingsport fire company arrived from a mile distant it was too late. The bodies were found in an upstairs bedroom, the baby and Ruth still in their beds. The two older girls apparently were suffocated as they tried to rescue the others. An investigation of the two fire companies has been ordered.

DOCTOR, MAID TELL ECCENTRICITIES OF KITTY GUNN-JONES

Her family physician and personal maid testified regarding the eccentricities of Mrs. Kitty Gunn-Jones, wealthy recluse who died in 1929, yesterday before Master in Chancery Jacob M. Arvey. He is hearing the contest over Mrs. Gunn-Jones' will, leaving the bulk of her $500,000 estate to husband, George W. Jones. Mrs. Louise Thompson, a sister, and other relatives are contesting the will.

Dr. Charles L. Loffler, the physician, testified that in his belief Mrs. Gunn-Jones was not insane when she married Jones and executed the will, but stated that there was no doubt in his mind that she was mentally unbalanced.

The maid, Seline Polson, 5231 Woodlawn avenue, testified that Mrs. Gunn-Jones frequently had her breakfast served to her in the bath tub, and would order her chauffeur out to ride her about Jackson park at 2 a. m.

"She used to get up at all hours of the night and make me work the ouija board with her," said Miss Polson. "Then she would say that she could see the spirit of Mr. Gunn, her late husband, in the room. Mr Gunn's spirit made me so nervous that I had to quit my job."

GIRLS MISSING; DIARY TELLS OF LIQUOR PARTIES

Charleston, W. Va., March 18.—[Special.]—City and state police today began a hunt for Mary Francis Taylor, 12, and Lillian May Meyers, 14, high school girls, missing since Wednesday, following the reading of the diary of the younger girl by her mother, Mrs. Ralph Davis.

"I am convinced," said Mrs. Davis, "that the girls have been kidnaped."

Police said the diary contained references to drinking parties.

"We got a pint and went to the fountain," the girl wrote in one instance, referring to a soft drink parlor, "and had a good time there." Lillian May was mentioned in the diary as having been her companion.

Police Capt. Dan Smith, aided by state police, was checking several bootlegging addresses given in the diary.

"An investigation of high school conditions will be made," he said. "We may file some statutory charges in this case."

FORMER ILLINOIS MAN FOUND SLAIN IN MEXICAN WILDS

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

MEXICO CITY, March 18.—Albert R. Ennis, a native of Quincy, Ill., and a pioneer miner in Mexico, was found strangled to death last night in an isolated spot on Fortin mountain, on the outskirts of the city of Caxaca. He had been dead a week.

Scars on the body and other evidence indicated that a desperate struggle had been made by the victim. A rope was found nearby. Police believe Ennis was not killed at the spot where his body was found, but somewhere near Oaxaca and then dragged to the mountain wilderness.

Ennis had lived in Mexico for thirty years, most of the time in the state of Oaxaca, where he was reported to have discovered several rich mineral deposits. From these finds he is said to have made large sums, although lately his fortune had greatly decreased. He leaves a widow, the former Stella Grandison, and two children, all of whom live in Mexico City.

Mrs. Carol K. Glidden Dies in Her Home in Evanston

Mrs. Carol Keefer Glidden, 58 years old, wife of Otis E. Glidden, 1519 Hinman avenue, Evanston, president of the Petrolager Laboratories of Chicago, died in her home yesterday after an illness of three months. She was the daughter of the late John M. Keefer, former mayor of Macomb, Ill. Besides Mr. Glidden she is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Harry Gardner of Beardstown, Ill.; Mrs. George Chapin of Hammond, Ind., and Mrs. Roy Stocker of Macomb. Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow at the residence of Mrs. Stocker. Burial will be in Macomb.

HOME SURPLUS IN U. S. IS CHIMERA, HOUSE BODY TOLD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 18.—[Special.]—In the matter of home building, this country could stand "a little inflation under adequate control," Attorney Nathan William MacChesney of Chicago, counsel for the National Association of Real Estate Boards, today told the house committee on banking and currency considering the home loan bank bill.

The surplus of homes in the United States is not nearly so great as has been represented, Mr. MacChesney argued, and produced figures of his association to show that 84 per cent of the principal American cities have either merely a normal supply of homes, or a shortage.

Answering the charge that the proposed bill would put the government into business, the Chicago attorney replied:

Defends Relief Program.

"The government has faced the fact that we are in a financial crisis and that it is better to put our great business institutions on their feet than to resort to the dole. For that reason, these other great organizations have been financed by the government to assist business. This help should filter down to the small man—the home owner whose situation is now desperate."

The Glass-Steagall bill, he maintained, cannot take care of the present emergency, nor of the permanent need in the home financing field.

"This country is woefully deficient in long term credit on which depends the equities of existing home owners and the hopes of future home owners."

Boards Favor Bill.

He declared that the associated real estate boards which he represents are strongly in favor of the bill which would establish twelve new banks for the sole purpose of discounting first mortgages on homes to home financing institutions.

Replying to questions as to the comparative merits of the home loan bank system and the federal farm and bank system Attorney MacChesney asserted that the bonds of the home loan banks would be better secured than those of the land banks, because the loans will be restricted to not more than 40 per cent of the value of the property.

Later in the hearing when Chesla Sherlock, Philadelphia editor was asked by Representative Reilly [Dem., Wis.], if he didn't believe that the decline in home ownership was due to modern women's disinclination to take the responsibility of such action, he answered quickly:

"The woman never has been born who didn't want a home."

Marjorie Ault, Co-Ed at De Pauw, Dies Suddenly

Marjorie Ault, 18 year old daughter of Harry Ault, an executive of Sprague, Warner & Co., died suddenly yesterday afternoon in the county hospital in Indianapolis, according to a dispatch. Miss Ault was a freshman at De Pauw university, and a pledge of Alpha Chi Omega sorority. Miss Ault, according to the dispatch, was found unconscious in her room in a campus dormitory a half hour before her death. Physicians said death was caused by a cerebral hemorrhage. Friends that Mrs. Ault had left for Indianapolis in the afternoon for a visit, ignorant of her daughter's death. Mr. Ault left immediately upon receiving the message. The Ault residence is at 1660 Farwell avenue.

JAMES H. WIBLY FUNERAL RITES WILL BE TODAY

Funeral services for James H. Wibly, 1546 Farwell avenue, nationally known figure in the piano industry and a resident of Chicago for nearly forty years, will be held today at 2 p. m., in the chapel at 929 Belmont avenue. The service will be in charge of the Englewood Masonic lodge, of which Mr. Wibly was a member. Temporary interment will take place at Rosehill cemetery.

Mr. Wibly, who was a musician, was associated for twenty-two years with the Wood & Brooks Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and the Thayer Action company of Rockford. He was a member of the Illinois Athletic club and the Piano and Organ association. He died at Mercy hospital on Wednesday at the age of 61 years. He was born at Chillicothe, O.

Surviving Mr. Wibly are his widow, Catherine Roberts Wibly, and two brothers, Edwin and Frank P. of Beverly Hills.

MRS. MARY PATTERSON WINCHELL, 40 East Oak street, widow of Harley Winchell, advertising man, will be buried today, after funeral services, at 2:30 o'clock in the chapel at Graceland cemetery. Mrs. Winchell, who was 56 years old, died on Thursday. A sister, Mrs. C. J. Leyton of Milwaukee, and a brother, Robert Lutz of Grand Bay, Ala., survive.

HARRY E. LESAN, president of the H. E. Lesan Advertising agency of New York and Chicago, in New York, where he made his home. He was director of advertising for the federal railroad administration during the world war.

FRANCIS R. MALONEY, 34 years old, a building contractor, in his home at the Shore Line apartments, 2231 East 67th street. Death was attributed to heart disease by Dr. I. Kaufman.

Don McGill, Veteran of Surface Lines, Is Dead

Don McGill, 60 years old, assistant superintendent of shops and equipment for the Chicago surface lines, died yesterday following a long illness in his home, 8125 Merrill avenue. He had been a street car company employé for 36 years, and was active in various south side civic organizations. His widow, a son and a daughter survive. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock Monday in the Woodlawn Masonic temple, 6331 University avenue.

Quash Second Perjury Indictment Against Byrne

A second indictment charging perjury against Eugene Byrne, former assistant superintendent of the permanent plants and structures department of the sanitary district, which grew out of his testimony in the recent sanitary district graft trial, was quashed yesterday by Chief Justice Harry Fisher of the Criminal court. Judge Fisher said the indictment was faulty. The first indictment was quashed by Judge Joseph B. David.

BROKER ACCUSED BY RELATIVES OF $192,220 THEFT

Two warrants for the arrest of Frederick L. Wilk Jr., president of Wilk, Clarke & Co., an investment concern at 39 South La Salle street, which is in receivership, were taken out in the Felony court yesterday by his mother-in-law and sister-in-law. They charge that he stole bonds valued at $192,220 from them.

Wilk's mother-in-law, Mrs. Ella Stromberg, 5442 Sheridan road, accuses Wilk of the theft of her bonds valued at $178,720. His sister-in-law, Mrs. Minnie S. Denniston, 310 East Sibley avenue, Park Ridge, claims that he took $13,500 in bonds from her. The women told the warrant clerk that Wilk took the bonds from a safety deposit box to which he had access while they were ill.

The investment house that Wilk headed went into receivership late in January. He was arrested on Feb. 9 on charges of embezzlement. According to the state, forty investors, who had lost an aggregate of $500,000, signed complaints against Wilk. He is at liberty on a $75,000 bond on that charge.

CAPLIS KILLERS' CHAUFFEUR GETS 14 YEAR TERM

Tony Pape, 18 years old, who drove the car for the bandit gang which shot and killed Policeman James J. Caplis in a holdup of the Beach View Gardens at 804 Wilson avenue on Dec. 21, was sentenced to 14 years in the penitentiary for murder by Judge James J. Kelly in the Criminal court yesterday.

The sentence, which is the minimum for murder, was imposed after Pape pleaded guilty on the advice of his attorney, Frank McDonnell. He will serve eight years and three months before he is eligible for parole.

Pape had obtained a severance from his co-defendants, Frank [Red] Freeman, alleged leader of the gang; Hurlon Burlison and Nick Bruno, who pleaded guilty in the face of a possible sentence of death in the electric chair. They will be sentenced on March 24.

The hearing on Pape's plea of guilty was short. Evidence that he had acted only as a chauffeur for the gang, which was brought out in the trial of Freeman and the others, was allowed to stand for Pape's trial by agreement with Assistant State's Attorneys Robert L. Donigan and Walker Butler.

W. B. TAYLOR DIES; EX-SECRETARY TO JOHN A. LOGAN

W. B. Taylor, 81 years old, who was private secretary to John A. Logan, civil war general and senator from Illinois, died yesterday at the Colonial hotel, 6325 Kenwood avenue, where he had lived for many years. Mr. Taylor was also clerk of the Illinois house of representatives from 1878 to 1882, and later was clerk of committee on military affairs of the United States senate. His widow, Mrs. Amelia M. Taylor, and a son, Daniel B. Taylor of Chicago, survive. Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Monday in Kankakee.

ROB RESTAURANT OF $250.

Two bandits took $250 from the till of a Messinger's restaurant at 814 East 63d street yesterday, after holding up Miss Ann Cann, 20 years old, 6340 Blackstone avenue, the cashier.

ALD. JOS. CEPAK OF THE 22D WARD DIES SUDDENLY

Ald. Joseph Cepak [22d] died yesterday day of heart disease in his home, 2813 South Spaulding avenue. He had been indisposed for several days, but had attended a political rally on Thursday evening.

Ald. Cepak was 49 years old. He was a close personal friend of Mayor Cermak, and had represented the 22d ward in the council for 13 years, having been elected a short time after Mr. Cermak gave up his council seat from the same ward in 1918. He was chairman of the track elevation committee and a member of the finance committee in the present council.

A special council meeting will be held this morning to adopt resolutions of sympathy and make arrangements for the aldermen to attend the funeral in a body. The funeral service will be held at 1 o'clock Monday in the Sokol hall, 24th street and Kedzie avenue, followed by burial in the Bohemian National cemetery.

The widow, Mrs. Anna Cepak; two sons, William and Joseph Jr., and a daughter, Mrs. Lillian Schutta, survive.

RITES FOR RECTOR ARE CONDUCTED BY MUNDELEIN

Cardinal Mundelein conducted the funeral rites yesterday morning for the late Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael James FitzSimmons, former rector of Holy Name cathedral. The services were held at the cathedral at 10 o'clock. The Very Rev. Msgr. Francis O'Brien preached the sermon. Burial was in All Saints' cemetery. Msgr. FitzSimmons, who died last Saturday, was born in Chicago 81 years ago, and served as a priest of the archdiocese for 40 years. He was ordained at Holy Name cathedral in 1882. After his ordination, Msgr. FitzSimmons served as assistant at St. Mary's church, 9th street and Wabash avenue. Later he became assistant at Holy Name cathedral from which position he was elevated to the rectorship in 1888 and then to the chancellorship of the archdiocese.

GROCERS FIGHT PACKERS ACTING AS COMPETITORS

Latter Say U. S. Consent Isn't Necessary.

Washington, D. C., March 18.—(AP)—Lawyers today finished their contentions before the Supreme court over whether the packers should be allowed to handle other provisions than meats.

This is the principal point at issue in the controversy about modification of the packers' consent decree, entered into in 1920 by Swift & Co., Armour & Co., Morris & Co., Wilson & Co., and the Cudahy Packing company.

The government accused them of the threatened domination of the entire foodstuffs field and they agreed to stick closely to the butchering business and its side lines. Last year, however, after over ten years of litigation, the packers persuaded the District of Columbia Supreme court to let them handle other foods.

Grocers Oppose a Change.

Edgar Watkins, for the American Wholesale Grocers association, told the court today that the packers with their money and organization would soon dominate the wholesale food business if the modification were allowed to stand.

Speaking for the National Wholesale Grocers' association, William C. Breed agreed with Watkins and also said the government had to consent to modification of the consent decree before the packers could abrogate it.

Frank Hogan, for the packers, disagreed with that. He said there was plenty of evidence to show that changing conditions since 1920 had eliminated any danger of a monopoly by his clients in the meat business or any other business. If the packers were not permitted to expand their activities, he argued, their own business existence might be in danger.

Frank Hogan added the government had never contended that the decree could not be modified without its consent. He said if such a situation existed it might easily put the packers in a position where they could not obtain relief, even though it were shown that conditions had changed so there was no longer any danger of monopoly in the food field.

Government Opposes Change.

The government closed with John Lord O'Brian, assistant attorney general, presenting its case. He said that while the time might come when the consent decree should be modified, he said he felt it had not arrived yet. The Supreme court will probably decide the case before the present term is over.

Safeway Stores Profits Increase Sharply in 1931

New York, March 18.—(AP)—A substantial gain over 1930 is shown in the annual report for 1931 of the Safeway Stores, Inc. Net profits for the last year were $5,415,590, equal to $6.34 a common share, compared with $3,749,901, or $4.82 a share, on fewer outstanding shares in 1930. Retail prices slumped approximately 17 per cent during the year, but sales totaled $246,783,998, against $219,284,707 in the previous year.

Independent Pneumatic Tool Earns 53c a Share

Independent Pneumatic Tool company for the year ended Dec. 31, 1931, showed a net profit of $100,195 after all charges, including federal taxes. This is equal to 53c a share on 187,849 shares of capital stock outstanding. In the preceding year the company showed a net profit of $588,693, or $3.13 a share on the capital stock then outstanding. At the end of the year the company had total current assets of $2,766,607 and current liabilities of $133,416.

Orders for Nash Cars Gain 58% in 15 Days

Kenosha, Wis., March 18.—C. H. Bliss, vice president in charge of Nash sales, announced today that March orders for new Nash cars were increased 58.9 per cent in the first 15 days of the month over the orders scheduled on the company's books on March 1. Unfilled orders for retail delivery have increased 418 per cent since Feb. 27.

American Light, Traction Shows Decrease in Income

American Light and Traction company reports net income of $8,816,367 for 1931, against $10,335,937 in the preceding year. Gross last year was $40,483,040, compared with $44,042,452. Earnings for 1931 were equivalent after preferred dividends to $2.09 a share, against $3.44 a share in 1930.

Revere Copper and Brass Shows Net Loss for 1931

The annual report of Revere Copper and Brass, Inc., shows a net loss of $2,811,941, against net income of $7,701 in the previous year.

UNITED STATES BONDS MOVE UP AS OTHER ISSUES DRIFT LOWER

New York, March 18.—(AP)—Apathy gripped the bond market today and, with the exception of United States government securities, prices generally drifted to lower levels. While all the federal bonds did not finish at their high quotations of the day, the majority of them recorded fractional gains.

Losses of fractions to 5 or more points were recorded by the railroad department. Chesapeake and Ohio liens remained relatively steady, but Chesapeake corporation 5s were heavily traded for a net loss of 2 points. Baltimore and Ohio mortgages also sagged as much as 3¼ and Nickel Plate 6s, a stellar performer of recent weeks, dropped 4 points.

Little life was displayed by the utilities and industrials. Most of the communications company loans gave ground, and American and Foreign Power 5s, reflecting weakness of the stock of the parent company, Electric Bond and Share, gave up 5 points. International Match liens turned heavy, as did some of the amusement mortgages.

BROKERS ASKING FOR AUTHORITY TO LEND STOCKS

Short Sale Order in Effect April 1.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The next fortnight will establish to what extent investors and speculators are willing to permit brokers to lend their stocks to "bear" speculators to play the market against them. Under a recent ruling by the New York and Chicago exchanges, brokers may not lend stocks of their customers after April 1 without specific and written consent.

Within the last few days New York and Chicago brokers have sent out letters to customers holding stocks asking them to sign the required agreements. One such agreement received by me reads as follows:

"I [we] authorize you to lend, to yourselves as brokers, or to others, any securities which you may be carrying for my [our] account or under my [our] control on margin. This authorization shall apply to any and all accounts carried by you for me [us] or under my [our] control, and shall remain in force until revoked by me [us] by a written notice addressed to you and delivered at your office at Chicago."

"Kindly Sign and Oblige."

A letter accompanying this "customer's agreement" explains that a signed agreement is necessary in order "to enable us to comply with the requirements of the stock exchange" and closes with this instruction: "Kindly sign and return the enclosed card promptly and oblige."

Inquiry about La Salle street brokerage house revealed that brokers thus far have received very little favorable response to their letters. Perhaps the customers are adopting the same policy that I am, which is to throw it all into the waste basket. Information secured from two brokerage houses that have sent out a thousand or more such letters was that "very few" responses have been received so far. So, perhaps, the holders of stock are not willing to "oblige" either brokers or short sellers by lending their stocks.

Advises Legislative Action.

It is my opinion that a general refusal by holders of stocks to permit the lending of their securities will do more to end the practice of short selling and bear raiding than any legislation. However, legislation embodying the present ruling of the stock exchanges might not be amiss in order to give permanent protection to holders of stocks. Otherwise, the exchanges might rescind the ruling later when the agitation against short selling has died down.

It also is my opinion that the stock exchanges will come nearer to being "free and open" markets with elimination of short selling. Our own idea of a free and open market is where an owner who is willing to sell something meets a prospective buyer. Then, if they can agree on price, a trade is made and if they can't agree, there is no trade. In such a market, when owners and prospective buyers are multiplied, demand and supply regulate price.

Short Sellers' Position.

I do not see why another person, such as a short seller, should be permitted to project himself between owners of securities and prospective buyers. The short seller, by using borrowed stocks to cover his sales, creates a fictitious supply, and when he covers a short sale, he creates a false demand. He seeks to induce the owner of stocks to sell in order that the price may decline, and he hopes to cover his short sales before the real buyers appear and cause prices to rise.

There has been considerable discussion in brokerage circles concerning ultimate effects of the stock exchanges' new ruling. Some brokers profess to believe that customers holding stocks will sign the lending agreements as a matter of course. That, of course, remains to be seen. There also have been suggestions that stocks may be "bootlegged," which means loaned to short sellers without customers' consent. But the great majority of brokers are reputable and, besides, violation of the ruling would be risky, involving suspension from the exchanges and also damage suits.

It would seem that brokers are conforming with the new ruling and will be guided by the desires of their customers. So it is up to the customers to consult their own interests.

Radio Corporation Orders 87½c Dividend on Pfd.

New York, March 18.—(AP)—Directors of the Radio Corporation of America today ordered the regular quarterly dividend of 87½ cents a share on class A preferred stock. The corporation announced that the reduction in the book value of the common stock to $2 a share from $4.22, as set forth in the annual report, had become effective, as written consent had been received from a majority of the stockholders.

Gillette Safety Razor Net Income $4,021,927 in 1931

Gillette Safety Razor company had consolidated net income for 1931 of $4,021,972 after depreciation, exchange losses, inventory adjustments and write down of securities to market, equal to $1.23 a share on the common stock. This compares with net income of $6,687,520, or $3.25 a share in 1930.

Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company announced yesterday that its litigation in the Federal courts with the Dayton Rubber Manufacturing company over the Geist patent covering multiple belt drives has been settled out of court.

Hoarders Hit Bond Market Serious Blows

BY SCRUTATOR.

The limelight has been thrown upon the type of hoarder who withdraws his money from the bank and tucks it away in a safe deposit box, a mattress, or a cookie jar, but little has been said about the fellow who ordinarily buys baonds but hasn't been buying them lately.

The withdrawing bank depositor has constricted commercial credit and temporary loans but it's the bond buyer who won't buy bonds that has given corporations and their bankers the most to worry about.

Lack of normal investment buying was one of the reasons for the creation of the Railroad Credit corporation and the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Hold Fate of Credit.

Just as depositors withdrawing their money can wreck a bank if they keep at it long enough, so investors, by refusing to buy bonds and thus provide long term credit, can wreck a strong corporation.

In the last few weeks, however, there has been noticeable improvement in the bond market. New issues have found ready buyers.

One of the reasons for weakness in bond prices during the winter months has been the greatly reduced volume of insurance company buying. The National Underwriter quotes an eastern insurance executive as saying that a certain group of companies which prior to October had been investing thirty million dollars weekly since then have been investing only about ten million weekly.

Money that normally would be invested in bonds and mortgages has been drained into policy loans. Loan pressure during the winter has been very heavy, but there is evidence that it is now easing up somewhat. At the beginning of the year some of the large companies had as much as 20 to 25 per cent of their total investments in loans to policyholders.

Loan Demand Increases.

Policy loan demands increased in October, slackened a little in November, and then increased again in December and January. Last month there was some improvement and March has been considerably better, according to a number of insurance executives.

Like the bond market, real estate has suffered from the switching of insurance money to policy loans. For several months there has been practically no institutional buying of mortgages.

In Cook county this has been partly due to the tax muddle and the large number of foreclosures, but these are not the whole trouble.

There are hundreds of pieces of good property pending in foreclosure which could be put to sale and refinanced if a little money could be raised on a new first mortgage to take care of taxes and provide cash for repairs and working capital.

Here is one case that came to the writer's attention the other day. An almost new building had been thrown into foreclosure after its earnings had failed to cover both taxes and fixed charges on a million dollar bond issue. Practically all of the bondholders had deposited their bonds with a committee and had signified their willingness to accept stock in lieu of their bonds under the proposed reorganization plan.

Shows Vast Shrinkage.

About $150,000 in new money was needed to cover expenses, taxes, and the funds wherewith dissenting bondholders would be paid their proportionate share of the foreclosure sale price.

Temporarily there was no one who would invest $150,000 on security that a few years ago people figured was worth a million dollar loan.

Undoubtedly the first loan was too high and was based on an inflated valuation. But with the water all wrung out of the capitalization the property certainly should be worth risking 15 per cent of the amount of the original mortgage.

Dawes Tells Hoover of Credit Relief Progress

Washington, D. C., March 18.—(AP)—The progress of the Reconstruction Finance corporation in its efforts to ease American credit was outlined to President Hoover today by Gen. Charles G. Dawes, president of the corporation. Gen. Dawes said he had told the President the various efforts being made to increase the credit flow and would continue to make such reports at timely intervals.

The Mobile and Ohio Railroad today asked the interstate commerce commission to approve a loan of $1,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. The loan would run three years, and would be used to meet various obligations of the company.

Pennsylvania Railroad Cuts Officers' Salaries

Officers of the Pennsylvania railroad whose salaries are fixed by the directors have taken another 10 per cent cut in salary. The cut is effective April 1 for all officers above minor supervisory officers. The first 10 per cent cut went into effect last July.

Directors of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company have voted a downward adjustment of salaries of all officers and employés, ranging from 10 to 19 per cent, effective April 1.

I. C. C. Orders Roads to Make Through Water Rates

Washington, D. C., March 18.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission today directed railroads serving Ohio and Mississippi river points to make through rates and routings on freight handled partly by rail and partly by water over barge lines. The rates and routes were ordered in connection with the operations of the American Barge Line company on the Ohio between Pittsburgh, Pa., and Cairo, Ill., and between Pittsburgh and ports on the Mississippi south of Cairo.

PICKS CHICAGOAN AS RECEIVER FOR PIPE LINE

Missouri-Kansas Co. Fight Grows.

Wilmington, Del., March 18.—(AP)—The Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line company, one of the important concerns in the natural gas industry, and two of its subsidiaries, Frank P. Parish & Co. of Chicago and the Kentucky Natural Gas company of Owensboro, Ky., went into the hands of receivers today.

Chancellor J. O. Wolcott appointed O. Ray Phillips of Chicago and Henry T. Bush of Wilmington as receivers on a bill of complaint filed by R. H. McWilliams Jr. company, Inc., of Chicago. The complainant is a creditor in the amount of $5,000. Missouri-Kansas Pipe and the subsidiaries consented to the appointment.

The bill of complaint alleged a bear raid was conducted against the company's stock in June, 1930, in connection with a conspiracy among antagonistic public utility interests for the purpose of destroying the concern.

Assets of Company.

The assets of the company include an investment in the Pan Handle Eastern Pipe Line company, a gas transportation system of 2,000 miles of pipe from the Texas panhandle to Indiana. The bear raid, the bill alleged, forced the company to sell a half interest in the Texas-Indiana project in order to insure completion of the line.

Officials of Missouri-Kansas Pipe said a letter would be mailed to stockholders explaining that the company consented to appointment of receivers because it is unable to meet maturing obligations through difficult circumstances under which it has been compelled to do its financing. The company has assets of about $18,000,000 over liabilities.

The letter stated the management will coöperate with receivers in an effort to find a solution to the financial problems in a manner that will best protect the stockholders.

Charges Persecution.

The letter adds: "The obstructions placed in the path of your company's development have at times appeared to be insurmountable, and the complete story of this unsportsmanlike suppression and malignant persecution will some day be written."

The Missouri-Kansas Pipe line, organized in 1928 to develop gas properties near Kansas City, Mo., has total assets of $28,000,000 and total liabilities and reserve, exclusive of capital stock and surplus, of $9,731,000.

The assets in addition to the investment in the Panhandle Eastern Pipe line included full ownership of extensive pipe line properties in Kentucky and Indiana. The Texas Panhandle to Indiana line is now complete. With the lines of the subsidiaries the company supplies gas to 89 communities in seven states, to other pipe line companies, and to industrial customers.

NET PROFITS OF NATIONAL DAIRY TOTAL $22,547,973

National Dairy Products corporation yesterday reported net profits for 1931, after interest and federal taxes, of $22,547,973, equivalent, after allowing for payment of preferred dividends, to $3.47 per share on the 6,263,150 shares of common stock outstanding. This compares with net profits in 1930 of $25,470,942, equivalent after similar deductions to $4.10 per share on 6,202,177 shares outstanding.

As a result of these policies, Mr. McInnerney said, the corporation was in strong current position, as indicated by the ratio of $3.46 of current assets for every $1 of current liabilities. Total current assets of $63,535,617, with current liabilities of $18,339,328, were reported. These figures compare respectively with $68,152,624 and $21,144,797 for 1930. Cash on hand was given as $23,446,407 and this item, the report stated, was after deduction of $4,267,439 for the dividends paid on Jan. 2, 1932.

"The list of stockholders," the report states, "is now in excess of 61,000, or an increase of about 15,500 over the previous year, and we are pleased to observe that the number of employé stockholders has likewise increased."

National Bellas Hess Stock Stricken from N. Y. List

National Bellas Hess common stock, a comparative old-timer on the New York Stock exchange, was yesterday stricken from the list. This action was taken by the exchange in connection with the company's plans for liquidating its business.

PENNROAD CORP. TAKES NO DIVIDEND ACTION; GLEN ALDEN PASSES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 18.—Directors of at least a half dozen corporations voted today to omit dividend disbursements on either their preferred or common stocks. No action on dividends was taken by directors of the Pennroad corporation at their meeting. On Sept. 15 and March 15 last year a dividend of 20 cents each was paid. The corporation is controlled by the Pennsylvania railroad.

The Glen Alden Coal company decided to pass its $1 quarterly dividend due at this time because "earnings and current position of the company do not justify declaration." Dividend on the common stock of Bayuk Cigars, Inc., was omitted today after the board had reduced the amount from 75 cents quarterly to 37½ cents in the previous quarter. Regular quarterly was declared on the first preferred issue.

Among the preferred issues, senior stocks of Warren Brothers were taken off the dividend paying list when directors omitted quarterly payments on the three issues, all of which are cumulative. Crowley, Milner & Co. deferred action on the common. In each of the two previous quarters the company paid 20 cents a share, prior to which the stock was on a $2 yearly basis.

Central Cold Storage company has passed its dividend of 20 cents on the common. The Washington Oil company declared a dividend of 25 cents. Previously the company paid 75 cents quarterly.

The Finance Company of America ordered extra dividends of 2 per cent on the class A and class B common stocks, but decided to reduce the regular quarterly cash payment from 20 cents to 10 cents. The New York Stock exchange has been advised the Pirelli company of Italy and Italian Edison Electric corporation will pay dividends of 50 lire and 40 lire respectively. Dividends will be paid in Milan.

FED. ELECTRIC CO. 1931 NET INCOME TOTAL IS $362,096

Federal Electric company's annual report shows net income of $362,096 for 1931, equivalent after preferred dividends to $2.52 a share on the common stock outstanding. This compares with 1930 net income of $427,053 or $5 a share on common.

The company owns several electrical sign companies and is controlled by the Insull interests. The report says that the company has been working through its research department with representatives of the Century of Progress exposition on novel lighting effects which it is expected will be used in the illumination of the exposition buildings. The company has already installed electrical advertising displays adjacent to the exposition grounds for several companies, it was stated.

Net sales of the company in 1931 were $9,992,810, compared with $13,067,214 in the previous year. John F. Gilchrist, president, says that in view of condition prevailing during 1931 the volume of sales was regarded as reasonably satisfactory.

Chicago Surface Lines Carry Fewer Passengers

The monthly report of the Chicago Surface Lines for February shows that total revenue passengers were 54,921,601, a decrease of 5,594,449 as compared with February, 1931. Gross earnings were $3,849,729, a decrease of $384,974.

Gross earnings were $3,849,729, or $384,974 less than in the second month of 1931. Operating expenses amounted to $3,286,097. After payment of 5 per cent interest on purchase price there was a deficit of $181,022.

Judge Authorizes Payment of Wabash Rail Interest

St. Louis, Mo., March 18.—(AP)—Payment of semi-annual interest due April 1 on Wabash railway first mortgage bonds, amounting to $55,308, and of $110,906 interest due at the same time on $9,950,000 bank loans, was authorized today in an order issued to the Wabash receivers by Federal Judge C. B. Faris.

INSULL STOCK DROP RENEWS SALE RUMORS

Affect Middle West's Eastern Plants.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Renewed weakness in the Insull securities yesterday brought a revival of reports concerning the plans of the Insull management for meeting maturities this year. One report widely circulated in the east said Middle West Utilities company was preparing to dispose of certain properties along the Atlantic seaboard to eastern interests was denied in well informed circles here.

The report has bobbed up frequently in recent weeks and each time it has been denied in banking quarters here. It was pointed out yesterday that most of the large utility holdings have their own problems to meet because of the difficulty of refinancing in the present market and are not looking for new properties requiring cash outlays, no matter how attractive they appear.

Samuel Insull last night added his denial that negotiations were under way for the sale of the New England properties to United Gas Improvement and the New Jersey holdings to Public Service corporation of New Jersey. He also spiked the report that Stone & Webster would take over the southern units of Middle West.

Plans Still Unknown.

What the plans of Middle West Utilities are for meeting its $10,000,000 maturity next June is not definitely known. It is known, however, that negotiations with bankers have been in progress for some time and the prospects at the present time were said yesterday to be favorable for the company.

The ticker yesterday failed to confirm the optimistic reports. Middle West notes, 1932 series, maturing in June, broke sharply on the New York Curb exchange to a record low price of 29. There was some recovery before the close, and the issue was quoted at 32 at the end of the day. The final quotation, however, represented a net loss of more than 5 points and brought the decline for the last three days to nearly 15 points. Other maturities of the company were also weak. With the exception of the 1932 series all are now selling below 25. The notes were heavily traded yesterday with the 1932 series heading the list with a turnover of $58,000 par value.

Stock Under Pressure.

Middle West common was under pressure on the Chicago exchange. The stock duplicated its previous record low quotation of 1⅛ and closed at that figure after more than 46,000 shares had changed hands. Until Thursday the stock had been supported at 1⅞ for several days. Offerings, however, compelled a lowering of the bid by the supporting group.

Interest in Middle West overshadowed the movements in other securities. The general trend was lower, in sympathy with the movement on the big board. Commonwealth Edison again sold under 90, this time to close at 89¾. Transactions in the stock approached 3,000 shares.

Moderate interest was displayed in the Insull investment trust issues. Insull Utility common was traded to the extent of 12,500 shares around one. The debentures of the trust were off more than a point at 7¾.

Court Enjoins Big Bonuses of TobaccoChiefs

New York, March 18.—(AP)—The profit sharing policy of the American Tobacco company, which in 1930 brought its president, George W. Hill, a compensation of $2,383,000, was halted at least temporarily by an injunction granted today by Federal Judge Francis C. Caffey. The decision barred the payment of the "bonuses" pending further litigation "either for 1931 or for any subsequent year."

The profit sharing plan, adopted in July, 1930, brought millions of dollars into the hands of vice presidents of the company in addition to President Hill. It made Hill one of the nation's "million dollar a year executives" with an income for 1930 that was said to be the largest compensation on record for a corporation executive.

Most of the payments for 1931, when the company earnings aggregated $46,189,741, or $9.07 a share on the combined common and common "B" stocks, are reported already to have been made. The 1930 earnings, when Hill received the immense compensation, were less—$43,294,769, or $8.56 a share.

Charges Bonus Plan.

Judge Caffey in his decision left undecided motions made by Richard Reed Rogers, a minority stockholder, to require the company's officers to account for payments already made to them.

Rogers, in instituting the action fourteen months ago, charged the officers and directors with perpetrating a plan to pay themselves a $30,000,000 bonus through purchase of stock at $25 a share. President Hill six months later asserted the subscription plan was "duly authorized" at a meeting of stockholders in July, 1930. The $25 a share they were asked to pay for it allegedly was in comparison with a market price of $112.

The plan approved by the stockholders called for the sale of about 312,000 shares of "B" stock to employés at not less than the $25 par. In January, 1931, the company issued 56,712 shares, of which President Hill received 13,440. Five vice presidents received a total of 16,685 shares, with the balance distributed among employés entitled to participate. It was this stock sale that largely accounted for the $2,383,000 compensation Hill received for 1930.

Officials Comment.

Officials of the American Tobacco company issued a brief comment on the ruling.

"In response to inquiry," they said, "officials of the American Tobacco company called attention to Judge Caffey's statement that his impressions were only tentative and not final and said that they concurred with the court's views as to the desirability of procuring an early authoritative ruling on the by law by the Circuit Court of Appeals."

At the annual stockholders' meeting of the American Tobacco company George W. Hill, president, stated that in 1931, a year of generally reduced tax receipts, the company paid federal taxes of $158,000,000, "a high record I believe, for any corporation or enterprise. For every dollar of profit our company earned, we earned, in addition, nearly $3.50 for the United States government.

Mindful of Troubles.

"At the same time, our company has been mindful of the difficulties which have confronted the tobacco grower through the collapse of the export market, by substantially enlarging its purchases of leaf tobacco, and thereby increasing the American demand."

The company's balance sheet showed cash of $26,810,000 and accounts receivable of $2,683,000. Accounts payable amounted to $3,584,000. Surplus was carried at $106,448,000. Total assets were $294,390,000.

The company was able during the year not only to maintain its former wage scale without laying off workmen, but in addition to give employment at full wages to a greater number of employés.

MOSSER LEATHER REPORTS LOSSES FOR TWO YEARS

The J. K. Mosser Leather company, controlled by Armour & Co., yesterday reported a net loss of $1,492,284 for 1931, against a net loss of $1,870,000 in the preceding year. The loss was due entirely to the continual decline in the price of hides and leather, Henry W. Boyd, president, says in his report. The slump brought hide prices to the lowest point since the early '90s and necessitated an inventory write-down of slightly more than $2,000,000, he added. Tonnage was maintained at the usual volume, he stated. The Jan. 2 balance sheet showed current assets of $13,324,619, including cash of $426,651 and inventories of $11,844,766. Current liabilities stood at $2,287,169.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 18.—That "good news from Washington" which the financial district was expecting overnight got mislaid somehow and the share market was so cut up it had to take to the cellar again today.

Evidently the market crowd had set the Washington report down as just another "bull rumor" long before the morning papers came out to confirm their suspicions, for the opening gong found a heavy load of selling orders which had accumulated overnight awaiting execution.

The barrage was enough to break opening bids down from a fraction to 2 or 3 points and by the time the orders were out of the way the whole list was in headlong retreat, with the more active issues reflecting declines of as much as 5 or 6 points from their previous closing levels. The heavy selling continued for an hour without any break.

Moderate Rally Fails.

There was a moderate rally around midday, but it did not carry far. The close found the leaders off anywhere from 1 to 4 points. Thus all of the gain scored on the late afternoon rally of yesterday were wiped out and numerous issues driven to new lows for the year.

One contributing factor to the decline was the heavy selling in Electric Bond and Share common and preferred stocks on the curb, resulting in record low prices. The drop accompanied a report in the financial district that the management is having difficulty in securing the necessary stockholders' consents to the proposed plan for reducing the number of common shares outstanding by two-thirds. The reports stated that unless this proposal is carried the directors at their meeting on March 22 will be unable to declare dividends on the preferred stocks.

However, it was learned at the offices of the company that Electric Bond and Share has on hand cash in excess of $30,000,000 and has no bank loans or indorsement liability of any kind. Furthermore, the preferred dividends are being earned at present three times over. It was asserted at the company's offices that there is no reason why preferred dividends should not be paid, and they will be paid as soon as the technicality involved in the stated value of the common is straightened out.

Utility Shares Weak.

Among the declines in shares of companies controlled by the big holding corporation were those of American and Foreign Power, Electric Power and Light, and American Power and Light, which lost 2 to 4 points.

Utility shares were under heavy pressure throughout the session. Consolidated Gas broke nearly 2 points and Peoples Gas fell back more than a point.

The rails again were lower, following the market trend, but it was not such a unanimous affair as on other "off" days. Illinois Central was a bright spot in the group, moving against the tide for a gain of nearly a point on reports that its February earnings report is going to show up well. Unofficial estimates have it that the net operating income of last month may exceed $900,000, which would compare with $109,000 for the corresponding month of last year. Baltimore and Ohio, Canadian Pacific, New York Central, New Haven and others of the group receded from 1 to 2½ points.

Allied Chemical dropped some three points despite its favorable earnings statement showing the dividend earned and was able to recover only about a third of its setback.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today; Cattle, 100; hogs, 7,000; sheep, 3,000.

The hog market became unsettled soon after a 5@10c higher opening yesterday, and closed on the down grade. Sacrificing by those carrying the accumulated holdover brought on a bear raid near the finish, and instances of as much as 5@15c declines were cited after the noon hour. The extreme top touched $4.85 on the early bulge, and bulk of high quality 150@200 lb averages were over the scales at the advance before the whittling of costs started in butcher weights.

Hogs averaging 240 lbs and heavier were hit hardest on the break, and it was generally conceded that these weights comprised the big end of the number left at the close. The general average for the whole day remained steady at $4.45.

The precautionary buying by local houses who expect a narrowing of demand for fresh meats next week discouraged the selling side from pressing the market following the reaction. Unless supplies are abnormally low the trade does not look for any strength until later in the week. Several smaller houses plan to reduce their slaughtering during the first half of the week in order to guard against a possible accumulation of pork when consumer demand swings to cured meats for a few days.

Monday's Hogs Bid $4.75.

Lightweight hogs for Monday's delivery were bid $4.75 on the "to arrive" market yesterday. All offers and bids in future months were steady with Thursday.

Yesterday was "clean up" day in the cattle yards and the trade was not entirely satisfactory, though prices as a whole were much in line with the general selling the previous day. Prices have been seesawing more than usual lately. On recent sessions supplies have been exceptionally low and sellers managed to recover all of what was lost earlier in the week.

Prevailing quotations on good to choice weighty beef steers are largely 50@75c above the low spot last Monday. However, the only cheering feature in the trade is the exceptionally light supplies. The trade is getting little or no support from the beef trade, which is feeling the influence of holy days that precede Easter. Normally, outlet for beef expands some after Easter. No choice cattle were available yesterday. The best here sold at $7.75.

Bulk Brings $5.25 to $6.25.

The bulk of beef steers brought $5.25@6.25. Butcher stock showed little change. Other classes of cattle were draggy at the finish. Better action was noted in calves at the recent sharp decline. Calf receipts this week at 17,000 are largest since May, 1929.

Sensational advances in lamb values on short supplies early this week had a boomerang effect when relatively high prices curtailed retail demand and brought on a crash in the market price of live lambs, which was as sharp as the advance. Yesterday's selling was largely 75c to $1.00 under the high point last Tuesday and about in line with last week's close.

Packers obtained the bulk of slaughter lambs at $7.00@7.25, but raised their bids to $7.50@7.65 near the close on a few lots of outstanding kinds. The buying side showed no special inclination to press the market after they had succeeded in rubbing out the earlier gain. Supplies are running small. Receipts for the first 18 days of March are smallest since last August.

U. S. Gains $204,000 in Day's Gold Transactions

New York, March 18.—(AP)—The gold statement of the New York Federal Reserve bank today showed imports of $204,000 from Mexico, while there were no exports and no net change in the stock of gold held under earmark for foreign account. The outward movement of gold, which a few weeks ago was causing some concern about Wall street, has slowed down to a walk. The amount of gold sent out during the last week has been of negligible amount, and more than balanced by imports and decrease in the earmark account.

VAST FEDERAL WHEAT HOLDING BREAKS PRICES

Fears of Huge Sales Disturb Chicagoans.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Fears of demoralization in the world's wheat market were expressed by the grain trade yesterday. Washington reports quoting Secretary of Agriculture Hyde to the effect that an intensive campaign would be started to dispose of the immense government stocks of wheat and cotton started a selling movement in wheat and other grains. That movement carried wheat off 2c from Thursdays finish to 55¾c for May, the lowest figure since Jan. 15 while corn dropped 1¼c to 37¼c, the lowest since Oct. 5 when it touched 36⅝c, the inside price of the season.

For months the traders have been expressing apprehension as to what would happen if the government wheat, estimated at 140,000,000 bu after deducting the 40,000,000 bu recently donated to the American Red Cross, were thrown suddenly on the world's market. Intimations that this might happen were heard last Tuesday, and the action of the market recently has suggested untoward developments were to be expected.

Outlines Wheat Sale Plan.

The plan for the disposal of the government owned wheat, as given in Washington messages was to borrow sufficient money from the Reconstruction Finance corporation funds, now available for the department of agriculture, for loans to farmers, to permit the sale of the grain on credit either to European governments or to individuals. Rumors that 50,000,000 to 80,000,000 bu were likely to go to China were regarded by the trade as fantastic.

"If the intensive effort to sell wheat held by the farm board is to be made in Europe," said Bartlett Frazier company, "it necessarily forecasts demoralization of the world's market which will of necessity be reflected in our domestic markets. It also must be taken as an admission that in spite of the $500,000,000 fund originally furnished the farm board that organization is not now in financial position to complete the financing of the enterprise into which it entered."

Broomhall, a leading European authority cabled as to the effect of an effort to sell farm board grain abroad. "If the United States becomes an anxious seller instead of an indifferent one as in the past, the international market was likely to break badly if individual traders continue offering normally," he said, "Europe might easily take fair quantities of hard winter wheat during the next three months without any severe break occurring."

Liquidation On in Grains.

Routine news was entirely ignored by the wheat trade as soon as the tickers commenced to carry the story telling of the latest developments in political handling of grain. A wave of liquidation started which carried the price off 1⅞@2¼c from the finish of the previous day. According to gossip of the pit the selling was largely by small longs who were going out of their lines, while the buying was largely by shorts and on resting orders. It was said a large order came into the pit a few minutes before the close to sell May wheat.

Rallies in the market were by no means impressive and the close was at the bottom with net losses of 1⅞@2c. March closed at 53¾; May, 55⅞@56 to 55⅝c; July, 57⅜@57⅞c, and September at 59⅜@59⅞c. As was expected the Winnipeg market was somewhat weaker than Chicago losing 1⅞@2c for the day with the sensational Washington developments the main influence. May there was 62⅛c in Canadian funds at the last.

Minor firmness was shown for a short while after the opening owing to unexpected firmness in Liverpool where wheat closed ¼@⅜c higher with May at 58⅜c, or 1¼c over Chicago. A better milling demand had some effect abroad, but it was not reflected in any improvement for North American grain and export sales for the day were estimated at 400,000 bu in all positions, largely Manitobas.

Corn Nears Season's Low.

Cotton, corn and other commodities were affected by the weakness in wheat with cotton dropping as much as $1 per bale. May corn at the inside figure during the day was only ⅝c above the lowest figure of the season. Short covering checked the decline with corn off ⅞@1¼c for the day, March being 34⅜c; May, 37½c; July, 40¼c, and September, 41½c. There have been no shipping sales of cash corn reported by local handlers for two days.

Between the adverse vote on prohibition in the house on Monday and the announcement regarding the prospective sales of wheat abroad the grain markets have declined sufficiently to indicate a loss of $44,000,000 to farmers based on farm holdings as officially reported on March 1.

AUSTRALIA WHEAT STOCKS

Australia's remaining wheat surplus this year is 61,317,000 bu, as compared with 105,480,000 bu last year, says Broomhall. The visible supply is 79,046,000 bu, against 91,000,000 bu a year ago. Farmers there are not pressing their remaining supplies of wheat owing to satisfactory sales during the first four months and on account of dry autumn.

NEW LOW ON BUTTER

Leading butter futures struck new all time lows on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. November butter selling down to 19⅜c and June fresh standards opening trading for the year at 18¼c. Both these prices were the lowest at which the deliveries ever have sold on the exchange. Closing prices showed net losses of ⅝@⅞c for the day. Egg futures were off 1⅛@¼c and potatoes unchanged. While storage reports continued slightly improved in butter, selling was heavy, largely due to the belief that production will show a decided upturn in the near future. Weakness in stocks likewise made for some nervousness. Egg statistics continue relatively favorable, compared with last year, but here, as in butter, there are expectations of an increase for the future. Sales: butter, 26 cars; eggs, 59 cars; potatoes, 5 cars. Prices follow:

MAY LARD ON SALE

Holders of May lard were free sellers with offerings taken by shorts. Other months were offered fairly, and with grains weak and lower there was only fair support. The close was at net losses of 2½ to 5c, the latter on September. Liverpool lard was unchanged to 3d higher. Export clearances were 84,500 lbs lard and 2,500 lbs of bacon. Selling of a fair sized line of May bellies resulted in a break of 22½c. Cash trade was moderate. Hogs were higher on light and weaker on other sorts, with arrivals lighter than a week and a year ago. Prices follow:

HIDE FUTURES

A marked improvement is noted in the consumption of leather during the month of January, this year, according to returns to the New York Hide Exchange. The consumption of cattle hide leather during that month being more than 25 per cent greater than during the preceding month and slightly higher than Jan. 1931.

Increased consumption is attributed to a much improved demand from shoe manufacturers, the consumption of leather in the manufacture of other articles during the month showing a slight decline from December and January, 1931. It is also pointed out that the trend in leather consumption is usually upward during January.

Future trading yesterday was fairly active with sales of 1,080,000 lbs. Net losses for the day were 13@20 points. Closing bids follow: June, 6.08c; September, 6.87c; December, 7.45c.

LAW FIRM RENTS ENTIRE FLOOR IN WILLOUGHBY

Parker & Carter Lease Tower Space.

BY AL CHASE.

Parker & Carter, one of Chicago's oldest firms of patent attorneys, now in the Bankers' building, have leased the entire thirty-second floor of the Willoughby Tower, Michigan avenue and Madison street, for a five year term at an undisclosed rental. The firm will move to its new quarters in the middle of April. It was founded in 1882 by the late Francis Parker Sr., who was state senator for eight years. The firm is now composed of Francis Parker Jr., his brothers, Leslie M. and Norman S. Parker, and Donald M. Carter. J. W. Benjamin of Willoughby & Co. was broker in yesterday's transaction.

FRANCIS PARKER SR. [Taken in 1905.]

Evelyn R. Saft has purchased the fifteen flat building, lot 90x102, at the southeast corner of Paulina and Sunnyside, from Charles W. Winters for an undisclosed consideration, subject to $52,500. The E. E. Stults Realty company was broker.

What is stated will be the first of a chain of tearooms planned for the loop and suburbs is the store at 304 South Wells street, in the McKinlock building, at the southwest corner of Jackson boulevard and Wells street, which has been leased by the McKinlock Tea Room, Inc. The lease, which also includes basement space, is for a five year term, with rental on a guarantee and percentage basis.

The leasing corporation is composed of Miss Raeh Haffenberg, Miss Effie McLennan, and Miss Margaret Carr, each of whom has been identified with the loop tearoom business for a number of years. The first unit adjoins the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin railroad terminal. This space formerly was occupied by the Indian Village restaurant. Frank C. Wells of Leo J. Sheridan & Co. was broker.

The county records yesterday disclosed the transfer of the northeast corner of Michigan avenue and Delaware place, fronting 108 feet on the boulevard and 281 feet on Delaware place, by the Chicago Title and Trust company, as trustee, to the Era Building corporation. This property is just south of and adjoining the Palmolive building.

Childs Company.

What do you think of Childs company stock as an investment?

W. A. F.

Childs company, the outgrowth of a business established in 1889, is one of the largest chain restaurant systems in the country. In June, 1931, it operated 109 units, about half of which were in New York City.

New management assumed control in March, 1929. It instituted an aggressive program of rehabilitation in an attempt to improve earning power.

Sales and rentals in 1931 were $25,930,000, against $28,288,000 in 1930, $29,952,000 in 1929, and $28,581,000 in 1928. Net income in 1931 was $241,000, which was only 92 per cent of preferred dividends, against $933,000 in 1930. Preferred dividends in 1930 were earned 2.67 times, and earnings per common share were $1.61. Net income in 1929 was $1,277,000, against loss of $55,000 [excluding nonrecurring income] for 1928.

In January, 1932, the number of meals served were between two and three per cent more than in January, 1931. Dollar volume of sales, however, declined about 8 per cent.

On Dec. 31, 1931, current assets were $1,681,000, and current liabilities were $3,906,000. Excess of current liabilities over current assets was $2,225,000, against $402,000 the year before.

The unfavorable current position was attributed to three factors—the payment of a $1,400,000 note, the investment of about $1,000,000 in plants and improvements, and the cancellation of $450,000 of subscriptions under the employes' stock purchase plan. Original plans had called for the refunding of the $1,400,000 note by the sale of fifteen year debentures, but market conditions made this impossible.

On Dec. 31, 1931, funded debt was $11,024,000. There were 50,000 shares of preferred [par $100] and 362,386 shares of no par common [including treasury stock] outstanding.

No dividends are being paid on the preferred.

The preferred is speculative and the common is more so.

Purity Bakeries.

I would be glad to secure information in regard to Purity Bakeries corporation 5s of 1948. What is the present rating?—Miss A. C.

Purity Bakeries corporation is one of the largest companies of its kind in the United States. Its 54 plants are located in 36 cities in fourteen states.

Fixed charges were earned 6.30 times in 1931, 12.67 times in 1930 and 12.74 times in 1929. On Dec. 31, 1931, current assets were $3,943,000 and current liabilities were $942,000.

The $7,200,000 debentures, due 1948, are the unsecured obligation of the company. They are a business man's investment.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Trend of the wheat market in the immediate future is regarded by a majority of the traders as depending entirely on the reception given the American government idea for liquidating its accumulated stock of grain. Should European markets break, it is generally expected that North American markets will follow. Under existing routine developments are expected to have little or no effect until the influence has been discounted.

Close observers of pit operations claim there was little evidence until near the close of the market yesterday that any of the alleged large lines of long wheat had been disturbed. As they saw it, the selling was largely by smaller longs.

With May corn within ⅝c of the lowest figure of the season yesterday and no shipping sales for two days, cash handlers continue to express decidedly bearish views as to the future trend of that market. If May corn sells down to around 30c per bu they hope sufficient export demand will develop to permit the working off of some of the accumulated stocks of cash grain at terminal markets.

Those who should be in a position to know say that included in the contemplated plan for the government owned wheat will be the Stabilization corporation is not to sell any of its wheat in this country, which would force mills to get supplies from farmers or the independently owned grain at terminals.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Live hens declined ½@1c, and leghorn hens were off 1c. Receipts, 1 car and 24 trucks. Potatoes were weaker, with receipts 120 cars and 225 cars were on team track. Fresh eggs were offered freely, but the market was ¼c higher on the top grades. Receipts, 17,218 cases. Butter was steady to ½c higher, the latter on the low scores. Receipts, 11,677 tubs.
